THE EPHEMERIS.

THE Ephemeris for the present year gives, as heretofore, the day of the year, the day of the month, and day of the week in civil time, according to which the day begins at midnight. Next are given the time of sunrise, the time before or after noon at which the sun's centre souths, and the time of sunset. The times of sunrise and sunset are in each case for the upper limb or edge of the sun, corrected for refraction. They are more accurate than usually found in popular almanacs, and will give the time with sufficient accuracy for ordinary purposes. A surveyor's level will give the horizon where the upper edge of the sun should be at the time given in the almanac. If the telescope of the leveling instrument inverts, the upper edge will, of course, be apparently the lower one. Next are given the times of rising, southing and setting of the moon's centre, and also its age, or the number of days elapsed since new moon. Then follow the times of high and low water for Philadelphia (Walnut street wharf being the point at which the times are taken), which are now both derived from the elaborate tables of the U. S. Coast Survey. Lastly is given a collection of interesting astronomical phenomena for the year. The local and standard times of Philadelphia are practically the same in all cases except in the column of sun "souths." In this case 38 seconds should be subtracted from the time A.M. and 38 seconds added to the time P.M. where the nearest second is required in standard time.

FIVE years ago the world produced about 5,600,000 ounces of gold, this year (1896) the output will equal 9,000,000 ounces.

FREQUENTLY a statement is put forth that some chemist has discovered a method of making artificial diamonds. A report now comes from the French Academy that Henry Moissan has succeeded in obtaining minute crystals of pure diamond.

THE firefly of tropical regions, called the cucojo, has been put to practical use in Cuba. Five or six are placed in a lantern, and are said to suffice for the ordinary uses of a lantern. Thirty-eight are said to equal about one candle power.

KING MENELIK, of Abyssinia, has promised to open the vaults of the Cathedral Church of Axum. It is asserted by the Moslems that in these vaults are stowed the "Ark of the Covenant," the Tables of Stone containing the Ten Commandments, and the Seven-Branded Candlestick of Gold once in the Temple of Solomon at Jerusalem.

ROENTGEN'S X RAYS.

THE most important scientific discovery of the year was that of Roentgen's X Rays, made by Professor Röntgen, of Wurzburg. He called them X Rays as being unknown, but the world named them Roentgen, anglicizing the Professor's name. They were at first confounded with the ultra-violet rays experimented with by Hertz and Lenard, but before announcing his discovery Prof. Röntgen differentiated the two kinds of rays, and, indeed, he did his work so thoroughly that the scientists of the world have thus far failed to add anything to what he had to say about them. He made photographs (or shadow-graphs) in the dark by the use of the rays, and exhibited their effects in the fluoroscope. The most that has been accomplished by others is to improve the apparatus. The rays observed by Hertz and Lenard may be deflected by a magnet, they are readily absorbed or diffused, and they pass through only thin sheets of glass or metal. The Roentgen Rays cannot be deflected by a magnet, they are not easily absorbed, and proceed from a different point of the spectrum than the ultra-violet. They are not cathode rays, but are supposed to be produced from cathode rays at the spot where the latter impinge on the glass walls of the charged tube. The apparatus used consists of a Crooke's tube containing a lens-like screen to concentrate the cathode rays produced by a current of electricity. The resulting Roentgen Rays can be used to fix shadows of opaque substances, such as the bones of the body, upon photographic plates, or to exhibit them to the eye upon fluorescent screens. It was this circumstance that awakened popular interest in the discovery, for every one was interested in seeing the bones of his own hand, or having them photographed. Use was made of the discovery for the location of bullets or other metallic substances in the flesh, and there is fair prospect that the discovery may prove useful in surgery.

NOMINATING CONVENTIONS OF 1896.

THE Republican National Convention met in St. Louis, and on June 18 nominated William McKinley, of Ohio, for President, and Garret Augustus Hobart, of New Jersey, for Vice-President. The platform declared against the free coinage of silver, except under international agreement.

The Democratic Convention met at Chicago, and on July 10 and 11 nominated William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, for President, and Arthur Sewall, of Maine, for Vice-President. The platform was very radical in many respects, and declared unqualifiedly for the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

The Populist Convention met at St. Louis, and on July 14 and 15 nominated Mr. Bryan for President and Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, for Vice-President.

The National Democratic Convention met at Indianapolis, and on September 3 nominated John M. Palmer, of Illinois, for President, and Simon Bolivar Buckner, of Kentucky, for Vice-President. It adopted a platform opposing that of the Democratic Convention at Chicago and declaring for the gold standard.

The Prohibitionist Convention met at Pittsburg, and on May 27 nominated Joshua Levering, of Maryland, for President, and Hale Johnson, of Illinois, for Vice-President. It refused to declare for free coinage of silver.

The National Party, a faction of the Prohibition Party in favor of free silver and woman suffrage, met at Pittsburg, and on May 28 nominated Charles E. Bentley, of Nebraska, for President, and James Haywood Southgate, of North Carolina, for Vice-President.

The Socialist-Labor Convention met at New York, and on July 4 nominated Charles H. Matchett, of New York, for President, and Matthew Maguire, of New Jersey, for Vice-President.

The Silverites Convention met at St. Louis, and on July 14 nominated Mr. Bryan for President and Mr. Sewall for Vice-President.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.

THE "Eastern Question," as it has been called, has been present with us all the year, and has several times threatened to involve Europe in war, but practically nothing has been done for the protection of the Armenians or to compel the Sultan to fulfill his promises of reform in administration.

tion, and Lord Rosebery resigned the leadership of the party that he might be free to oppose its probable policy. As the ALMANAC goes to press there are rumors that the Powers are preparing to act in concert, but there is no real evidence that they will do anything more than admonish the Porte.

It has been decided to adopt the electric motor throughout the entire length of the Erie Canal. The speed is about three or four miles an hour, which is about as much as the condition of the canal banks will allow.

THE great diamond mines of South Africa have yielded in the last twenty years $375,000,000 worth of diamonds. The largest diamond found since the mines were opened was two inches long, and larger than the famous Kohinoor.

BOND ISSUES.

Early in 1896 gold began to be exported to Europe in large quantities, partly because of the return of securities from England due to a flurry in the stock market caused by the publication of the Venezuela correspondence and messages. President Cleveland sent a special message to Congress asking for legislation to protect the public credit. The House responded by passing a bill for a temporary increase of revenue, to be obtained by a horizontal increase of twenty per cent. in tariff rates and by a tax on wool. A second measure adopted by the House was a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue short interest-bearing obligations. Both measures were halted in the Senate, where the advocates of the free coinage of silver were in control. As there was no probability that relief could be obtained from Congress, the Treasury Department prepared for a new bond issue, and J. Pierpont Morgan organized a powerful syndicate to bid for the entire issue; but the call was issued for public subscriptions to the loan, and they were so large that the syndicate was dissolved. The issue was of $100,000,000 thirty-year four-per-cent. bonds. Mr. Morgan announced his willingness to help any one to gold who wanted to subscribe for bonds, and also to care for any portion of the amount remaining unsubscribed. A large part of the loan was taken by Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co., and that firm was also awarded $4,700,000 of bonds on which bidders made default. The bond issues were the subject of bitter criticism of the Administration in the political campaign which followed.

HOLMES-PITZEL MURDER CASE.

The famous Holmes-Pitzel murder case, described in the LEDGER ALMANAC for 1896, continued to attract attention until the execution of the murderer. On December 30 the Grand Jury found an indictment against William A. Shoemaker, counsel for Holmes, charging him with attempted subornation of perjury, and on March 14 Judge Thayer suspended him from his office as attorney for one year.

On March 4 the Supreme Court affirmed the finding of the Court of Oyer and Terminer in the case of H. H. Holmes, all the assignments of error being overruled. The death warrant was read to him on March 9. Holmes then began the preparation of an alleged confession, which he sold to a newspaper syndicate. It was a tissue of lies. He said that he had killed twenty-seven persons, and gave the details; but some of those he said he had murdered were found to be alive. The confession appears to have been made up by Holmes out of newspaper clippings. He adopted all the stories told of him. He admitted having murdered B. F. Pitzel in this city, and says that he killed him by pouring benzine over his face and clothing while he was drunk, and igniting it with a match. The medical testimony at the trial of Holmes showed conclusively that the burns on Pitzel's face were made after death, and consequently they could not have killed him. On April 29, Jephtha D. Howe, a St. Louis attorney, charged with having conspired with Holmes to defraud the Fidelity Mutual Life Association out of $10,000 upon a policy of insurance on the life of B. F. Pitzel was acquitted, the District Attorney abandoning the case.

On May 7 the case came to an end, Herman W. Mudgett, alias H. H. Holmes, having being hanged on that day by Sheriff Clement. On the scaffold he declared that he had not killed Pitzel nor any of the Pitzel children, and that the extent of his crimes was the accidental killing of two women by malpractice.

CHURCHES AND RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN PHILADELPHIA.

When not otherwise stated, the hours of service are—10½ morning and 7½ evening.

The Public Ledger, on Saturday of each week, contains a summary of the Religious News of the week, embracing important facts relating to all denominations; Selections of Religious Thought and a department devoted to Sunday-school Lessons.

On Saturdays the Ledger contains advertisements of the Religious Services of the principal churches.

THE VOTE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

According to the official returns of the late election filed with the State Department at Harrisburg, McKinley and Hobart (Rep.), polled 726,998 votes; Bryan and Sewall (Dem.) 422,054; Levering and Johnson (Pro.), 19,274; Bryan and Watson (Peo.), 6103; Bryan and Sewall (Free Silver), 5073; Palmer and Buckner (Jeffersonian), 11,000; McKinley and Hobart (McKinley-Citizens), 1302; Matchett and Maguire (Socialist-Labor), 1683; Bentley and Southgate (National), 870.

The Electoral Tickets of the Democratic, People's and Free Silver parties contained the names of the same candidates, although the space above the names of the Electors in the Democratic and Free Silver columns contained the words "Bryan and Sewall," while the space above the People's Electors contained the words "Bryan and Watson." In the counties of Berks, Bradford, Bucks, Crawford, Forest, Lancaster, Mercer, Montgomery, Northampton, Philadelphia and Warren, no returns were made out for the Electors of the People's and Free Silver parties, such votes as were cast for these being added by the election officers or by the Court to the Democratic candidates. Allegheny, Clinton and Greene returned no vote for the Free Silver Electors. No votes were returned for the Jeffersonian Electors in Forest and Lebanon counties, and, presumably, none were cast, as these Electors were running on a separate ticket. The McKinley Citizens' ticket, which was put on the ballot in order to enable the Crow Republicans in Philadelphia to vote a full ticket by making one cross-mark, appeared on the ballot in every precinct throughout the State, and votes are returned for that ticket by every county excepting eleven, including Philadelphia, where the votes cast for McKinley and Hobart on that ticket were added to those polled for the regular Republican ticket. Luzerne county returned 119 votes for the McKinley-Citizens, which is the largest return made for that ticket by any one county.

Adding to the Republican Electors the votes returned for the McKinley-Citizens' ticket, makes the total vote for McKinley and Hobart 728,300. Adding to the Democratic Electors the votes returned for the People's and Free Silver tickets, makes their vote 433,230, which is Bryan's vote for Pennsylvania. Included in this, however, are 6103 votes for Bryan and Watson, which, subtracted from Bryan's vote, gives 427,127, which is Sewall's vote. The total vote cast was 1,194,357, and McKinley and Hobart's majority over all is 262,243. McKinley and Hobart's plurality over Bryan and Sewall is 301,173. McKinley's plurality over Bryan, however, is 295,070, as Bryan got 6103 votes on the Bryan and Watson ticket; and Hobart's plurality over Sewall is 301,173. Therefore, while McKinley and Hobart as a combination carried Pennsylvania by more than 300,000 plurality, McKinley, himself, fell short of that plurality.

If the precinct election officers throughout the State had been careful to separate their returns as to tickets, and the Courts had not lumped the votes cast for candidates on more than one ticket, it would have been possible to tell just how many votes the Electors on the various tickets received. But as some of the division returns made this discrimination and some did not, and as some of the counties made this discrimination and others did not, it is impossible to say just how many persons voted for the Electoral tickets of the Democratic, People's and Free Silver parties, or how many Republicans in Philadelphia voted for the Electors on the McKinley-Citizens' ticket. In other words, we know the aggregate votes for the candidates, but we cannot accurately estimate the value of the factors composing the sum. So far as the People's party is concerned, however, we are afforded a clue. The Democratic nominees for Congressmen-at-Large were DeWitt C. DeWitt and Jerome T. Ailman. The People's party nominees were Ailman and John P. Correll. The returns filed at the State Department are as follows: DeWitt (Dem.), 412,051; Ailman (Dem.), 414,659; DeWitt (Free Silver), 1749; Ailman (Free Silver), 1742; Ailman (People's), 1817; Correll (People's), 7482. DeWitt's total is 413,800; Ailman's is 418,218; Correll's is 7482; and Ailman, who was on both tickets, has 4418 votes more than DeWitt, his running mate on the Democratic ticket. The greatest show of strength made by the Populists was less than 7500.

In 1892, in Pennsylvania, Harrison (Rep.), for President, had 516,011; Cleveland (Dem.), 452,264; Bidwell (Pro.), 25,123; Weaver (People's), 8714, and Wing (Soc.-Labor), 898. The total vote was 1,003,010; Harrison's majority, 29,012; Harrison's plurality over Cleveland, 63,747.

THE American flag ordered by the War Department has six rows of stars—eight stars in the first, fourth and sixth rows, and seven in each of the other three rows.

THE germ theory of disease as a result of scientific microscopy is now pretty well established. The important fact is that the seeds of various diseases after being cultivated through one or more generations give rise to germs that no longer produce the disease, but render the body incapable of having it. The serum treatment of diphtheria is one of the results of the germ theory, but is not so well studied as to make it in any case a sure cure.

IMPROVEMENT OF PHILADELPHIA HARBOR AND THE CHANNEL OF THE DELAWARE RIVER.

The improvement of Philadelphia harbor was one of the most extensive public works ever undertaken by the National Government. It involved an estimated expenditure of $3,500,000, and the excavation of about 21,500,000 cubic yards of material. The work was practically completed at the close of the working season of 1896, and by the end of the season of 1897 it is expected that the present project will be finished, giving a channel at least one thousand feet wide and twenty-six feet deep at low tide, along the entire Philadelphia front, between Fisher's Point at the upper end of the harbor and Kaighn's Point at the lower end. Over the remainder of the width of the river there will be a depth of at least twelve feet at low water. The improvement consisted in the removal of Smith's and Windmill Islands, lying between Philadelphia and Camden, and a part of Petty Island, with the shoals adjacent to all three.

Work was commenced in the spring of 1891, but the firm to whom the contract was awarded failed to make the progress demanded by the contract, and in December, 1892, it was annulled. A delay of several months resulted, but in June, 1893, a new contract was made with the American Dredging Company. Up to the close of the season of 1896 a total of more than 18,000,000 cubic yards of material had been removed. Of that amount about 3,500,000 cubic yards were deposited on League Island, raising one hundred and forty-seven acres of Government land above high tide and making it available for the purposes of the Navy Yard. More than 2,500,000 cubic yards have been placed on the low land of Petty Island, and most of the remainder was deposited in shoal places in the river, selected as dumping grounds, where it will not damage the channel.

The channel improvements contemplated the advance of the piers and bulkheads on both sides of the river, at the expense of the city and of individual property owners, and this virtual reconstruction of the Philadelphia water front has been in progress since 1894, providing piers such as are required by the largest types of modern steamships. The advance of the bulkhead will permit the widening of Delaware avenue, the street running along the river front, to a width of one hundred and fifty feet, which is about three times its present width. On December 1, 1896, fifteen new piers had been built or were under construction—fine structures of sufficient length for the longest steamers, with ample docks and facilities for the handling of freight.

In the work of improvement, the share of the city of Philadelphia is that of widening Delaware avenue, constructing the new bulkhead and extending certain piers owned by the city. This work, in the territory bounded by Vine and South streets, has been authorized; plans are being prepared, and it is expected that operations will commence in the spring of 1897. A loan of $1,500,000 has been authorized for the work, but the cost of the construction of the new bulkhead between Vine and South streets will be defrayed by the accumulations of a fund of $500,000 created by the will of Stephen Girard for the improvement of the water front of the city. The sum of $650,000 is now available from that fund.

Improvements in the channel of the Schuylkill river have been in progress, under the supervision of the National Government, for several years. There was, at the close of the season of 1896, a low-tide depth of twenty feet in the middle of the channel across the bar at the mouth of the river. In the river proper, the low water depths range from thirty feet in the lower reaches, to fourteen feet near Chestnut street bridge. During 1895 and 1896, the city of Philadelphia expended a total of $130,000 on the improvement of the channel of the Schuylkill river. The efforts of the United States Engineers are now concentrated on plans for securing and maintaining a channel twenty-four feet deep over the bar at the mouth of the river.

In some respects the improvement of the channel of the Delaware river is of more importance than the improvement of Philadelphia harbor, for without a channel from the sea sufficiently deep the largest vessels could not reach the city. Up to 1885 no systematic improvement had been undertaken, but the improvements now in progress are in accordance with recommendations made by a Board of United States Engineers in 1885. The work has not progressed as rapidly as desirable on account of meagre appropriations, but since 1885 a total of $974,000 has been expended on the present project. The city has appropriated during the last two years an aggregate of $685,000 for the improvement of the Delaware river, $185,000 of which was available during 1896, and is being expended in the deepening of the channel at Schooner Ledge, below Chester. The Legislature of Pennsylvania has not yet seen the advantage of aiding the Federal Government in the work of improving the Delaware river, though it is the highway to the sea from what is practically the only seaport of the State.

The channel of the Delaware river has been greatly improved during the last few years, and it is expected in two years more that the shoals will be so far removed that vessels of the largest tonnage will be able to navigate the river practically without difficulty. This project provides for a channel, where shoal places exist, six hundred feet wide and twenty-six feet deep at low water. Shoals existed before the improvements began at six places, aggregating a distance of twenty miles of the sixty-one miles between Philadelphia and deep water in Delaware bay, where there was less than twenty-six feet of water at low tide. Improvements have been executed in the order considered of the most immediate benefit to navigation, and have included every shoal place but the two nearest the bay, Dan Baker Shoal and Duck Creek Flats, which have depths respectively of 21.8 feet and 23.5 feet at low tide. Dredging was in progress at Cherry Island Flats, near Wilmington, up to the approach of severe winter weather, the channel at that locality having shoaled with very soft mud to a minimum depth of about eighteen and one-half feet before the work began. Excepting at that point, where the soft mud does not greatly interfere with navigation, the least depths in the channel, at low water, are at Dan Baker Shoal and Duck Creek Flats. The deepest draft vessels have no difficulty in crossing these, or the other shoal places, at high water; but that frequently involves delay, and what is desired is that vessels may cross at any stage of the tide.

THE SHRIEVALTY CAMPAIGN.

THE result of the election for Sheriff of Philadelphia in 1896 was a great surprise to the politicians, and the events leading up to it deserve to be chronicled. Long before the delegate elections of the Republican party were held Alexander Crow, Jr., of the Fifteenth ward, announced himself as a candidate for the nomination. Mr. Crow is a large manufacturer. For years he had taken an active part in politics, but was never a candidate for office. He became, however, a leader of his ward, but was too independent (not being dependent upon politics) to suit the "bosses." He was, moreover, opposed in his own ward to Mayor Warwick, and as a natural consequence was supported by the enemies of the city administration—the faction led in the interest of Quay by Messrs. Penrose and Durham. Mr. Crow was thus identified with that faction, although not its tool or agent. David Martin, the head of the other faction known as the "Combine," announced no candidate against Crow until after the delegates had been chosen and had assembled in convention; but his supporters all turned in for the nomination of James L. Miles, President of Select Council. Mr. Miles was, as a matter of course, duly nominated. He is said to have been forced upon Martin, but could scarcely have been objectionable to the latter, as he had been to Martin a very serviceable and faithful henchman. For that reason a strong protest was made against Miles as a candidate. It became so strong that Mr. Crow was nominated in a great town-meeting held at the Academy of Music after 40,000 voters had signed an appeal to him to become a candidate. No such popular uprising had ever before been seen. The Democrats nominated Magistrate Eisenbrown, but the latter declined in favor of Crow, who was subsequently made the Democratic nominee. Foreseeing defeat for Miles, the party managers persuaded a number of prominent Republicans to send a note to Messrs. Miles and Crow requesting both to withdraw in the interest of party harmony. Mr. Miles declined the nomination, but Mr. Crow remained a candidate. The committee of citizens who had requested them to withdraw named half-a-dozen prominent men as suitable candidates. All of them refused to stand, and the recalled Republican convention nominated Samuel H. Ashbridge, Coroner, a man popular in his party and of good reputation. Thus the choice was narrowed down to Ashbridge or Crow, both stalwart Republican politicians, the former being the regular candidate of the Republican party controlled by the "Combine," the latter the candidate of a great public gathering, indorsed by the Democrats and supported by the Republican faction opposed to the "Combine" as represented by Martin. The election resulted in the selection of Mr. Crow by more than 18,000 majority against a party majority of 112,000.

It is proposed to drain the Pontine marshes of Italy. This will open about 250,000 acres of rich land to cultivation. The marshes have hitherto been a hiding place for thieves and full of poisonous malaria.

In the Society of the War of 1812 there are thirty-three veterans whose average age is ninety-nine years. Fourteen of them are over one hundred.

THE VENEZUELA QUESTION.

THE long pending dispute respecting the Venezuela boundary was brought to a focus by the appointment of an American Commission to report upon the subject. The Government of the United States having been informed that the dispute had reached an acute stage, President Cleveland announced in his message to Congress that a definite statement of the interest and policy of the United States as regards the controversy seemed to be required both on its own account and in view of its relations with the friendly Powers directly concerned. The Government had accordingly sent to London a communication to the British Government reaffirming the Monroe Doctrine, and asking that the dispute respecting the boundary line between British Guiana and Venezuela be submitted to arbitration. The principle on which this request was made was, that if Great Britain should merely take possession by force or otherwise of territory belonging to her, she would not be violating the Monroe Doctrine, which is opposed to the extension of European power on the American continent; but that if she was extending her dominion, then the United States would be bound to protest against such enlargement of Great Britain's American possessions. Great Britain was asked to submit the whole question to arbitration to settle this primary question. Lord Salisbury in his reply denied that the United States had any practical concern in the boundary dispute, and absolutely refused to submit the case to arbitration. President Cleveland, in a special message to Congress, answered Lord Salisbury, and recommended Congress to provide for the appointment of a Commission to examine the whole question. The message concluded with this significant passage:

"In making these recommendations I am fully alive to the full responsibility incurred and keenly realize all the consequences that may follow. I am nevertheless firm in my conviction that while it is a grievous thing to contemplate the two English speaking peoples of the world as being otherwise than friendly competitors in the onward march to civilization, and strenuous and worthy rivals in all the arts of peace, there is no calamity which a great nation can invite which equals that which follows a supine submission to wrong and injustice, and the consequent loss of national self respect and honor, beneath which is shielded and defended a people's safety and greatness."

Congress promptly authorized the appointment of a Commission, and made an appropriation for its expenses. The President appointed Judge David J. Brewer, of the United States Supreme Court; Judge Richard H. Alvey, of the Appellate Court of the District of Columbia; the Hon. Andrew D. White, of the State of New York; President Daniel C. Gilman, of the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and Mr. Frederick R. Conder, of the New York Bar. Lord Salisbury was finally brought to a realization of the importance of this movement, and the British as well as the Venezuelan case was formally presented to the Commission. Before the Commission had completed its labors Lord Salisbury had agreed to the terms of arbitration proposed by Secretary Olney, and in view of this virtual settlement of the dispute, the Commission determined to withhold its report. Virtually the same case will be presented to the arbitrators as was considered by the Commission.

FIRST SESSION FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

Congress met December 2, 1895. Hon. Thomas B. Reed, Representative of Maine, was elected Speaker of the House. With the exception of the prompt passage of the bill creating the Venezuelan Commission, referred to elsewhere, Congress did nothing of importance. The House passed several bills for the relief of the Treasury, but they were killed by the Silver Senators, who refused to permit any financial or tariff legislation without a proviso for the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1. Among the bills that passed the House, but not the Senate, was one authorizing a popular loan to be issued in small amounts; one for the retirement of United States Treasury notes; the Dingley tariff bill, to secure an increase of revenue by a horizontal increase of duties; a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to issue a limited amount of certificates of indebtedness to meet deficiencies in the revenues; a bill to improve the administration methods of the custom laws; a bankruptcy bill; a bill restricting immigration; and a Labor Commission bill—all of which failed to pass the Senate. The appropriation bills, the filled cheese bill, a bill prohibiting prize fighting in the Territories, another regulating divorces in the Territories, and one making it a crime to throw or fire missiles into a train, represent the chief public measures passed by Congress and approved by the President.

The House deserves special credit for having rejected Senate bills providing for the free coinage of silver and the dangerous anti-bond bill.

A bill was passed and approved by the President authorizing and encouraging the holding of a Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition at Omaha, Nebraska, in 1898.

The appropriations made during the session amounted to $515,759,820.

THE REBELLION IN CUBA.

The Cuban rebellion continued throughout the year without any decisive results except enormous losses to the people of Cuba and to the Spanish Government. The latter continued to pour troops into the disturbed island, notwithstanding the difficulties she met with in negotiating loans; but the military forces accomplished little in the way of subduing the rebels, who maintained a guerrilla-like warfare, avoiding general engagements. The Spanish soldiers suffered greatly from disease, small-pox and yellow fever both becoming epidemic, but the extent of their losses could not be ascertained. It is estimated that at least 200,000 men have been under arms in Cuba during the year, the rebels having about 60,000 and the Spaniards twice the number; yet the casualties in battle have been few in spite of the exaggerated stories sent out on the one hand by the rebel sympathizers and on the other hand by the Government officials or under their censorship. Reliable intelligence is scarcely obtainable, but a few facts have been clearly established. The rebels are in possession of a large part of the island, but have no government in form to be recognized. The Spanish troops have all they can do to maintain possession of the garrison towns.

The last rebellion in Spain lasted for ten years, from 1868 to 1878, and during that time Spain had on the island 166,228 troops of all arms, but they were not all in the field at one time. The largest force in any one year was about 80,000. There were about 17,000 Spanish soldiers in Cuba at the opening of the present rebellion, February 24, 1895. More than 78,000 soldiers were sent there during 1895, and 10,000 soldiers were organized in Cuba, making altogether 106,479, exclusive of losses, at the end of the year. Forty thousand more were sent out early in 1896, and in September another contingent of 40,000 began to arrive, so that the effective force employed (exclusive of losses) was 186,000 men. The deaths during the ten years of war from 1868 to 1878 averaged about 15 per cent. per annum, of which one-half were from disease. It is said that the death rate has been much less during the present rebellion, which is not improbable, but it is likely to be considerable during the epidemic of small-pox and yellow fever. The losses due to the rebellion have been enormous. The rebels have burned plantations, and General Weyler has prohibited exportations the proceeds of which are likely to be of service to the rebels. The result is almost a suspension of trade in a prolific island, which in years of peace produces one hundred million dollars worth of sugar and tobacco alone.

The rebels hope to involve the United States in the conflict, but the Government has been scrupulous in efforts to avoid a conflict with Spain. Frequent arrests have been made of filibusters, but the rebels seem to have little difficulty in landing troops and munitions of war in Cuba if they succeed in getting them out of United States ports. General Weyler has caused the execution of many men charged with being spies or with aiding and abetting the rebels. The United States has interfered to save the lives of some Americans and secure for them a civil trial, and, notwithstanding the strong feeling against the United States exhibited by Spanish mobs, the Government has promptly acceded to the reasonable demands of the United States. The outlook is for a continuance of the war on the same lines as heretofore, for General Weyler has failed to make any progress in the suppression of the rebellion, and the rebels themselves are committed to a continuance of the struggle, as they can hope for no clemency. Spain is so crippled, financially, by the struggle that if it should continue much longer she would probably be obliged to grant Cuba independence or sell the island. The Cuban grievances are that swarms of office-holders are sent to the island from Spain to rule and rob them. Seventy-five per cent. of the offices in Cuba, including all the important ones, are held by Spaniards, who take turns in fleecing a country in which they have no permanent interest. They carry enormous sums of money away from Cuba, and keep the island poor notwithstanding its natural richness. The island is also overrun by cheap Spanish labor, young men who seek by service in the militia of Cuba to escape conscription at home. The island is very heavily taxed and made the prey of monopolies. A census of the island of Cuba shows that two-thirds of the inhabitants are classed as white, but it is added that a man must be very black to be admittedly colored. The whites, according to this census, are in the majority in each of the six provinces.

ARCTIC EXPEDITIONS OF 1896.

The year 1896 was a notable one in the history of Arctic research. At the close of 1895 there were two great expeditions in the northern ice fields—one was that headed by Dr. Frithjof Nansen, which left Christiania, Norway, with the specially constructed steam vessel Fram, June 24, 1893, and the other commanded by F. G. Jackson, which left England a year later. Dr. Nansen's intention was to discover, if possible, the North Pole, by throwing his vessel in the pack ice above the Kara Sea, on the theory that this ice would drift him across the North Pole to the east coast of Greenland. Mr. Jackson, whose expedition received its financial support from A. C. Harnesworth, a young Englishman, had the same object in view as Dr. Nansen, but he hoped to achieve it by way of Franz Josef Land, making his journey by easy stages, establishing at different points supply stations. In the summer of 1896 S. A. Andrée, a Dane, started for Spitzbergen with the idea of discovering the North Pole by the aid of a specially constructed balloon. This air-ship had a contrivance for directing its course, composed of a rudder sail secured to the apex of the balloon and to the car by a rope, so that it could move freely, and a guide rope, which could be adjusted to different positions for 180 degrees of the circumference of the ring which was secured to the car. In July, 1896, Lieutenant Robert E. Peary sailed north to Cape York on the steamer Kite, with a small party, to get a great meteorite which he had discovered in his last expedition, and for scientific research. He had been gone but a few weeks when the steamer Windward, of the Jackson-Harnesworth expedition, returned to civilization with Dr. Nansen on board, and a few weeks later the Fram, Dr. Nansen's vessel, with all its occupants well, returned safely. Dr. Nansen's voyage proved to have been one of the most remarkable in the annals of Arctic voyages. As he intended, he threw the Fram into the pack ice moving northward, and drifted toward the Pole, constantly making discoveries valuable to science. On January 5 the vessel reached 82 degrees 24 minutes north—the farthest north latitude then reached by man. A few days later, finding that no further progress north was made, Dr. Nansen and Lieutenant Johansen left the ship and with sledges and dogs started northward over the unknown polar basin. On April 7 they reached the unparalleled record of 86 degrees 14 minutes north. The dogs were now in bad condition and the provisions running low, whereupon Dr. Nansen and companions started southward toward Franz Josef Land. Looking northward in all directions from the farthest point north there was no land visible anywhere. From horizon to horizon there was nothing but a vast frozen sea. On August 6, at 81 degrees 38 minutes north, they reached the first land—a group of islands. On the 26th they reached what afterward proved to be Franz Josef Land. Here they wintered, and, as it subsequently transpired, not far from one of Jackson's stations. Early in the spring Dr. Nansen and Mr. Jackson met in an unexpected and dramatic manner. Dr. Nansen excelled the performance of all previous explorers by nearly two hundred miles, and about that distance more would have brought him to the North Pole.

Mr. Jackson still remains in Franz Josef Land. His report, forwarded to England by the Windward, shows that he has made many discoveries of scientific importance, among them the correct delineation of the coast line of the region he is in. He expected to push toward the Pole later in the season.

Mr. Andrée's scheme failed for the year of 1896 on account of unfavorable winds and the rapid approach of winter.

Lieutenant Peary failed to bring back the meteorite he had discovered at Cape York, but by his voyage he added somewhat to the scientific knowledge of the region. He reported that an epidemic had destroyed about one-third the entire population of the native Eskimos of North Greenland.

Early in the year, Eivind Astrup, the young Norwegian who became famous through accompanying Lieutenant Peary in his first journey over the ice cap of North Greenland to Independence Bay, was found dead in the mountains of Norway. He had gone on a trip during Christmas week, 1895, and failed to return. His frozen body was found a week or ten days later.

CHANGES IN THE JUDICIARY.

An unusually large number of changes were made in the local judiciary during the year. Vacancies were caused by the death of Joseph Allison, President Judge of Court of Common Pleas No. 1; by the death of Henry Reed, Associate Judge of Court of Common Pleas No. 3, by the resignation of M. Russell Thayer, President Judge of Court of Common Pleas No. 4, who, upon his retirement, was appointed Prothonotary, to succeed the late William B. Mann, and by the resignation of Judge Hare of Common Pleas No. 2. Abraham M. Beitler, Director of Public Safety, was appointed to succeed Judge Allison, and was elected to succeed himself in November. Charles B. McMichael was appointed to succeed Judge Reed, and was also elected in November. Judge Gordon, of Common Pleas No. 4, was re-elected—the three Judges, Beitler, Gordon and McMichael, receiving the support of all parties and re-elected by unanimous vote. The two vacancies had not been filled on December, 1st.

THE people of Brazil have decided to build a new Capitol. The site chosen is on a plateau of the Perineos Mountains, 3500 feet above the sea level, free from fever, and having a climate like that of the south of France in the summer season.

THE "Sheridan Road," built by a few citizens of Chicago, is now a complete success, and doubtless the finest boulevard in the world. It provides 250 miles of smooth carriage road, extending through the most interesting country around Chicago.

THE addition of some of the various motors to road carriages is attracting a good deal of attention, and has been in a marked degree successful. Several such carriages are in use, and the Patent Office is overloaded with inventions for the purpose of supplying mankind with easier means of "running to and fro."

LOCAL CHRONOLOGY.

[From December 1, 1895, to December 1, 1896.]

1895.—December 2. John G. Johnson, Esq., was appointed a member of the Park Commission by the Board of Judges, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John R. Fell.

December 3. On the recommendation of the experts, the Fairmount Park Commission awarded the prizes for the four best plans for an art museum, to be erected on Lemon Hill. The first prize, $6,000, was given to Henry Bacon and James Brite, of New York.

December 4. The Pepper Laboratory of Clinical Medicine, the gift of Dr. William Pepper, was formally opened and presented to the Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania. Addresses were made by Dr. J. S. Billings, Dr. W. H. Welch, of Johns Hopkins University, and Provost Harrison.

December 5. A mass meeting in the Academy of Music adopted a protest against the increase of street railway fares through the abolition of free transfers by the Union Traction Company. Addresses were delivered by ex-Governor Pattison, Hon. Charles Emory Smith, the Rev. Drs. Wayland, Baker, Krauskopf and others. Chairman Martindale was instructed to appoint a committee to wait on the Traction Company and urge an immediate restoration of the old system of fares.

December 6. The Woodland Avenue Public School, Forty-sixth street and Woodland avenue, was accepted by the Board of Education.

December 9. The Pennsylvania Forestry Association held its tenth annual meeting and re-elected John Birkinbine, President, and Dr. John T. Rothrock, Secretary.

December 10. The oil-storage plant of the Crew-Levick Company, at Swanson and Jackson streets, was destroyed by fire, and thousands of gallons of oil were burned. The loss was estimated at from $50,000 to $75,000.

December 11. The committee appointed in accordance with the resolution adopted at a mass meeting to protest against the abolishment of free transfers, had a conference with President Welsh, of the Union Traction Company, who was non-committal on the question of fares, but stated that his Company intends to do the best it can for the city, the people and those who have invested their money.

—Twenty-five graduates of the Training School for Nurses of the Woman's Medical College were given diplomas.

December 13. The John H. Taggart Public School, Fifth and Porter streets, was formally opened. Mayor Warwick and Col. A. Loudon Snowden were among the speakers.

December 16. John Robinson, aged twenty-six years, shot his wife, Viola May Eckert, aged twenty-four years, at Third and Chestnut streets, and, believing that he had killed her, he shot himself and fell lifeless by her side. The woman recovered.

December 17. The strike declared against the Union Traction Company by the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees was inaugurated. Cars were run during the morning on most of the Company's lines, especially the lines of the People's Division, where almost the regular service was maintained. Disorder and rioting began early in the morning, and was continued until late in the afternoon. Motormen were pulled from their cars, windows broken and cars disabled. Mayor Warwick issued a proclamation requesting citizens to observe peace and order, and in the evening quiet was restored by no attempt being made to run cars.

December 18. Judges Pennypacker and Sulzberger delivered a decree ousting Andrew J. De Camp from his seat in Common Council from the Twenty-ninth Ward. De Camp had not filed an answer to rule, issued November 16th, requiring him to show cause why he should not be ousted, owing to his connection with an electric light company having a contract with the city. The decree was subsequently sustained by the Supreme Court.

—The street-car-strike situation was considerably improved, though there were numerous outbreaks of mob violence. A few cars were run on nearly all the Union Traction Company's lines at intervals during the day.

December 19. United States Marshal Colesberry swore in about twenty deputy marshals to secure the unimpeded running of trolley mail cars. Second Assistant Postmaster General Neilson came to the city, and after an examination of the service and consultation by telephone with the Attorney-General of the United States, obtained authority to have the deputies appointed.

December 21. Two passenger trains running in opposite directions on a single track on the Frankford branch of the Reading Railroad collided near Orthodox street. Daniel Hart, seventy years old, and George Anderson, aged sixteen, passengers on the train from Frankford, were killed, and nine others were injured.

December 23. The fifteenth annual dinner of the New England Society of Pennsylvania was held. President John H. Converse was toastmaster, and among the speakers were Major General Miles, U. S. A.; Judge Howland, of New York, and Rev. Drs. Wayland and McCook.

—The strike of street-car motormen and conductors ended, the strikers returning to work. The trouble was adjusted by General Manager Beetem and a committee of the employees, and their agreement was ratified at a mass meeting of the striking employees.

December 25. There was a tie-up on the Girard avenue line of the Union Traction Company, because the employees who had been on strike claimed that in starting the cars early in the morning preference was given by the Company to men who came here from other cities to take the strikers' places. A committee of dissatisfied employees was sent to the Company's office at Eighth and Dauphin streets, and, after a conference with officials, the trouble was adjusted and cars began running regularly again early in the afternoon. Several cars in charge of non-union men were attacked by rioters, and one motorman and one conductor were wounded and several cars were wrecked. Ten men, charged with inciting to riot, were arrested near Second street and Girard avenue during the afternoon.

December 26. A violent wind storm, accompanied by heavy rain, prevailed for about one hour. A falling chimney crashed through the roof of the Mariners' Presbyterian Church, Front and Spruce streets, and caused a panic among the congregation, but no one was seriously injured. Two houses at Fifteenth and Norris streets were unroofed, and electric light wires were blown down in many parts of the city.

— A bronze tablet inscribed "Joseph Jefferson, the actor, was born here 20th Feb., 1829. Here's your good health and your family's; may you all live long and prosper," was placed on the house at the southwest corner of Sixth and Spruce streets.

December 27. During a drunken quarrel, Ellen Green, twenty-nine years old, was murdered at 2024 Leithgow street, by her husband, Charles F. Green.

December 30. The Philadelphia Bourse was formally opened with a banquet, at which five hundred persons, representing nearly every line of trade and manufacture, were present. Addresses were made by President Bartol, United States Senator Hawley, Congressman Adams, C. Stuart Patterson and Charles Heber Clark.

December 31. The Bourse was dedicated. Addresses were delivered by Mayor Warwick, Cyrus Borgner, Chairman of the Building Committee; President George E. Bartol, Dr. William Pepper and John F. Lewis.

— Dr. Samuel G. Dixon was elected President of the Academy of Natural Sciences. He received 161 votes, while 105 were cast for Dr. Daniel G. Brinton for the same office.

1896.—January 1. Thomas Gould, colored, aged twenty-five years, was shot through the heart and instantly killed by William N. Robinson in South Camden. The shooting was the result of jealousy.

January 2. Houston Hall, the new club house for students of the University of Pennsylvania, was opened with informal exercises.

January 4. The handsome club house of the Merion Cricket Club at Haverford, with all its contents, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin. The Casino building, adjoining, was also burned. The loss was estimated at $75,000, nearly covered by insurance.

January 7. Mary Lewis Smith, whose will was probated, devised in trust to the Fidelity Trust Company $10,000 and her residence, 2025 Spruce street, subject to a life tenancy by her sisters, for establishing a summer home in memory of her son, Lewis Waln Smith, for such poor white working boys of Philadelphia as may be selected by her executors, in which to pass their vacation in the country.

January 8. At the Jackson Day dinner of the Young Men's Democratic Association, Vice-President Stevenson was the guest of honor. Among the speakers were the Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith, Senator Faulkner, of West Virginia, Democratic State Chairman Robert E. Wright, Emanuel Furth and Deputy Commissioner of Pensions H. C. Bell. David W. Sellers presided.

— Judge Butler dismissed the exceptions to and confirmed the report of the Master in the suit of the Central Transportation Company against the Pullman Palace Car Company. An award was made of $2,552,000 and eleven years' interest in favor of the Central Company and against the Pullman Company. An appeal was taken.

January 16. A purse of $18,000 was presented by some of her friends to Mrs. E. D. Gillespie, on her seventy-fifth birthday. She is to receive the interest on the sum and after her death the principal will be devoted to establishing "Elizabeth Duane Gillespie" scholarships in the School of Industrial Art.

— At the fifth annual meeting of the Trades League, President William W. Foulkrod and nearly all the members of the Board of Directors were re-elected. The membership now comprises about two thousand individuals and firms.

January 20. Common Council refused to sustain the Conference Committee which recommended that it concur in the action of Select Council in increasing the item for electric lighting from $751,000 to $800,000. Common Council's action defeated the entire appropriation to the Department of Public Safety for 1896.

— The Republican City Committee was organized. All the candidates on the Combine slate, headed by Sheriff Clement, the Chairman, were elected by a vote of 23 to 10 cast for the Anti-Combine ticket, which bore the name of Alexander Crow, Jr., for Chairman.

— The Anti-Saloon League of Philadelphia was formed at a meeting attended by twenty clergymen.

— The Board of Directors of the Union Traction Company considered the report of the Citizens' Committee which investigated the grievances of the street railway men, and President J. Lowber Welsh sent a letter to Bishop Whitaker, in which he said: "The Company will cheerfully do all in its power to carry out the recommendations, which are entirely in accord with its policy."

January 21. The Annual Charity Ball took place at the Academy of Music, realizing over $10,000, which was divided between the University of Pennsylvania Students' Aid Fund, the Southeastern Dispensary and Hospital for Women and Children, the Western Temporary Home, and the House of St. Michael and All Angels.

January 28. Aaron Mininger, aged fifty-nine years, died of typhoid pneumonia, which disease caused the death of Anna Bell, his niece, aged forty-one years, on January 26; of Sarah Bell, her mother, aged sixty-one years, on January 25, and of John Bell, her son, aged forty-five years, on January 24. All lived in the same house in Germantown.

January 30. The third floor of 132 South Third street was discovered to be ablaze, and a fireman found the charred body of Dr. Alfred L. Kennedy, formerly a widely-known physician and scientist, who occupied the apartments. It is supposed the fire was caused by an explosion of chemicals with which the Doctor was experimenting. He was in his seventy-eighth year.

February 1. The Liberty Bell reached Philadelphia from Atlanta, and was escorted to the State House by a procession, which included several commands of the National Guard, police, firemen and various organizations. In the evening a dinner was given in honor of the Mayor and other prominent citizens of Atlanta who accompanied the bell home.

February 2. A fire in the Haseltine building, on Chestnut street, above Broad, destroyed the structure as well as that of the American Baptist Publication Society adjoining. The rear of the Hotel Lafayette and the dry goods store of Homer, Le Boutillier & Co., and the Wistar mansion were also damaged. The total loss was nearly $1,500,000. A number of firemen were injured.

February 3. A Seventeenth street car collided with an Arch street car, and Motorman Edward Hammell, of the Seventeenth street car, was killed by the shock. The conductor and a passenger were slightly injured.

— The Charles H. Jarvis Memorial Library of Music, in the Drexel Institute, was opened to the public, when a concert was given by the Manuscript Society, and addresses were made by George C. Thomas and Professor Hugh A. Clark.

February 5. Josiah Richelderfer and his housekeeper, Annie Tate, became ill from the effects of poison, which a young man, who gave the name of George Barton, and was employed as a salesman, was suspected of having put in their food. The woman died, but Richelderfer recovered to find his safe robbed and Barton missing.

February 6. The storm which passed over the city did more damage than any since the flood of May, 1894. The total rainfall was 3.86 inches, and the barometer fell lower than had ever before been noted at the Weather Bureau Office. The high winds made the tides extraordinarily high, and these meeting the floods of storm water, caused extensive overflows. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station and the gas works were flooded, and the Wissahickon creek carried away two bridges. Nearly all the Delaware river ferries were obliged to stop running for several hours, and considerable damage was done by the flooding of the piers and stores on Delaware avenue.

February 13. At the annual meeting of the Associated Alumni of the Central High School, ex-Governor Pattison was re-elected President.

February 15. Abraham M. Beitler was commissioned a Judge of Common Pleas Court No. 1, and Representative Frank M. Riter was appointed to succeed him as Director of Public Safety.

THE INVASION OF THE TRANSVAAL

THE abortive raid of Dr. Jameson into the Transvaal was one of the sensational events of the year. Dr. Jameson, acting as administrator of the great new protectorate of South Africa known as Rhodesia (after Cecil J. Rhodes), crossed the border into the Transvaal, or South African Republic, with a mounted force of 800 men. The Dutch yeomanry engaged with the invaders, and after heavy fighting Jameson was obliged to surrender. The British colony is ruled politically by the South African Chartered Company, of which Cecil Rhodes, who was also Prime Minister of Cape Colony, is manager. Dr. Jameson was his administrative agent. The Transvaal, or South African Republic, is occupied by Boers, or Dutch farmers, who have established for themselves absolute independence, except that under an agreement, made in 1884, the relations of the Dutch Republic with foreign countries is to be in conformity with the will of Great Britain. The Republic is ruled by President Paul Kruger, a man of great force, whose sterling honesty has proved more than a match for Chamberlain's diplomacy. The discovery of gold in the Transvaal led to the British invasion. Thousands of adventurers, chiefly from England, flocked to the country of the Boers in search of gold. They are known as Uitlanders, or foreigners, and though they outnumber the Boers four to one are not allowed to take part in the government unless they become naturalized. The Englishmen and other foreigners sought to retain their home citizenship and at the same time exercise the right of suffrage in the land of the Boers. Cecil Rhodes appears to have sent an armed force to the border to protect the Uitlanders in case of necessity, and then the Uitlanders called for help, whereupon Dr. Jameson moved towards Johannesburg, as before related. The invasion was promptly disavowed by the Home Office. Dr. Jameson was superseded, Mr. Rhodes resigned as Prime Minister of Cape Colony, and subsequently President Kruger gave up Dr. Jameson and his companions, who were taken to England for trial. One event of the flurry that aroused a great deal of feeling was the sending by Emperor William, of Germany, of a congratulatory telegram to President Kruger. Great Britain actually prepared for war, but nothing came of the incident. The Uitlanders are increasing in numbers so much faster than the Boers that ultimately they will no doubt get control of the brave little Dutch Republic. For the present, however, President Kruger has maintained the independence of the Republic. Severe sentences were passed upon Uitlanders—American and English—convicted of conspiring against the Republic, but the sentences were afterwards commuted. President Kruger about the same time published documentary evidence showing that Cecil Rhodes and others were engaged in an attempt to overthrow the Transvaal government.

MR. P. B. DELANY, at a lecture given in New York, sent a message over a telegraph wire at the rate of over seventeen hundred words a minute. This feat is performed by first perforating a continuous tape, from which the signals are transmitted at unlimited speed.

As two Magistrates were to be chosen, Devlin, R., and Wilhere, D., were both elected. Carr, Pro., received 1016 votes, and Farrow, Peo., 267, for City Solicitor. Lutz, Peo., received 443 for Magistrate.

AN observatory has been successfully completed on the summit of Mont Blanc at the height of 15,780 feet. Instead of being movable, like an ordinary telescope, the telescope on Mont Blanc is fixed in the direction of the polar star. A movable mirror is made to reflect any object desired down the tube to the eye-piece for the study of the observer.

AN ice bicycle has been invented and patented by two men in Chicago. The inventors claim to have made a mile in one minute and twenty seconds on the ice.

In some of the States Bryan and Watson received many votes. They have been added to the vote for Bryan and Sewell in the above table, so that the vote for Bryan represents the combined vote of Democrats and Middle-of-the Road Populists. In Texas the Bryan and Sewall vote was 288,323; the Bryan and Watson, 79,966; total, 368,289; and the vote for McKinley, 162,506. In the Populist States of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming women voted, almost if not quite doubling the majority for Bryan in those States. The total Prohibition vote is estimated to have been between 80,000 and 100,000, being highest in Pennsylvania. The Socialist vote was insignificant—being smaller than in 1892. Bryan gained 16 per cent. on Cleveland's vote in 1892; but McKinley gained 36 per cent. on the vote for Harrison in the same year. The vote was even more decisive than may appear on casual inspection. If every close State had gone for Bryan, McKinley would have been elected with four electoral votes to spare.

THE PHILADELPHIA COMMERCIAL MUSEUM.

The Philadelphia Commercial Museum, No. 233 South Fourth street, is a department of the Philadelphia Museums, established by ordinance of Councils June, 1894. It is governed by a Board of Trustees, whose membership includes the Governor of Pennsylvania, the Mayor of Philadelphia, several State and city officials, and fourteen leading citizens of Philadelphia. The Museum is also under the general supervision of an Advisory Board composed of official delegates appointed by the representative commercial bodies of the Latin-American and other countries, or directly by their various governments.

The Museum comprises collections of natural products from all countries of the world such as have already entered our markets, or may be made available for them, also all goods manufactured abroad for markets in which American manufacturers should compete.

The objects of the institution are generally to bring before American manufacturers the resources of the world and to extend the sale of their finished products.

The most important parts of the exhibits from Mexico, Central and South America, Australia, South Africa, and many Asiatic countries, at the World's Columbian Exposition, were at its close brought to Philadelphia. Similar products have been secured from many other countries. These collections are constantly being extended and renewed.

One department of the Museum is devoted to an exhibit of the raw products of the world. These represent almost every available source of supply on which our manufacturers may profitably draw. They are accompanied by all obtainable data concerning their commercial value. For instance, textile manufacturers here find samples of wool, silk, cotton, vegetable fibres, etc., from every foreign country, comprising the most varied and complete collection of its kind in existence. In the same way are displayed thousands of samples of wood, embracing the woods of the world, in sufficient size and quantity to judge of their value in American industries. The collections of hides, skins, leather, tanning materials, dye stuffs, oils, medicinal drugs and herbs, minerals, etc., are very complete, and enable the dealers in these products to keep fully posted upon all possible sources of supply.

The scientific and experimental department has been organized in order to make a careful study of the scientific and economic value of all products collected. Careful examinations and tests are made and new articles are subjected to investigation for the purpose of determining their practical value.

Another department of the Museum is devoted to the exhibit of foreign manufactures. This exhibit comprises samples of merchandise now being sold in foreign countries, especially in the markets of Latin-American, Australian, South African and other foreign countries. The object is to show the American manufacturer what his competitor is doing in the foreign trade of other countries. Each sample is accompanied by full information concerning the weight, width, length, pattern and manufacturer's prices and discounts. With this information the American manufacturer is put in a position to judge of any market as to whether it would be advisable for him to attempt to claim a share of the trade. The exhibits in this department cover a large number of industries.

In the library of the Museum are kept on file many hundred publications on trade, commerce and finance, including every important journal in the world. Business directories and books of reference in all languages are kept on file. Statistical publications, consular reports and official government reports are being received from all countries. By an elaborate system of indexing this mass of information is made readily available for American business men.

An important work of the Museum is carried on through its Bureau of Information. It is the work of this Bureau to gather detailed information concerning the state of trade in every market in the world.

The Museum has also many foreign correspondents and delegates. Similar reports are being received from a large number of local Chambers of Commerce in many foreign countries.

The Museum is open to the public every weekday.

ELECTIONS IN 1897.

In 1897 general elections will be held in Philadelphia as follows:

For city and ward officers on Tuesday, February 16th. To be chosen: Magistrates, members of Select and Common Councils, School Directors and Constables.

Last day for payment of taxes, January 16th.

Last day for naturalization, January 16th.

For State and county officers on Tuesday, November 2d. To be chosen: State Treasurer, Auditor General, City Treasurer, Register of Wills, Judges of Common Pleas No. 1, No. 2 and No. 4; Judge of Orphans' Court.

Last day for payment of taxes, October 2d.

Last day for naturalization, October 2d.

QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTORS.

Residence.—A voter must have resided in the State one year, and in the election district or division for at least two months, before the election. Where a citizen previously a resident has removed and returned, he must have resided in the State six months before the election.

Taxes.—No citizen can vote who is over twenty-two years old without having previously paid a State and county tax within two years, assessed at least two months before the election, and paid, at the latest, one month before the election.

Age.—Every male citizen between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age, having the proper qualifications of residence, native birth, or claiming the naturalization of his father during his minority, may vote without being assessed.

Naturalized citizens may vote if they have the qualifications of residence in the State and district and payment of taxes, and have been naturalized one month before the election.

Proof of Right to Vote.—If the name is not on the registry of voters, the person claiming must make affidavit of his claims, and prove his right by at least one qualified voter of the district or division. Proof of payment of taxes is made by producing the tax-receipt or by affidavit that it has been lost, destroyed or never received. A naturalized citizen must produce his naturalization papers, unless he has been for five consecutive years a voter in the district.

SPORTING RECORDS OF 1896.

FOOT-BALL.

For the third successive year the college football season of 1896 closed without the question of the championship being decided, because, as in previous years, all the claimants for the title did not meet in open competition for it as required by the rule governing championships. Princeton, however, made the best record of any of the big colleges, the only thing to mar an otherwise absolutely clean record being a tie game she played with Lafayette early in the season, in which neither side scored. The only blot on Pennsylvania's record is a defeat administered to her by Lafayette, also early in the season. While later in the season Lafayette would have been outclassed by both Princeton and Pennsylvania, had the latter played the Eastonians again, the records must nevertheless stand as made, and as the blot on Princeton's record is a tie game, and that on Pennsylvania's a defeat, the Tigers have a slightly better record than the Quakers, because a defeat counts for more than a tie game. But for these Lafayette games, which were mere accidents, both Princeton and Pennsylvania would have clean records of victories. Harvard has four defeats charged against her; and while Yale has only one, she escaped two—one at the hands of the Indians and the other from the Elizabeth Athletic Club through the incompetent or unfair refereeing of Mr. Hickok, a Yale man, which stands out to her discredit. While Yale's record is better than Harvard's, the latter, in the opinion of most critics, finished the season with a stronger team than the former had. Harvard was most unfortunate in having from three to six of her regular men laid up with injuries all the time until the last game of the season, when for the only time she was able to have out her full strength. Cornell went through identically the same experience. Harvard's defeats by the Graduates and Boston A. A. teams were sustained when she played teams made up mostly of substitute players. The scores of the "Big Four" for the season are appended:

The annual game between Haverford and Swarthmore was played on the latter's grounds on November 18, and resulted in a victory for Haverford—42 to 6.

The annual game between Lehigh and Lafayette was not played because the former protested four of the latter's players on the ground of professionalism. Lafayette would not play without the four players that were protested, hence there was no game.

Dartmouth won the championship of the New England Intercollegiate Association.

In the Philadelphia Interacademic Association Cheltenham won first place; Penn Charter, second; and Germantown Academy, third.

At the close of the season the Baltimore and Cleveland played a series for the Temple Cup, and the champions won all four of the games played. Cleveland's pitchers were weakened by the hard campaign the last half of the season, besides which Cuppy had a finger broken and Tebeau was injured, therefore the Forest City players were in no condition to do themselves justice.

Time of quarters, 30 3/4, 30, 29 1/2, 31 1/4, showing the middle half mile to have been paced in 59 1/2 seconds. In a race by a gelding, 2.02 1/2, Robert J., Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 6, 1894. By a stallion, against time, 2.00 1/2, John R. Gentry, Rigly Park, Portland, Maine, Sept. 24, 1896. On September 27, at Sioux City, John R. Gentry paced the last quarter of a mile in 28 1/2 seconds. By a mare, 2.06 1/2, Lottie Lorraine, Pearl C., Columbus, O., Aug. 4, 1896. Fastest two consecutive heats, 2.03 1/2, 2.01 1/2, James R. Gentry, Glen Falls, Sept. 10, 1896. Fastest three consecutive heats, 2.02 1/2, 2.03 1/2, 2.03 1/4, Star Pointer, Mystic Park, Medford, Mass., Sept. 18, 1896.

CHESS.

In no year was so much interest shown in chess, and so many international contests held, as in 1896. The St. Petersburg Chess Club arranged a tournament between the prize winners at Hastings, but as Tarrasch was unable to compete a quadrangular tourney took place, in which Pillsbury, Lasker, Steinitz and Tschigorin took part. Following this Steinitz met and defeated Shiffers by the score of 8 to 6, three games being drawn.

The German Ochach Bund selected Nuremberg as the place for the next tournament, but the local chess club took charge of it and arranged an international contest, which was probably the best ever held. As at St. Petersburg, Lasker was again successful, and besides winning $750, also captured the silver cup and plate offered by the Prince Regent.

Following the tournament at Nuremberg a contest of international importance was held at Budapest, as an attraction to the Millennial Festivals held in that city. The Emperor-King had offered a silver statuette valued at $800 as a trophy, and so sharply contested were the games that the outcome was a tie between Tschigorin and Charonsek, with a score of 8 1/2 games each. The American, Pillsbury, finished third. In playing off the tie, Tschigorin won with three games to Charonsek's one.

Pillsbury, who last year won first honors at the Hastings tournament, where he made the splendid score of 16 1/2 to 4 1/2, was not quite so successful this year, yet he proved to be one of America's leading experts. At St. Petersburg he succeeded in defeating Lasker and Tschigorin, his not being placed better than third being due to the defeat he suffered from the veteran Steinitz.

At Nuremberg he defeated Lasker, Steinitz, Tschigorin and Tarrasch, but he lost to Blackburne, Marocry, Shiffers and Walbrodt, thus being tied with Tarrasch, with whom he divided third and fourth prizes.

The international match played by cable between America and England resulted in a victory for this country. The Brooklyn Chess Club, which managed the affair, thus holds the George Newness Cup for the ensuing year. The results of the games were as follows :

Showalter won the championship of the United States by defeating Lipschutz, in a series of games, by 7 to 4. He also successfully defended his title in a match with Emil Kemeny, the score being: Showalter 7; Kemeny, 4; drawn, 4. Barry also challenged him, but he won by the score of 7 to 2, five games being drawn.

Mordecai Morgan won the George W. Childs and Dr. Frazier cups, which are annually competed for by Philadelphia amateurs.

In the New York State Chess Association tournament, held at Ontario Beach, N. Y., S. Warren Bampton, of Philadelphia, won first prize, and E. S. Maguire, also of this city, won the solving contest at the same tourney.

WHIST.

The sixth annual congress of the American Whist League was held at the Oriental Hotel, Manhattan Beach, N. Y., June 22-27, 1896. The trophies offered were won as follows :

Hamilton Trophy—The Hamilton Club of Philadelphia.

A. W. L. Challenge Trophy—The Whist Club of New York.

Minneapolis Trophy—The Baltimore Whist Club.

Brooklyn Trophy—The New England Whist Association.

The A. W. L. Challenge Trophy becomes the property of the club first winning it twenty times.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

Noise and Naps.—It is a mistake to try to accustom a young baby to noise; manage so as to have a quiet place for him while he takes his naps, and they will be of long duration. Never rock a baby. There is nothing in the motion that will add to his comfort or happiness, while it certainly will detract from yours when you find that, after a time, he will positively refuse to go to sleep without the accustomed rocking.

Simple Cosmetics.—With many French and German ladies the cucumber is a sovereign cosmetic. They buy cold cream, beat it in a plate until soft, and drop in the juice of a boiled cucumber. Milk is a very valuable cosmetic, and may be used freely to bathe the face in. Lanoline cream, which is considered excellent as an emollient for the skin, may be made as follows: Obtain half a pint of Lanoline and half a pint of pure oil of sweet almonds. Then, putting a tablespoonful on a china plate, add an equal quantity of almond oil; mix thoroughly, and add from half a teaspoonful to a teaspoonful of tincture of benzoin, until the paste drips from the knife—a steel case-knife is best for the mixing process—in about the consistency of very thick cream. All three of these ingredients are absolutely harmless. It should be rubbed in at night.

Earache.—The following cure may be tried in cases of severe earache when ordinary remedies have failed. Get two ounces of dried arnica flowers, and put them into two small bags. Put half a pint of whisky into a small saucepan on the stove, and when it is heated dip one of the bags into it, and apply to the ear of the sufferer. As soon as one bag begins to cool, and the steam stops coming from it, change it for the other bag which is heating in the whisky.

Brooms.—If brooms are wetted in boiling suds once a week they will become very tough, will not cut the carpet, will last longer, and sweep like new brooms.

Screws.—If a screw be soaped before it is put into wood it is much easier to put in. The application of a red-hot iron to the head of a rusty screw will enable one to remove it easily, if the screw-driver is used before the screw has had time to cool.

Washing Paint.—If, when washing paint, you would use a little powdered whiting on your wet cloth, you would find all dirt and grease disappear at once without injuring the most delicate paint.

To Remove Stains from the Hands.—Ink-stains, dye-stains, etc., can be immediately removed by dipping the finger in water (warm water is best), and then rubbing on the stain a small portion of oxalic acid powder and cream-of-tartar, mixed together in equal quantities, and kept in a box. When the stain disappears, wash the hands with fine soap or almond cream. A small box of this stain-powder should be kept always in the washstand drawer, unless there are small children in the family, in which case it should be put out of their reach, as it is a poison if swallowed.

Cooking Odors.—A tin cup filled with vinegar, and placed on the back of the stove, will prevent the spread of cooking odors throughout the house.

To Preserve and Clean Linoleum and Kindred Floor-cloths.—When first laid, sponge over with ale or beer, and wipe dry. This should be done six alternate days, to fill in the pores. Clean with warm water once a week (no soap or soda), and when dry sponge with ale as above. This method is especially needed after ceilings have been cleaned and whitened when floor-cloths are laid, and the white dust trodden in. The ale brings back tone and color immediately, after first cleaning with warm water. Linoleum is also preserved by washing once a week with milk.

How to Preserve Clothes Pins.—Clothes pins boiled a few minutes and quickly dried, once or twice a month, become more flexible and durable. Clothes lines will last longer, and keep in better order, if treated in the same way.

How to Clean Looking-Glasses.—Sweep away the dirt with a soft brush or silk handkerchief. Then sponge with a little spirit of wine to remove all dust; and dust with the finest whiting, or blue powder; then rub it off quickly with a cloth, and polish lightly with a silk handkerchief. Clean the gilt frame with a little cotton-wool.

Paper Bags.—It is well that housewives should know that paper bags are made of a compound of rags, lime, glue and similar substances, mixed with chemicals and acids. When dry these can do no harm; but if allowed to become damp, a paper bag is unfit to touch articles of food. Never, therefore, keep food that is of a damp or juicy nature in a paper bag.

To Peel Tomatoes.—A better way to peel ripe tomatoes than that commonly used is to put them into a frying-basket, and plunge the basket for a second into boiling water, to loosen the skins. This is particularly the best way when one is preparing a quantity of tomatoes, and wishes to keep them all firm and hard. If the boiling water is poured over them in a pan, the tomatoes at the bottom are quite sure to become soft before they are peeled.

To Sweeten Butter.—If you have butter that is not quite sweet, put it in an enameled saucepan with a little salt and a tiny piece of soda, place over the fire and bring to a boil. Turn it into a stone jar and set it in a cool place. The butter will be found perfectly sweet and not too salt for cooking. The impurities will settle at the bottom of the jar.

The Uses of a Raw Potato.—To clean gilt frames, cut a raw potato in two, rub the frames with it, and polish them thoroughly with a soft, clean duster. Raw potato, with a little bathbrick, will remove stains from steel knives and forks, and stains can also be taken out of tinware and brass in the same way.

Flowers for the Sick.—When choosing flowers for the sick be sure they are perfectly fresh. Do not send too many, but make it up in frequency and variety, and avoid those that are very fragrant.

How to Make Cold Cream.—Take half a pound of the best lard, and a little essence of lemon. Put these in a bowl and pour boiling water upon them, then set aside, and when cold pour off the water. Twice repeat this process of scalding, then beat to a soft cream with a fork. Put it in jars, and it is ready for use.

HOUSEHOLD INSECTS.

The United States Government has come to the relief of good housekeepers by publishing a pamphlet telling them all about "Household Insects," their life history, their habits, and, what is of special importance, how to get rid of them. The pamphlet is "Bulletin No. 4, New Series, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Division of Entomology." We have space here only to tell of some of the remedies officially recommended.

MOSQUITOES.

The place of honor in the pamphlet is given to the mosquito, of which twenty different species are described. They inhabit all parts of the United States. Of the remedies for mosquitoes, "present and accounted for," thorough screening of houses and mosquito bars about the beds are declared best, with the burning of pyrethrum powder and the catching of mosquitoes on the ceilings with kerosene in cups next best. But the most satisfactory of all remedies are to be found in the destruction of the larvæ or the abolition of the breeding places. Mosquitoes breed in still water. The breeding places should be drained, or small fish introduced into them, or the water (if in a tank) should be agitated mechanically, or the surface of ponds, tanks, etc., should be covered with a thin film of kerosene. All of these remedies have been proved to be effective. The kerosene treatment appears to be very efficient, killing the female mosquitoes before their eggs are laid, as well as the larvæ and pupæ.

FLEAS.

The flea which commonly overruns houses is the flea of the dog or cat. Flea larvæ will not develop where they are disturbed. Frequent sweeping of rooms prevents their development, and they usually overrun houses only when the latter are closed or neglected. The adult flea is too frisky to be easily overcome even by government experts, but benzine is sometimes effective. Uncle Sam tried a piece of raw beef in the centre of a piece of sticky fly paper without the slightest success, notwithstanding newspaper recommendations; but he gives qualified approval to a plan tried by Prof. Gage, of Cornell, who tied fly paper, sticky-side out, about the legs of the janitor of the college, and required him to walk up and down the floor of the infested room. The unsuspecting fleas jumped for his ankles, as is their custom, and got stuck there.

BED BUGS.

With an apology for mentioning such a disgusting human parasite, the bed bug is introduced. Notwithstanding his bad reputation the bed bug appears to be of an ancient family, and by reason of his association with man for several thousands of years has developed a wonderful degree of intelligence which enables him to play hide and seek with great success. According to the Government report, the bed bug, on account of its habits of concealment, is usually beyond the reach of powders. Benzine or kerosene introduced into all crevices with small brushes or feathers, or by the aid of syringes, will usually exterminate them. Corrosive sublimate and turpentine may be used in the same way. Hot water is also effective. Eternal cleanliness is the price of freedom from bed bugs; but even this does not always suffice, as they are liable to be introduced into the best households by travelers, or to escape thereto from a careless neighbor's domicile. Fumigation with brimstone is an effective remedy. All metals liable to be affected by the fumes are to be removed from the room, every aperture, even the keyhole, is to be stopped up, and four ounces of brimstone in a dish, put in a larger vessel, set on fire. The room should be left closed for four or five hours and then aired. The common house cockroaches and little red ants are deadly enemies of bed bugs—but these, if regarded as remedies, are about as bad as the disease.

CENTIPEDES AND CRICKETS.

The house centipede can be kept in order by the free use of pyrethrum powder about water pipes and in storerooms. The centipede is really useful in keeping a check upon other household pests, but is nevertheless unpopular.

The house cricket, for which some people have a sentimental regard, is sometimes very destructive of woolen clothing, especially if it be damp. The Government observers noting the fondness of crickets for liquids, and having regard for the sentimental consideration it inspires, suggests a pleasant remedy. A vessel containing beer is to be provided, into which the intoxicated crickets will fall and drown themselves, being first rendered "dead to the world."

ROACHES.

The Government has not met with much success in dealing with roaches, as they generally refuse to take poison. If a room can be made nearly airtight the roach nuisance can be abated by the use of poisonous gases, notably bisulphide of carbon. Traps are also used successfully. The simplest of these is a deep jar partly filled with stale beer, against which a few sticks are placed bent over so that they project into the jar for a few inches. The roaches in search of beer mount the sticks and fall into the jar. A remedy tried by Edison is not mentioned in the pamphlet. Edison relates that his telegraph office was overrun by roaches, and that his first invention was an arrangement of wires just far enough apart to be spanned by a roach. When the latter touched both wires he short-circuited a battery and was killed by the shock.

ANTS.

If the nests of ants can be discovered they can be exterminated by pouring into each of a number of openings an ounce or two of bisulphide of carbon, and then closing the holes. If they are to be destroyed in the house they should be attracted to small bits of sponge moistened with sweetened water. The sponges can be collected frequently, and the ants in them killed by immersion in hot water.

MITES.

Nothing but the utmost cleanliness will prevent the appearance of mites in cheese and ham. When a pantry is infested it should be cleaned, fumigated with sulphur and washed with kerosene emulsion.

These are the remedies for household pests officially indorsed. That they "meet a long-felt want" may be judged from the fact that the Department of Agriculture receives from five hundred to six hundred letters a month, a very considerable number of which relate to these insect pests.

ECLIPSES IN 1898.

In the year 1898 there will be six Eclipses—three of the Sun and three of the Moon.

First: A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, visible at Philadelphia. This Eclipse will be visible from 6 P.M., January 7, to 10 P.M., January 7. About one-seventh of the Moon's diameter, will be obscured.

Second: A Total Eclipse of the Sun, invisible at Philadelphia. This Eclipse will be visible over most of the Eastern Continent and a large part of the Indian Ocean, January 22, 1898.

Third: A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, invisible at Philadelphia. Generally visible in Europe, Asia and Africa. Nearly the whole of the Moon will be obscured, and the Eclipse will extend over about five hours, beginning about 7 P.M., Greenwich Mean Time, July 3, 1898.

Fourth: An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, invisible at Philadelphia. This Eclipse will be visible July 18, 1898, and will be almost entirely confined to the South Pacific Ocean.

Fifth: A Partial Eclipse of the Sun, invisible at Philadelphia. A very small part of the Sun will be eclipsed December 13, about noon, Greenwich Time.

Sixth: A Total Eclipse of the Moon, visible at Philadelphia, lasting in all its phases over six hours. It will begin December 28, between 1 and 2 A.M., and end about 8 A.M., December 28, 1898. The shadow of the Earth will a good deal more than cover the Moon.

Fixed and Movable Feasts, Fasts, etc., 1898.

SATURN (♄) a few degrees from the MOON (♃) April 10, A.M.

MERCURY (☿) greatest elongation east April 10, P.M.

MARS (♂) a few degrees from the MOON (♃) April 17, A.M.

MERCURY (☿) and VENUS (♀) three degrees apart April 18, A.M.

THE PLANETS IN 1898.

MERCURY (☿) will have its greatest elongation west, and be visible before sunrise January 28, May 27, and September 21, and will have its greatest elongation east, visible before sunset, April 10, August 8, and December 3.

VENUS (♀) will be Morning Star during the first part of the year, setting before the Sun. After March 1 it will set after the Sun and be Evening Star until the end of November. Will be most brilliant in the last of October.

MARS (♂) rises about 5 A.M. in March and rises earlier every night until it comes to the meridian about 2 A.M., December 30. It will be mainly visible in the early morning throughout the year.

JUPITER (♃) will be visible in the evening until October, when it will be visible only in the morning, coming to the meridian about 8 A.M. in December.

SATURN (♄) will be visible in the evening from June until September, when it will set about 9 P.M. Visible in the morning the rest of the year.

THERE has been a dispute for years as to whether the bite of the Gila Monster is poisonous or not. Prof. Van Denburg in a lecture before the Academy of Sciences, San Francisco, stated that the saliva of the lower jaw is poisonous and not that of the upper jaw. While one would produce death, the other was harmless; and this difference would account for the various accounts of the nature of the bite.

HAJAK, of Vienna, says that smokers are less liable to diseases of the throat than non-smokers, and Schiff says that smoking should be forbidden in bacteriological laboratories because it hinders the development of bacteria.

THE EPHEMERIS.

THE Ephemeris for the present year gives, as heretofore, the day of the year, the day of the month, and day of the week in civil time, according to which the day begins at midnight. Next are given the time of sunrise, the time before or after noon at which the sun's center souths, and the time of sunset. The times of sunrise and sunset are in each case for the upper limb or edge of the sun, corrected for refraction. They are more accurate than usually found in popular almanacs, and will give the time with sufficient accuracy for ordinary purposes. A surveyor's level will give the horizon where the upper edge of the sun should be at the time given in the almanac. If the telescope of the leveling instrument inverts, the upper edge will, of course, be apparently the lower one. Next are given the times of rising, southing and setting of the moon's center, and also its age, or the number of days elapsed since new moon. Then follow the times of high and low water for Philadelphia (Walnut street wharf being the point at which the times are taken), which are now both derived from the elaborate tables of the U. S. Coast Survey. Lastly is given a collection of interesting astronomical phenomena for the year. The local and standard times of Philadelphia are practically the same in all cases except in the column of sun "souths." In this case 38 seconds should be subtracted from the time A.M. and 38 seconds added to the time P.M. where the nearest second is required in standard time.

SINCE 1860 the sidewalks of Prague and other cities of Bohemia have been made in a mosaic of light and dark limestone which are considered to have a pleasing appearance.

THE authorities of Glasgow, Scotland, have decided to use the overhead trolley system, after thorough investigation.

ELEPHANTS are remarkably useful in the lumber yards of Burmah. They are taught to receive the rafts of immense logs that come down the Jorawaddy, lift them out of the water, and pile them up in their places in the lumber yard. They also take the logs up and place them at the saw, and take the boards away and pile them up when finished.

MR. PERCIVAL LOWELL, in Arizona, is believed to have obtained more distinct views of the disk of Venus, than have ever been had before. He finds that Venus keeps the same side always towards the Sun. Its rotation on its axis is made in the same time that its revolution around the Sun is made.

THE KLONDYKE GOLD FIELDS.

In the summer of 1896 information reached the United States of a discovery of a great gold field on the branches of the Yukon River. The territory was at first supposed to be in Alaska, but later information showed it to be just over the border in the Northwest Territory under the dominion of Canada. The discovery was made by American prospectors from Alaska in the summer of 1896, but the Arctic winter shut off communication with the outside world, and nearly a year had elapsed before the adventurers of the United States heard of it. Great excitement followed; but the difficulties of getting to the scene of the discoveries—the Klondyke region—and the certain hardships that would be encountered near the Arctic circle, prevented such a rush as would have followed the announcement of a similar find in a more hospitable country. Almost fabulous stories of fortunes made in a month were told, and do not seem to have been greatly exaggerated. As many people as could get transportation started for the gold fields—between 5000 and 10,000—and many more prepared to start in the spring of 1898. Many speculative companies were also formed in the East, ostensibly to develop the gold fields. The region is reached by steamers up the Yukon River, or overland via Chilcoot Pass from Sitka—a difficult and dangerous route. All provisions have to be transported, as the country is extremely inhospitable. The center and capital of the Klondyke region is Dawson City, nineteen hundred miles from St. Michael's, at the mouth of the Yukon River.

ONE of the amusements of the Tennessee Centennial Exposition was a giant see-saw, the cars of which were lifted alternately to a height of 150 feet above the ground.

THE MONETARY COMMISSION.

On April 12th, President McKinley appointed Senator Wolcott, ex-Vice-President Stevenson, and Colonel Charles J. Paine, all bimetallicists, as delegates to an international monetary conference. They promptly proceeded to Europe in order to conduct negotiations for the calling of a monetary conference which would agree on a programme greatly increasing the monetary use of silver. Their reception in Europe was very encouraging, but France would only consent to an opening of the question on condition that England should enter into the agreement.

In response to the appeal of our Commissioners, the Governor of the Bank of England announced at the semi-annual meeting of the Board of Governors of the Bank, on September 16th, that in the event of France opening its mints to the free coinage of silver, and the price of silver being satisfactory, then the Bank of England was willing to hold its legal limit of silver in reserve, viz.: one-fifth of the bullion held against its note issue. This half promise seemed to encourage our Commissioners, but on October 20th they received their reply from the British Government. Lord Salisbury said then, officially, that the Government was not able to reopen the Indian mints to silver at present, and that therefore they could not see the desirability of an International Monetary Conference. The American Ambassador at Berlin says that Germany's action toward bimetallicism depends upon England's. The action taken by Great Britain practically destroys all hope of an International Monetary Conference, at least for some time to come.

An electrical tramway seventy-five miles in length is nearly completed in Mexico. It extends between Mexico, Cordova and Jalata.

THE export of butter from the United States to Europe has risen from 9,000,000 to about 22,000,000 pounds in one year.

PRESIDENT DIAZ OF MEXICO.

President Porfirio Diaz, who has given Mexico the most stable and in other respects the best government that country has ever known, has entered upon his fifth term, which will not expire until the autumn of 1900. He has been President continuously since 1884, and also served from 1876 to 1880. It is alleged by his enemies that he is a mere dictator; that elections are not free; but it is quite certain that no unusual restraints are put upon the newspapers expressing these opinions. Diaz, on the other hand, appears to be extremely popular. An attempt to assassinate him in the fall of 1897 was followed by the lynching of his assailant. Diaz has expelled the religious orders from Mexico, although nine-tenths of the people are Roman Catholics, and he has converted many of the buildings formerly belonging to the church into public schools, where the English language is taught. The next generation will be better fitted than any which has preceded it for self-government. The entire nation is now governed by law, bandits have disappeared, and there are few States in the Union where better order is maintained. Under Diaz, moreover, there has been a great diversification of the industries, and there is altogether a very bright prospect before Mexico under the administration of President Diaz.

THE Electrical Review says that there is more money invested in electrical industry in this country than in all the rest of the globe. Not less than $1,750,000,000 is invested in that industry in the United States.

SOME Brazilian beetles have mandibles strong enough to cut metal. A few specimens placed in a glass jar having a pewter cover had in forty-eight hours cut holes large enough to put their heads through.

THE NEW TARIFF.

Work on the new Tariff bill was begun immediately after the assembling of Congress in December, 1896. It was therefore in an advanced stage of preparation when Congress assembled in special session, March 15, 1897. After the Dingley bill, as it was called, had passed the House the Senate Finance Committee amended it materially, but ultimately the Senate accepted the greater part of the Dingley bill. Finally a committee of conference made radical changes, and the bill as finally passed was in important features a new measure. Compared with the previous law it is a radically protective measure. The duties have been generally increased, and hides and wool have been taken from the free list. The tax on hides is only 15 per cent. ad valorem; that on wool is highly protective to the wool growers, but wool dealers and manufacturers managed to import a year's supply while the tariff was under discussion. The most important schedule was the tariff on sugar, which was ultimately fixed in the interest of the Sugar Trust at a higher rate than was allowed by Dingley, but at a less rate than was proposed by the Senate committee, which guarded the interests of the Trust. A slight change in the method of computing the tax made in conference committee is estimated to have been worth $1,000,000 to the Sugar Trust. The passage of the bill on July 24 and the adjournment of Congress were followed at once by a revival of business.

THE human heart is a force pump six inches in length and four inches in diameter. It beats seventy times a minute, and all the blood in the body, which is about thirty pounds, passes through it in about three minutes.

FOREIGN matches are likely to be supplied in future from Japan instead of Sweden. It is said that after supplying the home market Japan will be able to send 2,500,000,000 to the rest of the world.

AMENDING NEW JERSEY'S CONSTITUTION.

At a special election, held in New Jersey on Tuesday, September 28th, three amendments to the Constitution of the State were submitted to the people. These amendments had been passed by two successive Legislatures as required by law, and the ballot provided for each voter to pass on the separate amendments. The total vote was very light, and the official returns were very much delayed. However, two of the three were adopted, the one to fail being the one which provided for partial woman suffrage.

The first amendment is directed against lotteries and gambling on race tracks, but is so broad that it will put a check upon many minor forms of gambling. Its text is as follows:

"Amend Paragraph 2 of Section VII of Article IV so as to read as follows:

"2. No lottery shall be authorized by the Legislature or otherwise in this State, and no ticket in any lottery shall be bought or sold within this State, nor shall pool-selling, book-making or gambling of any kind be authorized or allowed within this State, nor shall any gambling device, practice or game of chance now prohibited by law be legalized, or the remedy, penalty or punishment now provided therefor be in any way diminished." This was carried by a majority of 802.

The second amendment relates to appointments to office, and is intended to put a check upon the Governor's power to appoint during the recess of the Legislature persons who have been nominated by the Senate. Practically it is of little effect.

As 961 rejected ballots were cast, there is some doubt as to the fate of the anti-gambling amendment, Senator Edwards contesting the election on the ground that these ballots were irregularly rejected. They were rejected because they were marked with colored ink or pencils. The general election law requires that ballots shall be marked with black ink or black pencils. The special law under which this election was held does not specify the color of the markings, but the ballots marked with red or blue pencils were, nevertheless, rejected, and their rejection changed the result of the election.

ASSASSINATION OF PREMIER CANOVAS, OF SPAIN.

On Sunday, August 8th, Senor Canovas del Castillo, Prime Minister of Spain, was shot and killed by an Italian anarchist named Angiollio. The assassination took place at Santa Agueda, a small watering resort, where the Premier was sojourning during the parliamentary vacation. The object of the murderer is not fully known, but it is supposed that it was of purely individual origin.

Senor Canovas had been Spain's foremost statesman for many years, and was the prime factor in securing to the present reigning family its position in Spain. The Queen Regent, immediately upon receipt of the news of the death of the Prime Minister, designated General Marcelo Azcarraga, the Minister of War, as the head of the Cabinet. The Ministry as so constituted lasted throughout the summer, but it was recognized as being only a temporary arrangement. It was apparent that General Azcarraga could not unite the Conservatives, and on September 29th the Cabinet resigned. On October 4th, Senor Sagasta, the Liberal leader, formed a Liberal Cabinet. The new Prime Minister announced as his policy great activity against the Cuban insurgents, reforms and the introduction of home rule in Cuba, and the recall of General Weyler.

On October 31 General Blanco arrived at Havana and assumed command as Captain General. General Weyler sailed the same day for Spain, but was delayed by an accident to the machinery of his vessel.

ALUMINUM cannot be engraved in its ordinary condition, but if moistened with a mixture of rum and olive oil all difficulty disappears.

BAMBOO and bamboo wares are important articles of export from Japan. The larger part of the export goes to England.

THE FORECLOSURE OF THE UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD.

When the second mortgage bonds of the Union Pacific Railroad began to mature during President Cleveland's administration, proceedings were begun in conjunction with a reorganization committee of the Union Pacific Railroad to foreclose the mortgage. The agreement made guaranteed to the United States a bid of over $45,000,000 over and above the amount of the first mortgage. This bid included the sinking fund held in the United States Treasury. It was found, however, that the Government lien did not cover several important properties, and when the new Administration came into office it considered the propriety of an appeal, and papers were prepared for such action.

Upon hearing of this, the reorganization committee increased the guarantee bid to $50,000,000.

The sale took place November 1, the road being knocked down to the reorganization committee for $39,883,281.89 and certain bonds for $13,645,250.89—a total of $53,528,532.78. To this is to be added $4,537,927 cash in the sinking fund, making a grand total of $58,066,459.78 with which to meet the Government claim. According to the estimate of the Treasury officials the Government claim will be met in full. The Treasury is to be reimbursed for $27,236,512 principal outstanding and for $30,000,000 balance due on interest paid by the Government under its guarantee.

DELAWARE.

Non-residents of Delaware must procure a license to gun in the State from the Delaware Game Protective Association. All necessary information on this point can be secured from William Baxter, Wilmington, Delaware, President of the Association.

It is unlawful to take, hunt, kill, or destroy, sell, or expose for sale, or have in possession after the same has been killed, any quail, partridge, pheasant or rabbit, except between the fifteenth day of November and the thirty-first day of December in each year.

It is unlawful to hunt at night, or by traps or snare, any partridge, grouse, woodcock, or quail.

It is unlawful to gun for wild ducks, geese, or swans, with any kind of a gun except the ordinary weapon which is fired from the shoulder.

It is unlawful to kill any ducks with the aid of any artificial lights or lanterns.

It is unlawful for any person to kill upon lands not owned by himself, any robin, blue bird, martin, swallow, mocking bird, thrush, wake-up, woodpecker, wren, whippoorwill, cat bird, night hawk, oriole, red bird, yellow bird, humming bird, ground robin, skylark, flicker or sapsucker.

It is unlawful to hunt or gun on Sunday.

It is unlawful to ship game outside of the State for sale unless a special license of $500 is paid; but a person who kills game may take it out of the State, by going before a notary public and making an affidavit that the game has been killed lawfully.

It is unlawful to shoot partridges, grouse, quail, woodcock, rabbit, or hare, while there is snow on the ground.*

There are numerous fish laws, but they relate almost exclusively to commercial fishing, and not to the angler.

OPEN SEASONS FOR GAME.

LOCAL CHRONOLOGY.

[From December 1, 1896, to December 1, 1897.]

1896.—December 1. Judge Gordon, with the assistance of a commission composed of eminent physicians, reported the result of an investigation of the mental condition of a prisoner in the Eastern Penitentiary, whom they found insane.

— Hon. J. I. Clark Hare, President Judge of Court of Common Pleas No. 1, resigned after forty-five years of service on the Bench.

— The cruiser Brooklyn went into commission at League Island.

December 4. Dr. William H. Furness, 3d, returned, after more than a year's absence, from the Eastern Archipelago, where he had been making collections for the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania, principally in Bornea. He penetrated countries never visited before and brought back valuable information.

December 7. Governor Hastings filled the vacancies in the Common Pleas Courts by appointing William W. Wiltbank to succeed Judge Hare, in Court No. 2, and Select Councilman Charles Y. Audenried to succeed Judge Thayer, in Court No. 4.

December 9. The fiftieth anniversary of the entrance of Colonel A. K. McClure into journalism was celebrated at a dinner which was attended by many prominent men.

December 10. Common Council passed and Select Council concurred in the bill recommended by Director Riter, that all riders and drivers, including wheelmen, must keep to the right of the road.

December 11. Henry McMillan's box factory, at Frankford avenue and Harrison street, was almost destroyed by fire. Several adjoining properties were slightly damaged by the flames. The loss was estimated at from $15,000 to $18,000.

September 24. Great Britain notifies the United States that she declines to be a party to the proposed seals-fisheries conference in Washington if Japan and Russia participate. A separate conference was arranged between Great Britain, Canada, and the United States.

— Ex-Chief of Police Velasquez, of the City of Mexico, awaiting trial for the murder of Arroyo, the assailant of President Diaz, committed suicide.

September 26. The North German Lloyd steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse completed the run from Southampton to New York in 5 days, 22 hours, 35 minutes.

October 2. Senor Sagasta summoned to form a new Spanish Ministry.

October 6. Evangelina Cosio y Cisneros, the Cuban girl imprisoned in Havana on the charge of conspiracy, escaped by the aid of a newspaper reporter. She was adopted by Mrs. John A. Logan.

October 7. The Swiss General Council passed a bill providing for the purchase of five lines of railroad by the Government for $2,000,000.

October 9. General Weyler recalled from Cuba and General Ramos Blanco appointed to take his place.

October 13. Professor Maertens, distinguished Russian jurist, selected as umpire of the Anglo-Venezuelan Arbitration Commission.

October 20. The reply of the British Government to the proposals of the American Bimetallic Commission sent to Ambassador Hay by Lord Salisbury. The Premier says the government of Great Britain is not able to reopen the India mints at present.

October 21. The President offered the consulate at Matanzas, Cuba, to State Senator Saylor, of Montgomery County, Pa., and he accepted the office.

October 23. The International Fur Seal Conference met and organized in Washington, D. C., ex-Secretary of State Foster being elected chairman. Japan, Russia and the United States were represented by delegates.

October 24. A Buffalo express train, east bound, on the New York Central Railroad, plunged into the Hudson River, three miles below Garrisons, at dawn, owing, it is supposed, to the widening of the tracks and the collapse of the retaining wall. The engine and six cars were submerged, and nineteen of the sleeping passengers were drowned without hope of escape.

October 25. The hurricane from the South was the cause of exceptionally high tides, the loss of life and heavy destruction to shipping along the Atlantic coast from Hatteras to Far Rockaway Beach. But three vessels entered New York harbor and none came up Delaware Bay beyond the Breakwater. Railroad traffic to the lower Jersey seacoast resorts greatly interrupted, there being no train service to Atlantic City or the Five- and Seven-Mile Beaches.

October 27. The deadlock in the Austrian Reichsrath, owing to the German obstruction, created a critical situation, and in some quarters a suspension of the Austrian Constitution is believed possible. In the Lower House of the Hungarian Parliament Premier Banffy said that should the "Austrian constitutional system break down—which God forbid—the Hungarian Government would be obliged to act independently regarding the joint questions of the customs and commercial treaty between Austria and Hungary and of the charter and privileges of the Austro-Hungarian banks." It is believed that this statement points to the possibility of an Absolutist government in Austria.

October 28. Baron Von Bulow, recently German Ambassador at Rome, appointed Minister for Foreign Affairs.

— A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, at Princeton.

— The Grand Jury at Wilkesbarre returned fifty-five indictments against Sheriff Martin and his deputies, charging them with murder and felonious wounding in the shooting of miners at Lattimer.

October 29. Henry George, the candidate of the Thomas Jefferson Democracy for Mayor of Greater New York, died at the Union Square Hotel, New York, where he had been stopping during the campaign. He spoke at four places the night before, and retired worn out, but not showing any signs of collapse. During the night he was stricken with apoplexy, and soon passed into unconsciousness and death. His son, Henry George, Jr., was nominated by the Jefferson Democracy to take his father's place on the ticket.

— Coroner Lippincott, of Camden, held an inquest in the case of Mrs. Emma Zane, one of the women murdered in that city on October 12. The jury returned a verdict that she came to her death at the hands of a person or persons unknown to the jury. Eli Shaw, the grandson, accused of the murder, was held to await the action of the Grand Jury.

— Sempagha Pass was captured by the British forces under General Sir William Lockhart.

October 31. The body of Henry George lay in state in the Grand Central Palace, in New York, and was viewed by thousands of people. Other thousands were unable to get into the building.

November 1. The new Congressional Library at Washington was opened to the public. There were no ceremonies of any kind.

— Final services over the body of Henry George were held at the home at Fort Hamilton. Interment was made at Greenwood Cemetery.

— The Union Pacific Railroad was sold in Omaha, Neb., to the Reorganization Committee for $57,564,932.76.

— The British forces captured Arhanga Pass. Only slight opposition was offered by the tribesmen.

— The experts representing the United States, Great Britain and Canada had their first meeting at the State Department to consider the seal question.

November 2. The Union Pacific first mortgage, by which the construction bonds were secured, was sold by the Master in Chancery, at Omaha, to the Reorganization Committee for $50,637,475. There was but one bid.

November 3. The five Powers of the Latin Union signed a convention to increase the number of small silver coins by a franc per head of their population, using the existing 5-franc pieces to supply the necessary silver.

November 5. An attempt was made to assassinate President Moraes, of Brazil. The President's brother was severely wounded while shielding the Chief Executive from a soldier's dagger. General Bethencourt, Minister of War, who was of the President's party, was shot and killed.

November 8. The Emperor of China and the Board of Revenue approved a memorial presented in favor of establishing a gold standard and prohibiting the export of gold.

— The Georgia House of Representatives, by a vote of 91 to 3, passed a bill prohibiting match or prize games of football, or games of football where admission fees are charged.

November 10. Mrs. Augusta Nack appeared as a witness for the State in the trial of Martin Thorn, at Long Island City, for the murder of William Guldensuppe. She testified that she lured Guldensuppe to Woodside Cottage, where he was killed by Thorn.

— The Supreme Court, at Pittsburg, dismissed the bills in equity filed by the architects whose designs were rejected by the State Capitol Commission, thus defeating the efforts to set aside the Commission's award.

November 15.—The dedication of the Pennsylvania monuments on the battle-field of Chattanooga took place, the chief ceremony being held at Orchard Knob.

— M. Scheurer-Kestner, one of the Vice-Presidents of the French Senate, asserts that on October 30 he presented to the French Minister of War, General Bellot, documents proving the innocence of Alfred Dreyfus, the former captain of artillery, now undergoing sentence of imprisonment for life for selling important French military plans to agents of a foreign Power.

— Marines landed from the German cruiser division at Kiaochan Bay, China, nearest port to Yen-Chu-Fu, where the German missionaries were recently murdered, to force the Chinese Government to completely satisfy the demands of Germany. They assaulted and captured the fort.

— The Turkish Government agreed to dismiss the officials responsible for the recent indignities offered to the Austrian merchant, Brazzafoli, and to salute the Austrian flag.

November 16.—The seal experts made a unanimous report, and the diplomatic representatives reached an understanding by which they hope at a later date to bring about a settlement of all the questions. No final action was taken as to the suspension of pelagic sealing.

November 18. The Committee on Organization of the Citizens' Union of New York decided to continue the organization as a permanent political force in the city. The enrolled membership of the Union is 32,661. The expenditures during the recent campaign were $33,472.

November 19. A fire in London destroyed nearly one hundred and fifty warehouses. The loss exceeded $25,000,000. For four hours and a half the flames had their own way, and it was only after more than a hundred engines had worked an hour that the fire was gotten under control.

— The Czar approved the appointment of Professor F. de Martens, of the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, as arbitrator in the Anglo-Venezuelan boundary dispute.

November 21. A fire in Melbourne, Australia, destroyed a number of business houses and caused a loss estimated at $5,000,000.

November 22. The Chief Justice of the United States Court of Claims confirmed the report of the referee in the case of the Western Union Telegraph Company against the United States, and entered judgment in favor of the Company for $258,869. The case arose out of a dispute between the Government and the Company, Mr. Wanamaker, the then Postmaster-General, making a sweeping reduction in Government rates, notwithstanding the Telegraph Company's protests.

— The five members of the Competitor expedition, recently released from imprisonment in the Cabanas, at Havana, arrived at New York.

November 23. General Weyler arrived at Barcelona, and it is said was acclaimed by about 20,000 people. The official report of his landing differs from the independent reports saying that the crowd was small; that little enthusiasm was manifested; that there were no delegations of students or politicians, and that no windows were decorated.

November 24. There was a disgraceful scene in the lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath. Deputies engaged in a fist fight. One was stabbed in the hand; another had his collar-bone broken; a third received a severe scalp wound. Herr Wolff declared that he would bring his revolver to the next sitting.

November 25. The flag of Austria was duly saluted at Mersina by Turkish guns, with all the ceremonial demanded by the Government of Austria.

November 27. The revenue cutter Bear sailed from Seattle for Alaska to rescue the ice-bound whalers in the Arctic Ocean.

— Emperor Francis-Joseph returned to Vienna from Wallsee. He was informed that the city was on the brink of revolution. Troops stood in readiness all night, the palace being strongly guarded.

November 28. Members of the Austrian Ministry resigned. Emperor Francis-Joseph intrusted Baron Gautsch with the task of forming a new Cabinet. The Emperor adjourned the Reichsrath until further orders.

November 29. A gale which swept the English coasts was one of the worst in recent years. Many lives were lost and a large number of vessels foundered, in most cases, it is feared, with all on board. Scarcely a coast town escaped without damage. Phenomenally high tides reported in many localities, several townships being partly submerged.

— The steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which left New York November 23, arrived at Southampton, breaking the record for the highest average speed across the ocean, her speed per hour averaging 22.35 knots. The distance covered was 3065 knots, and the passage lasted 137 hours, 8 minutes, or 5 days, 17 hours, 8 minutes, from which must be deducted twenty-five minutes in standing by a burning ship.

— The second trial of Adolph L. Luetgert, for the murder of his wife, was begun in Chicago.

November 30. Hayti sent a reply to Germany's demand in the Lueder case, expressing a willingness to negotiate a settlement of the entire case at Berlin, thus removing it from the hands of the objectionable German official now in Hayti.

— Martin Thorn was found guilty of murder in the first degree at Long Island City. A motion for a new trial was denied, and he was sentenced to be electrocuted. On being returned to his cell Thorn admitted that he killed Guldensuppe and cut up the body.

In some of the States Bryan and Watson received many votes. They have been added to the vote for Bryan and Sewall in the above table, so that the vote for Bryan represents the combined vote of Democrats and Middle-of-the Road Populists. In Texas the Bryan and Sewall vote was 288,323; the Bryan and Watson, 79,966; total, 368,289; and the vote for McKinley, 162,506. In the Populist States of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming women voted, almost if not quite doubling the majority for Bryan in those States. The total Prohibition vote is estimated to have been between 80,000 and 100,000, being highest in Pennsylvania. The Socialist vote was insignificant—being smaller than in 1892. Bryan gained 16 per cent. on Cleveland's vote in 1892; but McKinley gained 36 per cent. on the vote for Harrison in the same year. The vote was even more decisive than may appear on casual inspection. If every close State had gone for Bryan, McKinley would have been elected with four electoral votes to spare.

PRESIDENTIAL SUCCESSION.

In case of removal, death, resignation or inability of both the President and Vice-President of the United States, the Secretary of State, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation or inability, then the Secretary of the Treasury, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation or inability, then the Secretary of War, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation or inability, then the Attorney-General, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation or inability, then the Postmaster-General, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation or inability, then the Secretary of the Navy, or if there be none, or in case of his removal, death, resignation or inability, then the Secretary of the Interior shall act as President until the disability of the President or Vice-President is removed or a President shall be elected: provided, that whenever the powers and duties of the office of President of the United States shall devolve upon any of the persons named herein, if Congress be not then in session, or if it would not meet in accordance with law within twenty days thereafter, it shall be the duty of the person upon whom said powers and duties shall devolve to issue a proclamation convening Congress in extraordinary session, giving twenty days' notice of the time of meeting.

These provisions of the law shall only be held to describe and apply to such officers as shall have been appointed by the advice and consent of the Senate to the offices therein named, and such as are eligible to the office of President under the Constitution, and not under impeachment by the House of Representatives of the United States at the time the powers and duties of the office shall devolve upon them respectively.

ELECTIONS IN 1898.

In 1898 general elections will be held in Philadelphia as follows:

For city and ward officers on Tuesday, February 15th. To be chosen: Receiver of Taxes, Magistrates, members of Select and Common Councils, School Directors and Constables.

Last day for payment of taxes, January 15th.

Last day for naturalization, January 15th.

For State and county officers on Tuesday, November 8th. To be chosen: Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of Internal Affairs, Judge of the Supreme Court, two Judges of the Orphans' Court, Recorder of Deeds, District Attorney, Controller, Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions, and Coroner.

Last day for payment of taxes, October 8th.

Last day for naturalization, October 8th.

QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTORS.

Residence.—A voter must have resided in the State one year, and in the election district or division for at least two months, before the election. Where a citizen previously a resident has removed and returned, he must have resided in the State six months before the election.

Taxes.—No citizen can vote who is over twenty-two years old without having previously paid a State and county tax within two years, assessed at least two months before the election, and paid, at the latest, one month before the election.

Age.—Every male citizen between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age, having the proper qualifications of residence, native birth, or claiming the naturalization of his father during his minority, may vote without being assessed.

Naturalized citizens may vote if they have the qualifications of residence in the State and district and payment of taxes, and have been naturalized one month before the election.

Proof of Right to Vote.—If the name is not on the registry of voters, the person claiming must make affidavit of his claims, and prove his right by at least one qualified voter of the district or division. Proof of payment of taxes is made by producing the tax-receipt or by affidavit that it has been lost, destroyed or never received. A naturalized citizen must produce his naturalization papers, unless he has been for five consecutive years a voter in the district.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS—SECOND SESSION.

The Fifty-fourth Congress met for its second session, December 7th, 1896, but accomplished little. The result of the Presidential election was known, and the Democrats were incensed against the Administration. The Republicans were powerless in the House and the Silver men ruled the Senate, and both were opposed to the President and had the support of many Democrats. Scarcely anything was accomplished. The Senate debated various Cuban resolutions without action as well as a Nicaragua canal bill, which was withdrawn February 10th, and the arbitration treaty with Great Britain, which was allowed to go over to the next Congress. Both houses passed a bill restricting immigration by establishing an educational test, but it was vetoed by President Cleveland. The House passed it over the veto, but the Senate failed to act. A bankruptcy bill was also discussed without result. The total appropriations of the session as passed by Congress amounted to $527,591,823. The Indian, Agricultural, Sundry Civil and General Deficiency bills failed to become laws. The Government's income during the administration of President Cleveland was about $450,000,000 per annum and the expenses $500,000,000, making the shortage for four years $200,000,000, which was paid out of the proceeds from the sale of bonds from which $300,000,000 was realized. The bonds were sold at about 7 per cent. premium, and soon had a much higher market value.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS. — EXTRA SESSION.

The Fifty-fifth Congress assembled in extraordinary session March 15, in pursuance of a call issued by President McKinley urging the passage of a tariff bill to provide needed revenue. In the House, Speaker Reed and the other officers were re-elected. The Ways and Means, Mileage and Rules Committees were appointed, but the Speaker withheld the appointment of other committees until the close of the session. The Senate confirmed appointments made by the President, passed the Morgan resolutions recognizing Cuban belligerency, the Free-Homestead bill, and the Nelson Bankruptcy bill. The appropriation bills which failed in the preceding Congress were passed by both Houses with an amendment suspending President Cleveland's forest reserve orders. An appropriation of $200,000 was made for the relief of sufferers by floods in the Mississippi valley, and another of $50,000 for the relief of distressed Americans in Cuba. The Tariff bill occupied the time of the House, which finally adopted the conference report by a vote of 185 to 118. The Senate adopted the same report by a vote of 40 to 30 on July 24th, and President McKinley immediately signed the bill, Congress adjourning on the same day. The Senate after a long discussion of the treaty providing for arbitration with Great Britain rejected it by a vote of 43 for to 26 against—which being less than the required two-thirds, the treaty fell.

EXPERIMENTS in Germany and France show that alcohol can never be used, economically, as a substitute for petroleum spirits in small motors. The cost of work being nearly two to one in favor of petroleum spirits.

GREATER NEW YORK.

Greater New York will include quite a score of cities, towns and villages, ranging in population from a few hundreds to 2,000,000 each. Its population will be 3,300,000 or more on an area of 360 square miles. It will be second in size to greater London among the world's cities. This brings Paris into the third place. And it must be remembered that London was a city nearly two thousand years before the first white man set foot on Manhattan Island. New York would furnish space for one hundred and thirty-two such cities, and yet there are in it as many people as were in all the thirteen colonies when they declared their independence. The population of Greater New York, lined up shoulder to shoulder, would extend from New York to St. Louis, a thousand miles across the country, and if they were marched by two abreast, day and night, it would take three weeks before the last pair had passed the observer. The railroad lines within the borders of the city would reach from New York to Omaha, and the elevated lines alone would make a double-track connection with New Haven, Conn. The street lines have a capital of $95,000,000, and their 5000 cars make a yearly aggregate run of 85,000,000 miles, which would about bridge the distance from the earth to the sun. They carry 480,000,000 passengers a year and an average of 1,300,000 a day. The steam roads entering the national center send out 1000 passenger trains every twenty-four hours, and about 500,000 passengers on the average enter or leave the city on these roads every day. The clearing-house shows checks and drafts to the amount of $69,000,000 a day, about half larger than the combined bank clearings of all the other cities in the nation.

In 1626 the Dutch purchased Manhattan Island for $24. The surrounding country was not then considered worth buying. To-day the value of the land and buildings of the enlarged city is not less than $4,500,000,000. This is an average of $125,000 an acre and 50 cents a square foot for the entire 360 square miles. But there are sections down on lower Broadway and on Wall street that could not be bought for less than a thousand times that price. A workingman would need to spend the wages of twenty years for a plot large enough to give him a decent burial.

There was, of course, great interest taken in the election of the first Mayor of this great city, who would be in effect a dictator elected by the people. The Citizens' Union, organized for the purpose, nominated Seth B. Low for Mayor, the intention being to have him indorsed by the Republicans. Boss Platt, however, would have nothing to do with Low and nominated Gen. Benj. F. Tracy as the Republican candidate. Tammany (Crocker) nominated Judge Robert A. Van Wyck, but a large party of Democrats put Henry George in the field as a Bryan Democrat, opposed to Boss rule. Just before the election Henry George died suddenly and his son was nominated in his place, but failed to poll even a tithe of the votes pledged to his father. The result was the election of Crocker's man—Van Wyck, the vote being: Van Wyck, 228,686; Low, 148,480; Tracy, 101,623; George, 19,827. Tammany elected 26 Councilmen, the Citizens' Union 2. The Board of Aldermen will stand: Tammany 48, Republicans 2, Citizens' Union 2, Republicans and Citizens' Union 8.

THE ARBITRATION TREATY.

When the Venezuelan incident was arousing both this country and England, Mr. Bayard, Ambassador of the United States to Great Britain, officially suggested to Lord Salisbury, Prime Minister of England, that he empower the British Ambassador at Washington to enter into correspondence with the Secretary of State in order to reach a well-defined agreement between the two countries as a basis of negotiation to constitute a tribunal for the arbitration of the Venezuelan boundary dispute. Acting under this suggestion, on March 5, 1896, Sir Julian Pauncefote suggested the heads of a treaty of arbitration between the United States and Great Britain, which, however, contained no reference to the Venezuelan dispute. Owing to the firm stand of the United States, and the appointment by President Cleveland of a Venezuelan Commission, Great Britain finally decided to submit the dispute with Venezuela to arbitration. The original treaty as suggested by Sir Pauncefote was arranged, and on January 11, 1897, the treaty was signed at Washington by Sir Julian Pauncefote for Great Britain and Richard Olney for the United States. The treaty was then submitted to the Senate of the United States for confirmation by President Cleveland on the same day.

It was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, which was composed of Senators Sherman, chairman, Davis, Frye, Lodge, Cullom and Cameron, Republicans, and Gray, Morgan, Mills, Turpie and Daniel, Democrats. This committee reported the treaty to the Senate on February 1 considerably amended. The Senate began discussion of the treaty on February 9 in executive session.

The treaty in its general outlines may be summed up as follows: It provides for the arbitration of all differences between the contracting parties which have not been settled by diplomatic negotiations. Matters involving claims of less than $500,000 are to be settled by an arbitration board composed of "a jurist of repute" selected by each of the contracting parties and an umpire selected by these two jurists. If these two fail to agree within two months upon an umpire, then the Supreme Court of the United States and the Judiciary Committee of the Privy Council of Great Britain shall choose one, or, in the event of this failing, the umpire shall be appointed by the King of Sweden and Norway. The award of this board on cases involving less than $500,000 is to be final.

In matters involving larger pecuniary claims, and all other matters except disputes in regard to the settlement of territorial claims, the matter is to go to a board as above constituted. If the award of this board of arbitrators is made by unanimous vote the award is to be final. If not unanimous, then either nation may within six months demand a review of the case. In that event a new tribunal is to be established, consisting of five jurists of repute, two of which shall be selected by the contracting parties, while the fifth, who is to act as umpire, is to be chosen by the other four. In case these four cannot decide on an umpire that position is filled by the same procedure as in the board spoken of above. The award of a majority of this board is to be final.

Matters involving territorial claims are to be referred to a tribunal of six members. Three of these are to be named from the members of the United States Supreme Court, or justices of the Circuit Court, by the President, and three by the Queen from the judges of the British Supreme Court of Judicature or members of the Judiciary Committee of the Privy Council. An award made by a unanimous vote or a majority of five to one is to be final. If made by a smaller majority, either Power may within three months protest the award, in which case it is not valid. The treaty provides that in such a case there shall be no recourse to hostile measures of any description until the mediation of one or more friendly Powers has been invited by one or both of the contracting parties.

When President McKinley was inaugurated the treaty, which was in the hands of the old Senate, had to go again to the Committee on Foreign Relations of the new Senate, of which Senator Davis was chairman. The treaty was promptly reported back, and debate on the treaty was begun on March 18. The amendments which had been made by the committee in the original treaty did not affect its scope, but only its administrative details. The principal changes were that the Senate must approve of the submission of any particular question to arbitration by the President; in designating arbitrators, the President is not limited to the membership of the Supreme Court, but may select other jurists of repute; and, finally, the name of King Oscar, of Sweden and Norway, was omitted, leaving the question of naming an umpire to be settled when the occasion should arise.

It was soon seen that the Senate as a whole was unfavorably disposed towards the treaty. Although many amendments were made in the treaty in order to overcome the objections of the opposition, yet the treaty failed of approval. The question came to a vote on May 5, and the treaty was defeated by a vote of forty-three yeas to twenty-six nays, failing to get to a two-thirds vote in its favor. While a majority of those favorable were Republicans, yet the division was sectional. The Senators from the South and West opposed the treaty. The general feeling among the opponents of the treaty was that there was no necessity for it; that in case of dispute it would be easy to provide a special tribunal for its settlement. As far as the treaty implied an alliance of Great Britain and the United States, it was rather distasteful than otherwise to the members of the Senate.

THE quantities of food yearly exported from the United States are sufficient to feed 30,000,000 persons in Europe, from which it appears that American farms raise food for 100,000,000 of people yearly. The Western prairies are capable of carrying double the present number of live stock, and of producing ten times as much grain as they do, so that, for at least a century to come, there is every probability that the exportation of food will increase with population. The same is true as regards cotton, the crop having risen 125 per cent. in twenty years.

IMPROVEMENT OF PHILADELPHIA'S WATERWAYS.

The deepening of the channel of the Delaware river between Philadelphia and deep water in Delaware bay, and the improvement of the harbor of Philadelphia, progressed at a very rapid rate during the working season of 1897, under the direction of Major C. W. Raymond, United States Engineer in charge. Altogether the amount of material dredged during the season, under contracts with the National Government, was about 7,150,000 cubic yards. In some months the material removed from the channel aggregated the large quantity of 1,000,000 cubic yards. At the close of the season, although the different projects were not entirely complete, a channel depth had been secured which, it is confidently believed, will hereafter do away with the complaints in the past of a difficult entrance to the port of Philadelphia. Deep draft vessels can now go to sea without being delayed waiting for high water in order to cross any of the shoals.

Except at two places near the city, a channel with a depth of at least 26 feet at low tide has been secured, and there was a minimum depth at the two places excepted, Schooner Ledge and Mifflin Bar, on December 1, of 23½ to 24 feet at mean low water. With the rise of tide of six feet there is sufficient water at these two places at high tide for vessels of the deepest draft, and at all other shoals there is 32 feet of water at high tide. During the present year (1898) it is expected that the project for a channel 600 feet wide and 26 feet deep at low tide will be completed in every part.

A survey for a channel 30 feet deep at low water, as directed by Congress, was made during 1897. Upon the data secured an estimate of the cost of securing a channel of that depth will be made and sent to Congress through the Secretary of War.

Improvement of Philadelphia Harbor.

The end of the working season of 1897, at the latter part of December, saw the completion of the project for the improvement of Philadelphia harbor. This improvement was one of the most extensive public works ever undertaken by the National Government. It has resulted in the removal of Smith's and Windmill Islands, lying between Philadelphia and Camden, and a part of Petty Island, with the shoals adjacent to all three. There is now a channel 1000 feet wide and at least 26 feet deep at low tide along the Philadelphia water front, between the Delaware river bridge, at Bridesburg, and Kaighn's Point, a distance of 6½ miles, and the other parts of the channel have a least depth of 12 feet at low tide.

Work was commenced in the spring of 1891, but owing to the necessity of annulling the first contract on account of the contractor not complying with its conditions, a delay of about a year ensued. In June, 1893, a new contract was made with the American Dredging Company. The amount of material removed was about 21,500,000 cubic yards, at a cost of $3,635,000. About 3,500,000 cubic yards of material were placed on League Island and 3,300,000 on Petty Island, raising 374 acres of land, formerly below low water and protected from overflow by dykes, to above high-water mark. Nearly 133 acres of land formerly above low water were removed. The area of League Island raised above high tide is 147 acres, which is now available for the purposes of the Navy Yard.

The reconstruction of the Philadelphia water front, a contemporaneous work with the channel improvement, has been in progress since 1894, and up to December 1, 1897, fifteen new piers had been constructed, providing facilities for the largest modern steamships. The widening of Delaware avenue, the street running along the river front, by the city, by extending the bulkward into the river, was commenced in October, 1897. The work is to be undertaken at the present time between Vine and South streets, a distance of one mile, and it will result in a street along the water front 150 feet wide, greatly relieving the congested traffic of the present narrow thoroughfare.

Delaware River.

During the season of 1897 the Federal Government removed about 4,000,000 cubic yards of material from the shoal places in the Delaware river. This work has provided a channel 400 to 600 feet wide, with a least depth of 26 feet, through Duck Creek Flats and Dan Baker Shoal, which lie at the head of the bay and were the worst shoals in the river. At Cherry Island Flats, near Wilmington, a channel 300 feet wide and 26 feet deep was dredged.

The National Government confined its work during 1897 to the localities named, the city undertaking to deepen the channel across the remaining shoals between Philadelphia and Cherry Island Flats. Under the city contract for the removal of the Rock Shoal at Schooner Ledge, below Chester, there had been removed to the end of the year about 20,000 cubic yards of material, out of an estimated total of 27,800 cubic yards to be removed. A large portion of the channel at this point has been dredged to the full depth of 26 feet at low water, and the work will be completed during 1898.

Under contract with the city, dredging was begun on the shoal known as the Middle Ground, off Greenwich Point, at the lower part of the harbor. The same contract includes the deepening of the channel at Mifflin Bar, which is less than 26 feet. The estimated amount of material to be removed from the two localities named is 1,600,000 cubic yards, and up to the end of the season about 475,000 cubic yards had been removed from the Middle Ground Shoal. During 1898 this work will be completed and the channel over Mifflin Bar deepened to its full width.

Schuylkill River.

Grain and petroleum exports form a large part of the aggregate exports of the port of Philadelphia. The petroleum is shipped exclusively from the Schuylkill river, and much of the grain is loaded at wharves along the same stream. Under contract with the National Government, nearly 63,000 cubic yards of material were removed from the bar at the mouth of the Schuylkill river during the early part of 1897, providing a channel across the bar 110 to 175 feet wide and 24 to 27 feet deep at low water.

Under contract with the city between 16,000 and 18,000 cubic yards were removed from the channel of the Schuylkill river, above Penrose Ferry Bridge, during the season, in the work of securing a channel 22 feet deep at low water. It is expected to complete the deepening of the

Delaware Breakwater.

By the end of 1897 the work of closing the "Gap" between the Delaware Breakwater proper and the ice breaker was completed by the depositing of 30,000 tons of stone. The "Gap" had been previously filled to the level of low tide, but last season's work brought the structure to the level of the older parts of the work, making the Breakwater continuous, and providing an anchorage secure from storms for vessels of ordinary draft.

New Harbor of Refuge, Delaware Bay.

The construction of the breakwater for the new Harbor of Refuge adjacent to the "The Shears" Shoal, near the mouth of Delaware Bay, was commenced by the National Government in the early part of May, 1897. During the season more than 135,000 tons of stone were deposited over a length of 2800 feet, 1850 feet of which was brought to a level of about three feet above low water.

This work is intended as a Harbor of Refuge for vessels of the deepest draft and is to be completed within five years. It will cost not more than \$2,350,000. The Harbor will furnish safe anchorage for more than 1000 vessels at once. It is located about  $2\frac{1}{4}$  miles north of the old Breakwater, and is 3 miles from shore. The site of the new Harbor of Refuge is about equidistant from New York, Philadelphia, and the capes of Chesapeake Bay (the ocean entrance to the ports of Baltimore, Norfolk and Newport News), and is an especially convenient port of call for the entire commerce of the North Atlantic Coast. It is now, to a considerable extent, used by large vessels awaiting orders to ports for discharge or loading, although the anchorage is exposed and dangerous.

THE REBELLION IN CUBA.

The rebellion in Cuba, while productive of many political changes, was not materially advanced during 1897. The Spanish still hold most of the larger towns, and all of the sea-coast ports. The remainder of the island is either under the control of the Cubans, or subject to their raids. The Spanish policy has been one of concentration, and as a result, the towns are crowded with refugees. The country has been devastated by both armies, so that subsistence is very difficult to obtain.

In December, 1896, General Antonio Maceo, the brilliant Cuban cavalry leader, was betrayed into an ambush and shot to death with some members of his staff. His betrayer was promoted, and shown great official honors. Although the Spaniards were greatly elated over Maceo's assassination, yet its effect was to really strengthen the patriots' cause. In the early part of 1897, General Weyler took the field to "pacify" the province of Pinar del Rio; but although a large display of force was made, the situation in that province seems to have remained unchanged.

The rainy season brought the Spanish campaign to a close in April, and it was seen that General Weyler's work was a complete failure. The reports of the United States Consuls in Cuba to the Secretary of State showed that great destitution existed among a large number of American citizens on the island. President McKinley, on May 17th, sent a special message to Congress recommending that an appropriation of $50,000 be made in order to relieve the urgent distress of our fellow-countrymen. The Senate immediately passed a bill in response to this message, and although there was a disposition shown in the House of Representatives to seize upon this opportunity to grant Cuba belligerent rights, yet on May 20th the bill passed the House and was approved.

The policy of the new Administration was soon seen to be the same as that of the Cleveland Administration, a strict neutrality, and a tender of our good offices to Spain in order to settle the rebellion. Congress was content to allow the President time to get settled in office before taking any steps in the matter.

On September 5th, the town of Victoria de Las Tunas, of the Province of Santiago de Cuba, was captured by the insurgents. This was an important victory, as the town was of great strategical importance. Shortly after this occurrence our new Minister to Spain, General Woodford, presented his credentials, and was cordially received. It is understood that he presented to Spain the good offices of the United States, and that it was also shown to the Spanish authorities that the United States would in a short time insist that hostilities should cease. President McKinley decided about this time not to remove Consul General Lee from his position at Havana.

As a result of the strained relations between Spain and the United States, rumors arose that Japan and Spain had formed an alliance against this country. These were promptly put to rest by the denials of Japan's foremost statesmen.

On August 8th, Canovas, the Prime Minister of Spain, was assassinated, but this deed was not in any way connected with the Cuban troubles. It had no effect on the Cuban situation at that time, for the old Cabinet, under General Azcarraga as Premier was continued in office. On September 29th the old Cabinet resigned, and a new one was formed with Senor Sagasta at its head. The policy of the new Cabinet was a vigorous prosecution of the war in Cuba, the adoption of home rule for that island, and the recall of General Weyler. On October 8th, the order of recall was issued, and General Blanco, of Arenas, was appointed Governor-General of Cuba in Weyler's place. It was arranged that eight thousand new troops should accompany General Blanco to Cuba.

During the year many troops were sent to Cuba by Spain, but the mortality was very high, and their efficiency was greatly reduced. According to a recent dispatch from General Weyler, the pay of the soldiers was six months in arrears. When the news was received in Havana of the proposed recall of General Weyler, an anti-American demonstration was arranged, at which General Weyler made a speech denouncing the United States for its interference in Spanish affairs. Arrangements were made for a larger demonstration on Weyler's embarkation for Spain, but it was forbidden by the Spanish Government.

General Blanco, the new Governor-General of Cuba, has been in command of the Spanish army in the Philippines, and his reputation there for cruelty is probably little less than that of Weyler.

THE GRÆCO-TURKISH WAR.

The island of Crete had been for a long time in a state of semi-suppressed rebellion, caused by the oppression of Christians by the Turks. The revolt was greatly increased during the early part of 1897 by serious outrages committed by the Turkish soldiery and police. Greece, which is closely connected with Crete geographically, as well as by common racial ties, became aroused over this treatment, and popular sentiment grew so strong that King George was forced to interfere. In pursuance of this policy, a fleet of Greek torpedo boats, under the command of Prince George, was sent to the support of the Cretans on February 10, and the following day Greece announced her intention of intervening by force in Crete.

Turkey immediately protested to the Powers, and declared that Greece would be attacked in Thessaly if the Powers did not repress the Greeks. However, the Greek army reserves were called out, and a large body of troops, under command of Colonel Vassos, was embarked. This body took possession of the island February 15, and, aiding the bands of insurgent Christian Cretans, soon had the island under their control. Local governments were organized, and everything progressed favorably.

In order to preserve the peace of Europe, the concert of the Powers notified Greece to evacuate Crete, and to withdraw the fleet. To the first of these demands Greece would not consent, as it would leave the Christian Cretans victims to the Turks, but was willing to withdraw its fleet. The Powers then landed troops in Crete, took possession of the island, and on February 21 a fleet of warships belonging to the Powers shelled a Cretan insurgent camp near Canea.

The formal reply of Greece to the Powers was given March 8, and contained a refusal to withdraw troops from Crete. The Powers then declared a blockade of Crete against Greece on March 21, so that all Greek support would be cut off from Colonel Vassos and the insurgents. The Powers had been collecting in Crete a force composed of troops from the European armies, in order to preserve peace on the island until the dispute should be settled. The blockade of the island was rigorously enforced, one unarmed Greek transport being sunk by an Austrian warship.

As the trouble in Crete grew serious, both Greece and Turkey began massing troops on the Thessalian frontier. Here the situation became very strained, assaults being made by bodies of Greek irregulars upon the Turkish troops about April 9. The Turkish Government protested to the Powers, and finally, on April 17 and 18, open war was declared to exist between the two countries, and diplomatic relations were severed. The Turkish troops were under the command of Edhem Pasha, while the command of the Greek troops was given to Crown Prince Constantine.

At the beginning of the war the Greeks were uniformly successful, and even advanced beyond the northwestern boundary, but this fortunate beginning was not to last. On April 20 the Turks gained possession of the heights commanding the route to Larissa, and after some spirited fighting all of the strategic points on the Thessalian frontier were in the hands of the Turks by April 24. Though successful in the east, the Turks could not prevent Greek advances into Epirus on the western frontier.

From this time on the Greeks steadily retreated towards Athens, making a spirited stand at Velestina, where the Turks were repulsed three times. But the Greeks were forced back, and finally, the first week in May, Greece made an appeal to the Powers for mediation. Turkey would not agree, and Edhem Pasha still kept hammering away. On May 17 the Turks drove the Greeks from Domokos, and occupied it. Two days later, under the solicitation of the Czar of Russia, the Sultan agreed to an armistice. Later a sea armistice was arranged, and also a more lasting arrangement for a cessation of hostilities.

The brief war showed conclusively the superiority of the Turkish army organization. The Turks outnumbered the Greeks, but were always on the offensive after the first few days of the war. The Grecian army did not appear to be properly led or properly organized. There is no doubt of the bravery of the troops on both sides, but the Greeks suffered from the lack of a competent leader. King George counted too strongly upon being supported by the Christian nations of Europe to which he is bound by religious and family ties. One surprising feature of the war was the lack of support given to the army by the Greek fleet, and its general uselessness. The advantages arising from the superiority of the Greek fleet seemed to be totally unappreciated.

Popular feeling at Athens was very bitter against King George after the disastrous failure of the war, and the Ministry, headed by M. Delyannis, was obliged to resign in order to quiet the populace. The Sultan agreed to treat with the Powers in arranging the treaty of peace with Greece, but persisted in occupying Thessaly. Colonel Vassos had evacuated Crete, as one of the conditions of the armistice which the Powers had proposed, but which had not been accepted until after the battle of Domokos.

The negotiations for a treaty of peace, which were carried on under the auspices of the great Powers, were not very successful. The Sultan put off any settlement, and the Powers disagreed very much. Finally a preliminary treaty was signed September 18 at Constantinople.

BROAD street is the longest street in Philadelphia. It runs from League Island to Montgomery county line, and is 11.63 miles long.

THE annual report of the Commissioner of Pensions for 1897 shows that there were added to the rolls during the year the names of 50,101 new pensioners, and there were restored to the rolls 3971 pensioners who had been previously dropped. The whole number of pensioners on the rolls June 30, 1897, was 976,014. The amount disbursed was $139,949,717.35. This exceeds the amount disbursed during the fiscal year 1896 by the sum of $1,584,480.18.

POSTMASTER-GENERAL Gary in his first annual report recommends the establishment of postal savings banks and the curtailment of matter now sent through the mails at second-class rates. This branch of the service was carried at a loss of $26,000,000. The receipts of the Department were $82,665,462 and the expenditures $94,077,242.

POLAR EXPEDITIONS OF THE YEAR.

There was no abatement in Polar work during 1897. The revival of this feature of geographical exploration by Lieutenant R. E. Peary in 1891, and his practical demonstration that by the employment of the latest modern inventions, both in equipments and foods, the Arctic were robbed of most of their terrors, gave encouragement to those who hesitated to enter this field of exploration through the recollections of the horrors of the Greely expedition to Lady Franklin Bay in 1882.

The year 1897 was particularly noteworthy with respect to Polar work by the return of the Jackson-Harmsworth expedition from Franz Josef Land; the successful voyage of Lieutenant Robert E. Peary to Whale Sound to carry out his preliminary plans for the discovery of the North Pole; the start of Andrée in a balloon from Danes Island, in an endeavor to solve the Polar mystery, and the sailing of the Gerlache expedition to the Antarctic.

The Jackson-Harmsworth expedition was of great importance from a geographical standpoint, and had it not been overshadowed by the sensational feat of Dr. Nansen would have attracted far greater public attention. This expedition was supported by Alfred C. Harmsworth, proprietor of the London Daily Mail, and commanded by Frederick G. Jackson, a young Englishman. He and his party sailed for Franz Josef Land July 12, 1894, and returned September 8, 1897. The results of Jackson's work were astounding; they completely altered the map of a large portion of the Arctic regions in that they showed that Gillis Land and Oscar Land do not exist, and rendered doubtful whether there is such a country as Petermann Land. They also showed that Franz Josef Land does not extend beyond 82 degrees, as was popularly supposed. Mr. Jackson also reported the presence of an open sea to the north of Franz Josef Land. A dramatic incident of Jackson's sojourn in the north was his unexpected meeting with Dr. Nansen as the latter was returning from the Polar circle.

Early in the year Lieutenant Robert E. Peary obtained a five years' leave of absence to carry out plans which he announced for the discovery of the North Pole. These plans were in effect to take a ship to Whale Sound, on the borders of Inglefield Gulf, in North Greenland, and establish there a base of supplies. This done, families of Eskimos are to be taken on board and a passage forced through Smith's Straits and Kane Basin to Sherard-Osborne Fjord, not far below the supposed southern boundary line of Greenland. At this point Lieutenant Peary is to unload the remainder of the supplies and, disembarking with the Eskimos, send the ship home. As soon as the ice is strong enough to render sledging practicable, a journey is to be undertaken by easy stages northward as far as possible, and there establish a settlement in which Mr. Peary will live with and somewhat after the manner of the natives until a favorable opportunity presents itself for making a dash to the Pole. As this may not be until two or three years have passed, a relief ship is to be sent north annually with supplies.

During the summer Lieutenant Peary made a preliminary voyage to Whale Sound to enlist the support of the Eskimos. He returned in the autumn with the announcement of success, and brought with him also a family of Eskimos and the famous meteorite of Cape York.

The Gerlache Expedition for the Antarctic sailed from Antwerp in August. It was commanded by Captain Adrien de Gerlache, and numbers among its members Dr. Frederick A. Cook, of Brooklyn, a member of the Peary Expedition of 1892, and commander of two excursions to Greenland. The Gerlache Expedition has Graham Land, on the Antarctic Circle, south of Terra del Fuego, as its objective point. At this place exploration southwardly is to be begun. In March the vessel is to go to Melbourne to replenish the store of food. On the return of the ship the party expects to visit Victoria Land, and take observations for the South Magnetic Pole. The expedition is under the auspices of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

What was, perhaps, the most sensational Polar event of the year was the venture made by Herr Andrée from Danes Island in a balloon. The ascent was made in July and the airship soon disappeared in the northeast, and since then nothing has been heard of the occupants. There were a number of sensational rumors started, but all were known to be untrue with the exception of one made public in October to the effect that a balloon was seen floating in the sea north of Spitzbergen. This report bore the impress of truth, and as the balloon was supposed to be that of Andrée, a steamer was fitted out, under instructions of King Oscar, and sent from Tromsøe Island in search of it and the former occupants. Captain Sverdrup also announced his intention of using the Fram, Nansen's famous ship, in the same search, but he had not departed by December 1st. The first mentioned relief expedition made a careful search above Spitzbergen, but failed to find any trace of the missing aeronaut and party, and winter setting in, it was forced to return to Norway, where it arrived on November 21st.

Two sub-Arctic expeditions, one commanded by Prince Luigi, of Italy, and the other by Henry G. Bryant, of Philadelphia, sought to ascend Mt. St. Elias, Alaska, during the summer. The first named succeeded in the undertaking.

JAPANESE postmen, whose routes carry them into the country, use bicycles. Their wheels are made by local manufacturers, who have appropriated improvements from both British and American patents.

It is generally thought that the practice of having bonfires on e'lection day was first suggested by the fact that it used to be the custom in England to build bonfires on Guy Fawkes Day, November 5. In Bristol, R. I., it is still the custom to have bonfires on that day.

THE wolf is likely before many years to be extinct in France. The premiums paid by the State for its destruction are steadily decreasing. In 1883, when premiums were introduced, 1316 wolves were killed. In 1884 there were 1035; in 1885 there were 900; in 1890 the number was 461. This was reduced to 323 in 1892, to 261 in 1893, 245 in 1894, 249 in 1895, and 171 in 1896.

LEASE OF THE GAS WORKS.

On November 30, 1897, Mayor Warwick signed the lease of the City's Gas Works to the United Gas Improvement Company, and at midnight the Company took possession. The terms of the lease were thus described by the Sub-Committee of the Committees on Finance and Gas:

First—To run thirty years, with a ten-year option on the part of the city to terminate the contract upon payment to the lessee of the amounts actually expended in improvements, modern machinery, new mains, reconstructed buildings, etc., with six per cent. interest.

Second—The lessee is to purchase from the city the stock and materials on hand at the beginning of the lease, under an appraisement to be made by the Director of Public Works. It is estimated that this, with other capital now locked up in the gas business, will bring about $1,000,000 to the city treasury.

Third—Expenditure by the lessee, within three years, of not less than $5,000,000 in putting the plant and its distributing system in condition for prompt and efficient service. This rehabilitation is imperative, according to the Director of Public Works.

Fourth—Expenditure of $10,000,000 additional—careful expert inquiry declaring this amount to be necessary—in improvements and extensions during balance of lease—an aggregate of at least $15,000,000, and as much more as may be required for the purposes stated.

Fifth—The annual filing of an itemized statement of expenditures on improvements, during the first ten years, so that the city can at any time realize definitely the amount so to be invested if it should desire to terminate the lease.

Sixth—The city is to receive, for its own use, without charge, all the gas required for lighting the public buildings and the streets; with reference to the latter, provision being made for the addition of 300 lamps yearly, as Councils may direct, the lessee to care for, light and extinguish the lamps. This, it is estimated, will be equal to a financial return of over $20,000,000. No payments are to be made by the municipality at any time or for any purpose during the lease.

Seventh—The quality of the gas is guaranteed not less than twenty-two candle power, with efficient service and uniform pressure in all parts of the city; daily tests to be made at the expense of the lessee.

Eighth—An inspector of meters, with assistants, to be appointed by the Mayor, is to supervise the tests and protect the rights of consumers, the latter being privileged at any time to demand the testing of meters, in order to ascertain if bills rendered are correct. The lessee is to pay $10,000 a year toward the expenses of the inspector and his assistants, or $300,000 during the lease.

Ninth—Extensions of mains are to be made where one consumer for every 100 feet required agrees to take gas for one year at the rates in force. Services are to be run to inside of consumer's property line without charge. No charge for meters. Non-payment of bills by one occupant of a property will not prevent the service of gas to another who is not indebted to the lessee.

Tenth—An agreed-upon schedule and plan of regulation of the price of gas by City Councils is provided, regardless of profit or loss to the lessee, authorizing periodical reductions in the rate from $1 to 75 cents. This provision leaves the regulation of the price of gas in the hands of the direct representatives of the people. The city can elect whether the consumers of gas shall be directly benefited through a reduction of rates, or whether the money thus paid shall go to public improvements of a general character.

Eleventh—Strict regulations are provided for the government of the lessee in connection with opening the streets and the laying of pipes.

Twelfth—Indemnification of the city against damage, through accidents due to carelessness of gas works employes, in the streets or elsewhere. The lessee is to pay for all city water used in the conduct of the works.

Thirteenth—Insurance on the works is to be maintained at not less than the amount now carried by the city.

Fourteenth—The United Gas Improvement Company is made directly responsible for all work of improvement upon the streets, or in connection with the plant, and for the faithful performance of all the terms of the lease.

Fifteenth—A bond in the sum of $1,000,000 for the faithful performance of all the terms of the lease. In addition to the bond all the assets of the Company, with a capital of $11,500,000, would be subject to the city's claim for damages, wherever situated or employed.

Sixteenth—Annual cash payments to the city, which, it is estimated, will amount in thirty years to $36,725,000.*

Seventeenth—The plant in all its departments is to be put and maintained in the highest state of efficiency, and this, together with the plant of the Philadelphia Gas Improvement Company, in a like state of efficiency, turned over to the city, at the expiration of the lease, thoroughly modernized, without the city's payment of a dollar.

* This estimate is based upon the maintenance of the price of gas at $1.00 per thousand cubic feet. Any reduction below that price will be at the expense of the city, as the lessee is authorized to retain a fixed amount of the sums paid for gas, according to the following schedule:

The United Gas Improvement Company, its successors or assigns, shall pay to the city of Philadelphia in each year during the continuance of this agreement as follows, viz.:

Upon all gas sold prior to January 1, 1908, all sums received by them in excess of ninety (90) cents per thousand cubic feet.

Upon all gas sold after December 31, 1907, and prior to January 1, 1913, all sums so received in excess of eighty-five (85) cents per thousand cubic feet.

Upon all gas sold after December 31, 1912, and prior to January 1, 1918, all sums so received in excess of eighty (80) cents per thousand cubic feet.

Upon all gas sold after December 31, 1917, and prior to January 1, 1928, all sums so received in excess of seventy-five (75) cents per thousand cubic feet.

At the meeting of Councils succeeding the execution of the lease Mr. Edmonds introduced an ordinance providing for a reduction of the price of gas to 90 cents per thousand cubic feet. On account of litigation pending on the subject of the lease, on December 8, 1897, the Committee on Gas postponed consideration of Mr. Edmonds' ordinance.

SPORTING RECORDS OF 1897.

FOOT-BALL.

While there is no actual champion in college foot-ball, because the title is not being annually competed for in open competition, the University of Pennsylvania will be recognized as such by all fair-minded people, since her team was the only one to go through the season of 1897 without being defeated or played to a stand-still in a drawn battle. Not only is Pennsylvania the only college to have a clean record of victories, but she earned her right to first place by decisively beating Harvard after the Crimson had played a tie game with Yale, and the latter had in turn defeated Princeton. The appended records show Pennsylvania to be first, Harvard and Yale tied for second place, and Princeton fourth. Harvard will be awarded second place and Yale third by all impartial critics on the strength of comparative scores, and because of the fact that they are cognizant that the Crimson really had the stronger team of the two;

The Central High School won the championship of the Philadelphia Inter-Scholastic Association and also defeated the Inter-Academic champions for the championship of Philadelphia. In the Inter-Academic Association, Penn Charter and Germantown Academy tied for first place. Penn Charter challenged Germantown Academy to play off the tie, but the latter declined the challenge.

INTERNATIONAL MATCHES.

The results of the two international matches played at Philadelphia between the All-Philadelphia and Captain Warner's English teams follow :

At Elmwood—First Match—All-Philadelphia, 436; Warner's English team, 435. All-Philadelphia won by one run and four wickets.

At Merion—Second Match—Warner's English team, 392; All-Philadelphia, 388. Warner's English team won by four runs and seven wickets.

THE PHILADELPHIA TEAM'S ENGLISH TOUR.

Philadelphians have every reason to be proud of the cricket team that toured England during the summer of 1897. While not winning as many games as was hoped for, still, in comparing it with the Philadelphia Elevens that went abroad in 1884 and 1889, the record made by the 1897 team was a good one. Philadelphia did not meet first-class cricket in either '84 or '89, professionals being barred by agreement. In 1897, however, Philadelphia played the very strongest teams England could put into the field; and how important a factor is the professional in English county "amateur" cricket may be judged by the statement that 70 of the 160 bowlers who opposed Philadelphia's batsmen were professionals. The results of the matches and the batting averages of the players follow :

Oxford University, 363; Philadelphians, 163 (7 wickets)—draw. Lancashire, 149-64 (3 wickets); Philadelphians, 123-86—lost, 4 runs and 7 wickets. Cambridge University, 412; Philadelphians, 149-100—lost, 163 runs and 1 inning. Philadelphians, 216-83 (2 wickets); Sussex, 46-252—won, 1 run and 8 wickets. Middlesex, 234-154 (3 wickets); Philadelphians, 117-270—lost, 1 run and 7 wickets. Oxford Past and Present, 261-84 (3 wickets); Philadelphians, 120-221—lost, 4 runs and 7 wickets. Philadelphians, 225; Yorkshire, 104 (4 wickets)—draw. Hampshire, 281-78 (5 wickets); Philadelphians, 292-163—lost, 4 runs and 5 wickets. Warwickshire, 296-201; Philadelphians, 269-230 (5 wickets)—won, 2 runs and 5 wickets. Philadelphians, 421; Notts, 244-249 (8 wickets)—draw. Gloucestershire, 363; Philadelphians, 181-153—lost, 29 runs and 1 inning. Somerset, 200; Philadelphians, 171 (5 wickets)—draw. M. C. C. and Ground, 278-280 (8 wickets); Philadelphians, 179-152—lost, 227 runs. Kent, 454; Philadelphians, 168-277—lost, 9 runs and 1 inning. Surrey, 273-372; Philadelphians, 233-258—lost, by 154 runs.

SIX DAYS' BICYCLE RACE.

Charles W. Miller, of Chicago, won the six days' bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, December 5-11, 1897. All records for a six days' race were broken beyond 40 miles, the final score for 142 hours being as follows:

Miles Laps		Miles Laps
Miller.....	2093 4	Elkes.....	1660 7
Rice.....	2026 5	Kinz.....	1616 8
Schinnee.....	2000 7	Julius.....	1503 5

Hale's championship record of 1896 was 1910 miles, 8 laps. Miller was off the track 10 hours during the week and slept 4 hours.

THE TURF.

The records that have not been excelled will be found in the LEDGER ALMANACS for 1896 and 1897. The new records are as follows:

PACING RECORD.

1 mile, by a stallion, against time, 1.59½, Star Pointer, Readville, Mass., Sept. 12, 1897.

DOUBLE TEAMS.

1 mile, 2.08, against time, Robert J. and John R. Gentry, Glen Falls, N. Y., October 8, 1897.

ALMANAC COOK BOOK.

Soups.

SOUP WITHOUT MEAT.—Put one tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan, and when it is hot add three large onions, minced fine; stir well until they are a nice brown; add a half cupful of flour and stir until that is brown also; pour in one pint of boiling water, season with salt and pepper and let it boil five minutes, stirring all the time. Just before serving add one pint of boiling milk and three potatoes finely mashed.

SPLIT PEA SOUP.—Soak over night half a pint of split peas. Drain off the water from them. Melt in a saucepan one ounce of dripping or butter. When it is hot add to it the peas, one large onion, one carrot, one turnip, half a head of celery, all sliced thinly. Stir these over the fire in the dripping for five minutes. Next put in a small bunch of parsley, two quarts of water, stock or pot liquor (liquor that meat has been boiled in), some trimmings of raw or cooked bacon (about a quarter of pound) or a ham bone. Cook all gently for about two and a half hours, or till the peas are quite soft. Then rub all the soup through a wire sieve. Reboil well, season with salt and pepper, and serve dried, finely-powdered mint with it.

DANISH DUMPLINGS.—Ingredients: One pint of milk, half a pound of rice flour, half a grated nutmeg, half a tablespoonful of butter, two eggs, and salt to taste. Put the milk on to boil, mix the flour smooth in a little cold milk, and stir it slowly into the boiling fluid; cook until very thick; take from the fire and allow it to cool; then add the eggs, lightly beaten, the butter (melted) and the nutmeg; mould this into small dumplings, about the size of the bowl of a teaspoon, and drop into the boiling soup a few moments before taking it from the fire.

Entreés and Side Dishes.

JELLIED VEAL.—Take three or four pounds of veal, boil till very tender, pick it very fine, put in a mould, season with salt and pepper to taste. Put over a layer of hard-boiled eggs, add the water in which the meat has been boiled; set in a cold place till ready to use.

CALF'S HEAD WITH SAUCE VINAIGRETTE.—Boil a calf's head until it is tender and easily separated. Divide part of it into small pieces, and, while still smoking hot, pour over it a sauce made with equal parts of onion and parsley, chopped fine and mixed with vinegar, salt and pepper. This simple dish is really delicious.

HAM CROQUETTES.—Take a quarter of a pound of cooked ham; beat the lean thoroughly in a mortar with a little of the fat, a small piece of butter and the yolks of two hard-boiled eggs. Add a tablespoonful of well-boiled rice and a sprinkle of pepper, salt and cayenne. Mix all well together, flour a board, divide the mixture into croquettes three inches long and shaped like a small sausage, and roll each in flour till smooth. Now dip each sausage in beaten egg and bread-crumbs and fry a golden brown in boiling lard. Serve on slices of hot-buttered toast and garnish with the whites of the eggs, cut in rings, with a tiny piece of parsley in the center of each. This is a novel and appetizing dish to tempt the capricious appetite at breakfast.

SCALLOPED CHICKEN WITH RICE.—The chicken should be boiled, and the rice cooked in the broth till tender. Mince whatever meat of the fowl you do not wish to serve in another way, season with salt, pepper, celery salt, a little nutmeg, bits of butter, and moisten with the broth. Line the baking dish with the rice, put the chicken in the middle, cover with a layer of rice, sprinkle cracker dust over all, dotting with butter. Bake till of a delicate brown in a moderate oven. One cupful of rice, before cooking, will be sufficient for a good-sized escallop. If there is not sufficient stock to moisten the fowl, use a little cream.

BEEF SAUSAGE.—This is an excellent dish for summer breakfast: Take three pounds of fresh lean beef and one pound of fat beef, chopped fine at the butcher shop when purchased, season with three teaspoonfuls of powdered sage, three of salt, a pinch of red pepper, one-half teaspoonful of black pepper, a piece of butter the size of an egg. Mix this thoroughly through the meat. Press in a small crock; set in a cold place. It is better for standing a day before using. By straining lard over the crock it will keep two or three weeks. Make a larger quantity when desiring to keep it.

DEILED CLAMS.—Over twenty-five clams pour a cupful of cold water, then drain as free from all juice as possible. Chop very fine. Have ready a cupful of boiling cream or milk. Stir into it a tablespoonful of butter and two of flour which have been rubbed together. Stir until it thickens. Add one ounce of bread-crumbs, the yolks of two eggs and one tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Take from the fire, mix well together, stir in the clams, and pepper heavily. Do not add salt until the clams are all in, as they may be salt enough. Fill shells of any sort with the mixture, brush over with the yolk of an egg beaten well; sprinkle with bread-crumbs and brown in the oven.

MUSHROOMS.—For one pint of mushrooms—prepared and cut to nearly equal size—take: Two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one pint of milk (or better, of cream), two eggs. Melt the butter without letting it cook or brown, stir in the flour slowly and smoothly, add the cream, boil ten minutes, stirring all the time. Add the mushrooms; cook ten minutes, or until tender; add pepper and salt to taste, and just before the last minute stir in the yolks of the eggs, mixed in a little milk. Do not let this boil more than a minute after the eggs are in. This is particularly delicious prepared on the chafing dish and served in pastry shells. It should, in all cases, be kept hot, either on the chafing dish or in a farina boiler, until the moment of serving.

TENDERLOIN À LA CREOLE.—Cut one and a half pounds of tenderloin into small steaks. When broiled lay them on a hot platter and pour round them the sauce prepared beforehand. For the sauce you will need one quart of tomatoes, four green peppers (take the seeds out with care leaving only the outer wall), two onions, one pint of fresh mushrooms or half a can of the canned ones. Cut the onions and peppers fine; simmer them over a hot fire in sufficient stock to keep the sauce thick; add the mushrooms when the onions are thoroughly cooked, and when these last are tender—in fifteen or twenty minutes—the sauce is finished.

Sauces.

COLD-SLAW DRESSING.—Beat the yolks of four eggs, add a teaspoonful of salt, one of mustard, one of pepper and four tablespoonfuls of white sugar. Bring a teacupful of vinegar to the boiling point, add three tablespoonfuls of olive oil or six teaspoonfuls of melted butter, and beat slowly into the eggs.

MAYONNAISE THAT WILL NOT CURDLE.—Take a spoonful of arrow-root, rub it smooth in cold water; boil and stir till it is clear like starch. When cool add salt, pepper, mustard, and two yolks of eggs; beat until smooth. Then add oil, as in regular mayonnaise, and then vinegar. This will neither curdle nor run, and as the arrow-root is tasteless, the recipe is a good one in times when success cannot be risked.

BREAD SAUCE.—Put half a pint of milk on the fire to boil, put in it a small onion, in which you have stuck one clove; while it is boiling, rub some stale white bread on a wire sieve or a grater. You will want two full tablespoonfuls of bread-crumbs. When the milk boils, put in the crumbs and half an ounce of butter. Let these ingredients simmer gently for about ten minutes. Take out the onion and clove, and add half a teaspoonful of salt and a few grains of pepper. Mix well, and serve hot.

SAUCE TARTARE.—Put the yolks of two raw eggs into a bowl with half a teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper, and half a teaspoonful each of French and English made mustard. Then add about half a pint of salad oil, drop by drop, stirring the sauce one way all the time. When it is very stiff add one teaspoonful each of tarragon, chili and malt vinegar, and eight or ten drops of lemon juice. Stir in half a tablespoonful of mixed chopped capers and gherkins, and one teaspoonful of chopped tarragon, chervil and parsley. The sauce should be made very stiff.

CHILI SAUCE.—Six large tomatoes, three green peppers, one onion, one tablespoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar, one and one-half cup of vinegar. Boil one hour, put into glass jars or bottles, and seal.

PUDDING SAUCE.—To one-half a pint of boiling water add two teaspoonfuls of cornstarch, and boil until clear. Stir to a cream one tablespoonful of butter and two of sugar, to which add gradually the starch. Flavor with wine or to taste.

Puddings and Desserts.

MACARONI PUDDING.—Put one pint of milk into a saucepan with the thinly-pared rind of a lemon and two ounces of loaf sugar. Bring slowly to the boil. Then remove the lemon rind, and put in two and a half ounces of macaroni, broken into pieces about half an inch long. Simmer gently till the macaroni is soft. Pour it into the baking dish. Separate the yolks and whites of two eggs. Beat the yolks and mix them with another pint of cold milk. Pour this into the dish on to the cooked macaroni. Whisk the whites to a very stiff froth, and then stir these in as lightly as possible to the other ingredients. Bake in a moderate oven till a delicate brown.

CABINET PUDDING.—Cover a greased mould with raisins or currants, then a layer of bits of stale cake, with a little citron, then alternate layers of raisins and cake, and continue until the mould is half full. Pour over this a raw custard and let stand a short time. Cover and boil for an hour. Serve with sweet sauce.

CUSTARD PUDDING.—Buy a loaf of stale cake from the confectioner unless you have it in the house. Cut off a layer an inch deep from the top, and cut out the center of the loaf, leaving thick walls all round. Fill the hole thus made with a rich custard, replace the top and ice the whole, sprinkling the soft icing with the crumbed cake cut from the center, or, if preferred, chopped nuts of any variety.

COCOANUT BLANC MANGE.—One quart of rich milk, four tablespoonfuls of cornstarch dissolved in one cupful of the milk, with three tablespoonfuls of sugar. When the milk begins to boil stir in the mixture, and, as it thickens, beat in lightly two cupfuls of cocoanut. Put in moulds on ice. Serve with cream and sugar. A little yellow orange peel may be cooked in the milk for a flavor. Take out before cooling.

LEMON CUSTARD.—Mix the juice and grated rind of one lemon with the yolks of three eggs. Next stir in one cupful of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of flour and one of butter. Then add one cupful of sweet milk. Bake in a shallow dish or plate, lined with pastry. When the custards are cold, spread over the whipped whites of the three eggs, having sweetened them with a little sugar. Put back in the oven to set the whites.

RHUBARB FOOL.—Take a bundle of rhubarb. Cut off the root end and leaves. Wipe each stick with a damp cloth. Cut it into pieces about two inches long. Put the rhubarb into a pan with half a pound of loaf sugar and one gill of hot water. Boil gently. If your saucepan gets too dry you must go on adding a little more water, but you require to cook it with as little water as possible to keep it from being too watery. When the pieces are soft rub all through a wire sieve. To each pint of rhubarb pulp that you have add half a pint of good boiled custard. Mix well and see it is sweet enough. Serve cold in a glass dish.

APPLE CREAM.—Peel, core and slice one and a half pounds of apples. Put them in a saucepan with half a gill of hot water, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and the grated rind of one lemon. Stew till soft. Then rub through a wire sieve. Next beat well with an egg whisk. Next whisk till stiff half a pint of good cream. Stir into it the apples, and, if liked, color a pale pink with a few drops of cochineal. Heap up in a glass dish. Sprinkle chopped almonds and pistachio nuts over the top, and garnish with a few heaps of apricot jam or red-currant jelly. The nuts must be thrown into boiling water and then shelled before using.

Cakes, Cookies, and Pastry.

NEW ENGLAND SPONGE CAKE.—This sponge cake will be quite good for five or six days. When a little stale, small squares, steamed and served with rich, sweetened cream, can be used in place of pudding or pie. Three eggs, one and one-half teacupfuls of powdered sugar (granulated can be used), two teaspoonfuls of baking powder twice sifted with two teacupfuls of flour, half a teacupful of cold water. Flavor with lemon juice, and bake in long or square shallow tins.

MILANAISE CAKES.—Beat to a cream six ounces of fresh butter and the same weight of sugar. Stir gradually to these two well-beaten eggs. Next add lightly half a pound of sieved flour. Mix well. Let it stand for two or three hours in as cold a place as possible. Then roll out nearly half an inch thick; cut out the cakes in a pretty fancy design. Lay them on a slightly buttered tin or baking sheet. Brush each over with a little beaten yolk of egg. Decorate the top of each with coarsely-chopped almonds. Bake in a moderate oven about fifteen or twenty minutes. Arrange on a fancy cake paper.

ENGLISH AFTERNOON TEA CAKES.—Four pounds of flour, one cup of sugar, two eggs, four ounces of lard and butter mixed. Set with yeast in the morning; let the dough rise very light. Roll, cut into round cakes, then let them rise again. Bake in moderate oven and rub with white of egg on top when done. They may be eaten hot, or else thoroughly heated in oven, and cut in half and buttered.

COOKIES.—One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, one egg, one-half cup of milk, one teaspoonful of cream-of-tartar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, vanilla or spices to flavor, and just enough flour to roll.

DOUGHNUTS.—Two teaspoonfuls of cream-of-tartar, one of soda, one egg, one-half cup of sugar, one cup of milk, flour enough to make a thick, stiff batter.

CARAMEL COOKIES.—Four eggs beaten until light, with two and one-half cupfuls of brown sugar added, with one level cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and eight ounces of melted chocolate. Drop the batter in small tablespoonfuls on a buttered pan. Bake in a quick oven.

Waffles.

SOFT WAFFLES.—Three-quarters pound butter, six eggs, one quart milk, one-half pint yeast; enough flour for a soft batter. Let it rise.

AUNT EUNICE'S WAFFLES.—One quart sour milk, one teaspoonful soda, six eggs, butter size of an egg, one teaspoonful salt, enough flour to make batter like pound cake.

MISS BETSY'S SALLY LUNN.—Bake in a loaf three cups flour, three tablespoons sugar, three tablespoons melted butter, one cup milk, one teaspoon soda, two teaspoons cream-tartar, three eggs.

PANCAKES.—For simple pancakes here is a French recipe: Two eggs, two cupfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of oil or melted butter, one-half tablespoonful of brandy or orange flower water, and one and a half cupfuls of lukewarm milk. Beat the eggs, add the milk, the butter, salt and the flour. Bake on the griddle, and serve hot with powdered sugar and cinnamon.

RICE BREAD.—To make a really healthful hot bread is a difficult matter. Rice bread not only satisfies the demands of hygienic theory, but is very delicious to the palate. To make it, boil one teacup of rice till it is perfectly tender; shake; but never stir rice when cooking. While hot, add butter the size of an egg, a pint and a half of milk, half a pint of bolted cornmeal, two tablespoonfuls of flour, two eggs, and salt to taste. Pour in well-buttered pans, having it not over two inches thick, and bake just one hour in a moderate oven. Eaten hot with nice sweet butter, or good syrup, it is at its best.

HASTY BISCUITS.—Dissolve one level teaspoonful of baking soda in one pint of butter-milk or sour milk; add two teaspoonfuls of melted butter and flour to make as soft a dough as can be handled. Roll out, handling as little as possible, and bake in a quick oven.

TIPTOP ROLLS.—Two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one cup of milk, one tablespoonful of lard and butter mixed, one pint of flour. Knead lightly and bake in a quick oven.

Home-made Sweets.

VANILLA CARAMELS.—Take two cupfuls of white sugar, one cupful of milk, one quarter of a teaspoonful of cream-of-tartar, and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Boil the sugar, milk and cream-of-tartar together in an enameled saucepan for about twenty minutes, or until the mixture will form into a ball, when a little of it is dropped into cold water. Remove it from the fire, add the vanilla, and pour into buttered tins. When beginning to harden mark into squares with a knife.

PEPPERMINT CREAMS.—Take one pound of pulverized sugar and half a cupful of thin cream or milk. Boil these together in an enameled saucepan for four minutes. Remove from the fire and add a teaspoonful of essence of peppermint or crème de menthe. Beat the mixture steadily until it is cool enough to drop without running upon waxed paper. Drop it, a teaspoonful at a time, as quickly as possible. If the last sugars in the saucepan before it can be used, return it to the fire for an instant.

CHOCOLATE CARAMELS.—Take one cup of sugar, one cup of molasses, a piece of butter the size of an egg, one cup of cream or milk, and two ounces of grated, unsweetened chocolate. Put these ingredients in an enameled saucepan, and boil them together, stirring constantly for twenty minutes. Then try them by dropping a little of the mixture into a cupful of cold water; when it is sufficiently cooked it will form into a ball in the water. Then remove from the fire and beat well until beginning to cool. Flavor with half a teaspoonful of essence of vanilla, and pour into buttered tins to the depth of half an inch. Before the caramels have hardened, mark them into small, even squares with a knife.

HARD ICING AND FILLING FOR LADY-LOCKS.—For icing use confectioner's XXX sugar. Sift it before using; have eggs very cold. Break one egg carefully—put the white into a cup; fill one-half the shell with cold water, pour this into the white. Mix well, but do not heat. Add sufficient sugar to make the frosting hard as you desire. Add juice of one-half lemon. For ladylocks take the whites of six eggs and six tablespoonfuls of sugar. Beat the eggs light, but not stiff; add the sugar, and beat till the mixture is fine-grained and smooth and stiff; add one teaspoonful of vanilla.

Beverages.

MILK LEMONADE.—Dissolve half a pound of loaf sugar in one pint of boiling water. Add to it one gill of lemon juice and half a gill of sherry. Next pour in three-quarters of a pint of sweet, cold milk, and mix thoroughly. Let stand for five minutes. Then strain through a jelly-bag or a fine tammy cloth or clean tea-cloth. Put on ice till perfectly cold.

PINEAPPLE LEMONADE.—Squeeze the juice of six lemons into a glass jug. Add to it half a pound of loaf sugar, a quart of cold water, and four slices of fresh pineapple, cut up into small cubes. Remove all the eyes from the pineapple first of all. Fill a pint measure with ice broken small, and put it in as well. Let it stand fifteen minutes before it is served.

Koumiss.—Koumiss is simply fermented milk, and is easily made at home. Have ready new strong bottles, perfectly clean, and a cork driver for forcing in the corks. Put into each of your quart bottles a pint and two gills of fresh milk, add a tablespoonful of brewer's yeast (the fresher the better) and a tablespoonful of syrup, made from sugar and water by boiling them together. The sugar must not be used in any other form. Shake the bottles until the ingredients are mixed, then fill nearly full with fresh milk and shake again. Cork and tie them and stand upright in a cool place for a day and a half, then turn them to the side and let them lie till used; from first to last the temperature of the surrounding air should not rise above 50 degrees. Before corking the bottles the corks must have been lying for an hour in very hot water until very soft. After each cork is driven home it must be tied down with very stout twine. For drawing koumiss a champagne tap is very desirable if you would not lose half of each bottle. The taps are sold at all druggists'.

UNFERMENTED GRAPE JUICE.—With ten pounds of grapes use three pounds of sugar. Weigh the grapes, stones and all, and put into a porcelain-lined kettle with one cup of water. As soon as they burst mash them through a sieve and strain thoroughly. Return the juice to the kettle, add the sugar, simmer twenty minutes, and bottle at once in bottles previously heated. Seal and stand away. Concord grapes give the best results.

CHING-CHING.—Slice one orange into a large tumbler. Drop on it two drops of essence of peppermint and three drops of essence of cloves. Add four lumps of sugar, and fill up the tumbler with tiny bits of ice and water.

Preserves and Pickles.

JAM-MAKING.—Jams are more wholesome than preserves, easier to make, and are coming to be almost universally preferred by epicures themselves. Every one has a rule for a pet method in this branch of cookery, and where it is successful no better advice can be given than to bid you follow your own recipe. But where the results are not perfectly satisfactory, a few hints may serve a purpose: (1) See that the fruit is dry, or it will not keep. (2) It should be not too ripe nor yet under-ripe, and it should be free of dust and dirt. (3) It is best if gathered early in the morning. (4) It should be kept in a cool place—not on the ice—if it cannot be used at once. (5) Get the best sugar. Cheap sugars give an unpleasant flavor, and throw up much more scum than need be. (6) Use a copper kettle, or one lined with porcelain, or a very thick enamel-ware vessel. Thin vessels burn the jam easily. (7) Jam is best boiled fast, with the lid off, and the time depends upon the quantity and upon the degree of heat kept up. Boil always till a small amount turns stiff when cooled on a plate. (8) Generally speaking, the sugar and fruit are put together in equal quantities. The best results are obtained if the fruit is heated through till the juice flows freely, the sugar heated very hot in a pan and then added to the fruit. (9) When two sorts of fruit are put together, put in first the fruit which will require most cooking. (10) See that the jars are dry and hot. Pour in the jam. Cover when cold. Keep in a dry, cool closet. Following is a little table showing when certain kinds of jam are best made. But no hard-and-fast rules can be insisted upon. It must always depend on whether it is an early or late season, if wet or dry, and very greatly on the locality. In the table will also be found the amount of sugar and water usually added to each kind, though, again, the latter may have to be left out if the fruit is over-ripe or moist:

Kind.	Season.	Sugar.	Water.
Apple . . . .	Sept. to Nov.	$\frac{3}{4}$ lb. to 1 lb. when peeled and cored.
Apricot . . . .	Aug. to Sept.	Equal weight after stoning	1 gill to 1 lb.
Blackberry	Aug. to Sept.	Equal weight	None.
Cherry . . . .	June to July	$\frac{3}{4}$ lb. to 1 lb.	$\frac{1}{4}$ pt. of red curr'nt juice to each 2 lb. of fruit.
Curr'nt red	June to July	Equal weight	None.
Curr'nt blk	June to July	Equal weight	1 gill to 1 lb.
Damson . . . .	Sept. to Oct.	Equal weight	None.

PRUNE JAM.—Prune jam is delicious for luncheon, with a bread-and-butter course. It is also one of the most healthful of sweetmeats, and should be used in every nursery. Soak and boil a pound of prunes in a quart of water; drain, save the liquor, and when cool stone the prunes; return to the fire with the liquor, half a cup of sugar, and half a box of soaked gelatine; boil up once and cool in a mould.

CLARET JELLY.—Put into a clean, bright pan one pint of claret, three-quarters of a pint of water, one gill of lemon juice, quarter of a pound of loaf sugar, two and a half ounces of leaf gelatine, one inch of cinnamon, three cloves, the thinly-pared rind of one lemon, and two table-spoonsfuls of red currant jelly. Bring slowly to the boil. Simmer for five minutes. Then strain into a mould that has been rinsed out with cold water.

PRESERVED ORANGE AND LEMON PEEL.—Boil a quantity of orange peel in clear water until it seems soft. Make a rich syrup, drain the orange peel and drop it into the boiling syrup; cook it slowly about an hour, then take it out, put on plates, and dry in a slow oven. If it dries too long or too fast it will be hard. Lemon peel may be treated in the same way, and either orange or lemon peel is good in cake to take the place of citron.

RED PICKLE.—Cover with vinegar one quart of cooked and chopped beets, one quart of chopped cabbage, one cupful of grated horseradish, two cupfuls of sugar, a tablespoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of black pepper, a quarter of a teaspoonful of red pepper.

"The Royal Baking Powder is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph. D."

"The Royal Baking Powder is the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public. H. A. MOTT, Ph. D."

"The Royal Baking Powder is purest in quality and highest in strength of any baking powder of which I have knowledge. WM. MCMURTRIE, Ph. D."

NOTE.—The above diagram illustrates the comparative worth of baking powders, all things taken into consideration — their leavening strength, keeping qualities, purity, and wholesomeness of ingredients.

* Alum powders, although possessing a variable degree of leavening power, have no economic value. Their use leads to impaired digestion and heart trouble, and they are pronounced by the highest health authorities unfit for use in human food.

** There is grave objection to the use of phosphatic baking powders. A pamphlet giving full information relative to their ingredients and influence upon health mailed free upon application.

HOBSON'S EXPLOIT.

When Admiral Cervera's fleet was blockaded in Santiago harbor there was danger that it might escape during a dark night, and on the other hand it was impossible for the American fleet to enter the harbor to engage it in battle. It seemed desirable therefore to bottle it up, and while Admiral Sampson's vessels were on the way to Santiago, Lieutenant Richard Pearson Hobson proposed a plan to accomplish this purpose. Lieutenant Hobson graduated from the Naval Academy, in 1889, at the age of seventeen. He was at the head of his class, and entered the staff as a naval constructor. He was sent abroad for several years' study in the shipyards of England and France, and returned to become professor in a school of naval construction for post graduates of the Academy. At the opening of the war he applied for active service. His scheme for closing Santiago harbor was not a haphazard device, but one based upon scientific knowledge. It involved great risks—seemingly certain death—and he proposed to undertake it with six volunteers. He planned to sink a collier—the "Merrimac"—in the narrow throat of the harbor, so as to prevent the exit of the ships of Cervera's fleet. Such nice calculations had to be made that the task appeared to be impossible of accomplishment, even in broad daylight and with the operators undisturbed by the fire of an enemy. But Hobson undertook to do it in the dark under the fire of Spanish batteries. It was thought for some time that he had succeeded, but subsequent events proved that he had missed by a few feet. This does not detract from the credit of the undertaking, which was one of unexampled difficulty as well as danger. Hundreds volunteered to accompany him on his dangerous mission, but only six were selected. There were, however, eight in the party—one being a stowaway, who had determined not to be left. The "Merrimac" was a vessel nearly four hundred feet long, and a good target for the Spanish batteries. Hobson with his small crew sailed it into the harbor at dawn of day under a shower of shot and shell. Arrived at the place selected for the sinking, he dropped the bow anchor, allowed the vessel to swing round across the channel, dropped the stern anchor and opened the valves to let water into the ship. With his men on a raft he left the vessel, and when a safe distance away fired the torpedoes previously arranged to break down the bulkheads. The vessel sank immediately, but not quickly enough for the purpose, the tide swinging her round so that she did not lie exactly broadside to the channel, but left a narrow passageway through which Cervera's fleet afterwards sailed. All of this work was performed under fire, which was so heavy that the party could not escape to Cadet Powell, who was cruising outside ready to rescue the expedition. Not a man was lost in the enterprise, but Hobson was obliged to give himself up to Admiral Cervera, who so admired his pluck that he sent word to Admiral Sampson of the safety of the party. Hobson and his men were afterwards exchanged, and after the war he rendered scarcely less conspicuous service by floating the sunken Spanish war ships, notwithstanding the opinions of older experts that they could not be saved. The Maria Teresa was raised, started north, abandoned in a storm, and went ashore again on Cat Island.

Conjunction of Mercury (♿) and the Moon (☾) February 9, 8.02 A.M.

ECLIPSES IN 1899.

In the year 1899 there will be five Eclipses—three of the Sun and two of the Moon.

First: A Partial Eclipse of the Sun, invisible at Philadelphia. This Eclipse begins January 11, 3.53 P.M., Philadelphia mean time, and will be visible in the extreme northeastern part of Asia, and in the extreme northwestern part of America, north of north latitude 50°.

Second: A Partial Eclipse of the Sun, invisible at Philadelphia. This Eclipse begins June 7, 11.40 P.M., Philadelphia mean time. This Eclipse will be visible over a large part of Europe and North Asia, taking in Japan and over the northern part of North America, taking in Alaska and Greenland.

Third: A Total Eclipse of the Moon, visible at Philadelphia. This Eclipse begins June 23, 6 A.M., Philadelphia mean time. It is total in Philadelphia and long continued.

Fourth: An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, invisible at Philadelphia. This Eclipse begins December, 2, 5.40 P.M., Philadelphia time, and will be visible around the South Pole, and nowhere on land except a small portion of southern Australia.

Fifth: A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, visible at Philadelphia. This Eclipse begins December 16, 5.32 P.M., Philadelphia mean time. Nearly the whole Moon will be obscured by the shadow of the Earth.

SOME workmen in making repairs to Heidelberg Castle found a window the style of which shows that the castle was not begun in 1411, but two hundred years earlier.

THE island of Bornhohn in the Baltic is one of nature's marvels. It consists almost entirely of magnetic rocks, which so affect the steering of vessels for miles distant that sailors are obliged to give up the use of the compass and depend upon lighthouses and other objects by which to steer their craft. Between the island and the shore there is a submerged rock over which the needle, if freely suspended, points perpendicularly downwards.

THE PLANETS IN 1899.

MERCURY (♃) will have its greatest elongation west, January 11, May 9, September 4, and will be visible after sunset. It will have its greatest elongation east and be visible before sunrise March 24, July 21, and November 15.
VENUS (♀) will be Evening Star during the first part of the year, having its greatest elongation west of the Sun February 9. It will be in conjunction with the Sun September 15, and after that Morning Star for the rest of the year.
MARS (♂) will be in opposition to the Sun January 18, and will rise about sunset, and be on the meridian about midnight. It will be on the meridian about 7 P.M. early in April, and will continue to come to the meridian earlier each evening, being on the meridian near noon in December.

JUPITER (♃) will south near midnight in the last of April, and will continue to south earlier each evening, southing about 2 P.M. in the last of September. The rest of the year it will set after the Sun and be an Evening Star.

SATURN (♄) will rise before the Sun and be a Morning Star during the first of the year. It will be on the meridian about midnight in the middle of June, coming to the meridian earlier each day. It will set about 10 P.M. in September, and be an Evening Star for the rest of the year.

SOME experiments as to the means of keeping eggs at an agricultural school in Germany show that eggs will keep perfectly in brine, but are unpalatable from being saturated with salt. Those coated with vaseline and kept in lime water were all good at the end of eight months. Those kept in soluble glass were all very good.

THE color of school exercise boards should not be black, but some shade of cream color, and the crayons used should be light blue, says the Pharmaceutical Era.

THE EPHEMERIS.

THE Ephemeris for the present year gives, as heretofore, the day of the year, the day of the month, and day of the week in civil time, according to which the day begins at midnight. Next are given the time of sunrise, the time before or after noon at which the sun's center souths, and the time of sunset. The times of sunrise and sunset are in each case for the upper limb or edge of the sun, corrected for refraction. They are more accurate than usually found in popular almanacs, and will give the time with sufficient accuracy for ordinary purposes. A surveyor's level will give the horizon where the upper edge of the sun should be at the time given in the almanac. If the telescope of the leveling instrument inverts, the upper edge will, of course, be apparently the lower one. Next are given the times of rising, southing and setting of the moon's center, and also its age, or the number of days elapsed since new moon. Then follow the times of high and low water for Philadelphia (Walnut street wharf being the point at which the times are taken), which are now both derived from the elaborate tables of the U. S. Coast Survey. Lastly is given a collection of interesting astronomical phenomena for the year. The local and standard times of Philadelphia are practically the same in all cases except in the column of sun "souths." In this case 38 seconds should be subtracted from the time A.M. and 38 seconds added to the time P.M. where the nearest second is required in standard time.

THE use of cement floors for powder magazines has been forbidden in France since 1881, and in Belgium since 1894. Oak floors, perfectly smooth and free from cracks, are required in Belgium. It is said that in cement floors particles of sand getting into cracks may cause explosion by friction.

It has been noticed that in times of epidemics tanners are free from attacks of illness. This is due to the disinfecting action of tanners' acid.

ASSASSINATION OF THE EMPRESS OF AUSTRIA.

The civilized world was shocked by the assassination on September 10th of Elizabeth, Empress of Austria. While at Genoa she was stabbed to the heart by an Italian anarchist named Lucheni. No motive for the deed other than the killing of a royal personage was apparent. The Empress was a good woman, and for years has had nothing to do with government in any way. She was a beautiful woman, a skilled equestrienne, and in late years has been noted for her eccentricities. She traveled a great deal, but not in state, and seemed the least likely of all the potentates of Europe to be marked for assassination.

THE present price of aluminum, nearly pure, is about forty cents a pound.

NATURALIZATION FRAUDS.

On February 25th, 1898, Eugene J. Lindsay, who for twenty-seven years had been a clerk in the Prothonotary's office, was convicted in the United States District Court of issuing bogus naturalization papers. He was sentenced on March 17th to two years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $2000. Richard Merrick, a former clerk in the United States Court, convicted of the same offence, was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $1000, and ex-policeman Henry Caspar to thirteen months' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $500. John A. Merrick, formerly Deputy Clerk of the United States Court, subsequently pleaded guilty to the same offence, and was sentenced to two years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $2000. In the case of Charles R. Gentner, a former representative, the jury disagreed. It appeared from the evidence that an irregular court had been set up in a tavern, some of the conspirators using their official positions to give apparent legality to the naturalization of foreigners. The business had been carried on for a long time and many fraudulent papers issued.

THE SOUDAN EXPEDITION.

General Sir Herbert Kitchener, Sirdar of the Egyptian army, continued during the year his leisurely advance up the Nile to Khartoum. He had to support him on the water, light-draught gunboats armed with Maxim and other rapid-fire machine guns, and he moved by easy stages, building a railroad to carry supplies as he advanced. On April 8th a battle was fought at Dakhila, the Egyptian and British forces attacking 20,000 dervishes in their entrenched position, and defeating them. The dervishes left 2000 men dead on the field. The Egyptian loss was 50 to 60 men killed and 300 to 400 men wounded. The British loss was slight. Osman Digna, in command of a part of the dervishes, escaped. His fellow-commander, Emir Mahmand, was captured. The Khalifa remained at his headquarters at Omdurman, opposite Khartoum, which has been destroyed. Nothing more was heard of the expedition until September 2d, when the dervishes attacked the expedition in the neighborhood of Omdurman, and were almost annihilated by the fire of the machine guns. No accurate account of the losses was obtainable, but it is believed that 10,000 dervishes were killed. The British loss did not exceed 300 killed. The Khalifa's army was virtually destroyed, and the capture of Omdurman followed. From this point the Anglo-Egyptian forces can maintain peace in a territory occupied, before the Mahdi desolated the Soudan, by 12,000,000 people.

THE French town of Etampes has replaced the recording secretary of the municipal council with a phonograph. Its faithfulness in recording defects in pronunciation and errors of speech was objected to, but the majority decided to make the trial.

THE black rot in grapes has been successfully treated by sprinkling the green grapes with calcium carbide. It is said the method was discovered by M. G. Rodier, a Frenchman.

QUEEN WILHELMINA OF HOLLAND

The coronation of Queen Wilhelmina of Holland was celebrated with a great deal of pomp and ceremony. She was born August 31, 1880, and according to the constitution of Holland was entitled to ascend the throne at the age of eighteen. Her mother, who had been queen regent for eight years, gave her daughter an excellent training. Much interest is manifested in the possible marriage of Queen Wilhelmina, for Germany is anxious to absorb Holland, and the way to peaceable absorption would be opened by the marriage of the young queen to a German prince. It seems probable, however, that her inclinations as well as political expediency will lead to the choice of a Scandinavian consort. It has been rumored that she is to follow the example of Queen Victoria and thus avoid entangling alliances.

CONSPIRACY TO LEASE THE WATER WORKS.

On December 9, 1897, Common Council, by a vote of 58 to 51, defeated a resolution approving of the sentiment expressed at the recent election that the city should maintain and exercise full control of the water supply. The vote was significant of some move about to be made by speculators. The Schuylkill Valley Water Company proposed to make a contract with the city to furnish it with filtered water. On January 17th City Solicitor Kinsey notified the Water Committee that the contract would be invalid. On February 24th Common Council defeated the bill providing for an improvement of the water supply by the city. On March 2d Select Council passed the ordinance for a fifty-year contract with the Schuylkill Valley Water Company by 22 yeas to 14 nays. On March 10th the ordinance was to have been passed by Common Council, but that body indefinitely postponed its further consideration by a vote of 67 to 62, because of an exposure made by Walter M. Stevenson, member from the Thirty-second Ward, who declared that he had been offered $5000 to vote for the ordinance. A committee to investigate was appointed. Stevenson alleged that Peter E. Smith, a member of the Republican City Committee, had offered him the bribe. On March 23d District Attorney Graham began an investigation of the charge, when Louis J. Walker, Select Councilman of the Twelfth Ward, admitted that he had been paid $500 by Common Councilman Charles Seger to vote for a favorable report on the ordinance, and that Select Councilman J. Emory Byram had offered him $5000 if he would vote for it. Peter E. Smith was held in $10,000 bail for trial on the charge of attempted bribery, and was indicted for the offense, but his trial was postponed. Nelson G. Green, of New York, counsel for the Company, Select Councilman Byram and Common Councilman Seger were also held to answer charges connected with the attempted bribery.

THE CZAR'S PEACE PROPOSAL.

In August the Czar of Russia startled all Europe by issuing a manifesto on behalf of disarmament and the permanent peace of the world. He requested the civilized governments of the earth to appoint representatives to a great conference which should consider the whole question of the modern military system. It was not the matter of the manifesto, but its source that occasioned surprise. The sincerity and lofty motives of the Czar were recognized. No statesman ventured to put himself in opposition to the sentiments expressed in favor of disarmament and peace; but in every nation cynical doubt was expressed as to the practical outcome of the proposal. In no country was it more derided than in France, the intimation being plainly given that not until Alsace and Lorraine had been restored to her could France consider the question of disarmament. The Czar's manifesto was well received in England and the United States. As a matter of courtesy the conference will no doubt be held; but the cynics are right: it will require time to bring the nations of Europe around to disarmament. Like France, each has projects to advance before consenting to permanent peace, and these projects, involving possible war, must be sustained by armed men.

SOME private collections of butterflies like that of Hon. W. Rothschild are said to be worth $500,000. The demand for rare specimens has led to imitations—sometimes the wings are dyed, and sometimes the wings from one species are fastened to the body of another.

HELPING THE SOLDIERS.

During the war with Spain, Philadelphia was active in caring for the soldiers and their dependents. A committee of City Councils took care of the latter, and the Red Cross Society and the National Relief Commission helped the soldiers in the field and in the hospitals. On July 29 Alexander Van Renssalaer placed his yacht May at the disposal of the National Relief Commission as a supply vessel to be run at his own expense. Mrs. Van Renssalaer went to Porto Rico in the May and personally superintended the distribution of supplies. On August 17 a hospital train with physicians and nurses was sent by the city to bring sick members of the First Pennsylvania Regiment to home hospitals. Many such trains were afterwards run to the different camps, some by the city and others by various hospitals. The first train brought back 110 sick soldiers. Scarcely a week passed without the arrival of a hospital train even as late as the middle of October. Thousands of soldiers were thus cared for without cost to the Government, and the greater number were nursed back to health. It was intended at first to succor Pennsylvania troops only, but the charity was soon broadened, and almost every State had its representatives in the hospitals of Pennsylvania. In Philadelphia hospitals alone more than 1000 beds were placed at the disposal of the Government. But for this help and similar help extended by other States the mortality from typhoid fever would have been greatly increased, for nearly all the camps became infected, and their hospital accommodations were utterly inadequate to meet the demands made upon them.

STORAGE batteries now furnish the light for twelve thousand mail cars in Germany. The light is cheaper than the gas hitherto used, and gives perfect satisfaction.

DR. F. MAURER, a German scientist, asserts that there are periodical changes in the seasons, the period being about fifteen years.

GOVERNMENT OF CRETE.

Prince George, as commissioner, will administer the government of Crete under the direction of the Powers. Both Prince George and the provisional-government scheme are experiments. The articles of the provisional government are as follows: 1. The administration to be carried on by the admirals in the towns, and mixed municipalities to be nominated. 2. A garde civile to be established. 3. The taxes to be collected at the custom houses in the harbors and on the coasts, smuggling to be put down, and the existing tariffs to be adopted. 4. For the control of the interior a European gendarmerie to be established, with the garde civile for patrols and military excursions. 5. Justice to be exclusively military, and the hearing of civil and commercial cases to be postponed. 6. The present employes to be retained. 7. The admirals to decline to engage in contracts and concessions, public or private. 8. The Health Board, the telegraphs and the European post offices to be retained, and the Ottoman post to be abolished. It is the consensus of opinion in European capitals that this government will be of only a few months' duration, and that the original autonomous scheme will be proclaimed as soon as Prince George has shown his ability to administer the laws. Some surprise is felt that no mention is made of the reinstatement of Mohammedans in the interior. But it is pointed out that the Mohammedans will not return unless they are escorted by European troops.

Chakis Pasha and the last of the Turkish soldiers left Crete on November 14.

THE pith of the sunflower is said to be the lightest substance known, being about one-third the specific gravity of elder pith.

THE Rafflesia of Sumatra is believed to be the largest flower known. Its diameter is nine feet, and it has a very offensive odor.

PERHAPS the largest house in the world is in Wieden, a suburb of Vienna. In it there are 1400 rooms which shelter 2112 persons.

BARBERS in Paris are now required to work under strictly sanitary rules, such as removing the hair cut off and covering with sawdust, and placing all metallic instruments in a solution of soap and boiling water before being used.

BANK FAILURES.

Bank failures of the year all had a criminal aspect and resulted in tragedies. On December 23, 1897, the Chestnut Street National Bank, of which William M. Singerly was President, closed its doors. It was supposed at the time that the embarrassment was temporary, and fruitless efforts were made to save the bank and the other business enterprises of Mr. Singerly. George H. Earle, Jr., was appointed Receiver. The Chestnut Street Trust Company failed with the bank. On February 17 the Comptroller of the Currency declared a 20 per cent. dividend for the bank. On February 27, William M. Singerly died suddenly. While the Singerly properties were engaging public attention, an order of court was issued to show cause why a Receiver should not be appointed for the Guarantors Finance Company. The following day the People's Bank suspended. On March 25 the Coroner announced that John S. Hopkins, Cashier of the People's Bank, had committed suicide. The State Banking Commissioner took charge of the People's Bank. On March 28, James McManes, President of the bank, executed an agreement to make good the claims of creditors. In fulfillment of that agreement he paid from his own estate about $400,000. On the following day, William Steel, Cashier of the Chestnut Street National Bank was held in $5000 bail for a hearing on the charge of making false entries in the books of the bank. Richard F. Loper, of the Guarantors Company, was also held in $50,000 bail to answer the charge of conspiring to defraud the People's Bank. On April 21 Receivers were appointed for the Guarantors Finance Company. In consequence of the action of President McManes Receiver Barlow of the People's Bank was enabled to declare a dividend of 90 per cent. on June 13. On June 27 judgment was entered in favor of the Record Publishing Company in suits brought to determine whether the Company was responsible for notes amounting to over $500,000 given to the Chestnut Street National Bank by William M. Singerly without the knowledge of the directors. On July 29, James McManes brought an action to recover damages against Emily V. Hopkins, executrix of the estate of John S. Hopkins, deceased, to recover damages for the loss of securities valued at $50,000 belonging to the plaintiff.

On October 5, Senator M. S. Quay, his son Richard R. Quay and C. H. McKee, law partner of Lieutenant-Governor Lynn, were held in $5000 bail each to answer a charge of conspiracy to use Commonwealth funds for their own uses, and with conspiring with John S. Hopkins, the late Cashier of the People's Bank, to unlawfully loan public moneys and with unlawfully using and employing the moneys of the People's Bank. Benjamin J. Haywood, former State Treasurer, and subsequently Cashier of the State Treasurer, was charged with the same offence, and a few days later entered $5000 bail for his appearance to answer the charge.

It was alleged that Haywood deposited State money in the People's Bank to be loaned to the other defendants; that Senator Quay had speculated in stocks through Cashier Hopkins of the People's Bank, and that letters and a book found in the Cashier's desk showed how the interest was charged. The statement, in what was called the Red Book, represents a computation of the State deposits in the People's Bank for the several numbers of days respectively stated—that is to say, between April 30 and June 15, 1897, a period of 46 days, the deposit was $525,000; June 15 to 19, 4 days, the deposit was $555,000, and from June 19 to October 31, a period of 134 days, it was $565,000. The statement, which is a sample of many others, is in the handwriting of Hopkins, who multiplied the amount of the deposit by the number of days, first deducted 20 per cent. and then the interest on $200,000 for 184 days, then further deducts the interest on $50,000 for 184 days, the balance being first divided by six and then subdivided into three parts. The theory of the Commonwealth is that the 20 per cent. deducted was for the bank and that Quay was entitled to the use of $200,000 for 184 days, the name Quay being written in connection with the $200,000.

Some of the letters and telegrams produced at the hearing were as follows:

"Dear Sir:—On Monday we will mail you a check for $100,000 for the credit of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, general fund, which will make a credit to our account of $600,000. The understanding is that I am not to draw any part of this $600,000 deposited until the Hon. R. R. Quay has paid or arranged satisfactorily to you the loan of $100,000, which you are to make to him next week. Very truly yours,

"B. J. HAYWOOD,
"State Treasurer."

A telegram dated at Muscoco, Ontario, addressed to John S. Hopkins, Cashier People's Bank, was also submitted, as follows:

"I wrote your President last Friday night saying we would not draw any part of the deposit of $600,000 until R. R. Quay had paid or arranged satisfactorily to you the $100,000 you were to loan him this week.

"B. J. HAYWOOD,
"State Treasurer."

"My Dear Sir:—Yours of the 19th inst., with enclosure received, which I herewith return. Purchase additional shares of same stock, 100 shares at 1.10, 100 shares at 1.09, 100 shares at 1.08, 100 shares at 1.07, 100 shares at 1.06. Of course, purchase all for less if you can, so that the average will be maintained. My opinion is that this stock will go higher in the near future. Your friend, Mr. Elkin, is a partner in this transaction, as you will see by the signature on the note. Mr. N. is to have the use of fifty from November 1, 1896. You and he can arrange when he shall use it.

"B. J. HAYWOOD."

"Dear John:—Give George Huhn $25,000 for me. It is for a margin in some stocks. Send me a note for $25,000, and I will sign and return."

[Mr. Graham states that that is all of the letter that applies to this case, and that the letter is signed by Mr. Quay.]

Mr. Graham—The next paper that is offered in evidence is a letter dated September 4, 1897, addressed to Hopkins and signed "Quay," which reads as follows:

"Dear John:—I have yours of the 1st and enclosures, and return note signed, as you request. Much obliged. It will be queer if the stock does not now go down ten dollars a share. My purchases always do, though they come out right in the end. U. G. I. and Sugar are saddening, but Dolan don't like us well enough to let us in on the first, and the second is a dangerous gamble."

Mr. Graham—The next letter offered in evidence is dated September 21, 1897, which reads as follows:

"Dear John:—I have at Huhn's 900 shares of Met. I wish you to take out for me. It stands $110,812.50, August 31, and with your $61,625 will make $172,437.50 I will owe your bank. I have one hundred thousand New Jersey bonds, fifteen hundred shares of New Jersey stock, which I will change into Met. as soon as the top notch in Jersey is reached. That is to say, I will sell the Jersey securities and pay off the indebtedness. The Jersey bonds ought to go to par within sixty days. When they are par the stock will be at least fifty. It will pay a small dividend next year. Please write me on receipt of this.

"Very truly, yours, " M. S. QUAY.
"John S. Hopkins, Esq., the People's Bank, Philadelphia.

"P. S.—I suppose there is some circular to the Met. holders explaining what was done at the meeting. If there is, please send me one."

The next letter offered was one dated September 28, 1897, asking permission to make an overdraft of $1000, to be carried until November, and reading:

"You can carry it as an overdraft or send me a due-bill here. " M. S. QUAY."

Other letters read as follows:

"Enclosed I send you a power of attorney to transfer 1000 shares of Consolidated Jersey stock. Please wire me on receipt. Yours truly,
" M. S. QUAY."

This letter was addressed to John S. Hopkins, People's Bank, Fifth and Chestnut, Philadelphia, Pa.:

"My Dear Hopkins—I enclose certificate No. A, 1898, for the 1000 shares of Consolidated Traction Company of New Jersey, according to promise. . . . I see 200 shares of Jersey sold yesterday at 37. I suppose it was mine. I think you can get that and better for all of it. Yours truly,
" M. S. QUAY."

"Dear Hopkins—I enclose note and $62,857.25, at your request. I presume it is for the 500 of Met. If so, I think Monte must have forgotten to collect the cash dividend of $1.25 per share. I have your telegram saying the bonds are low again. How much of the stock have you sold? We will leave here on or before the 1st of December; most likely will be home by then.

" M. S. QUAY."

"Dear John—Yours to hand. I will let you know before drawing on you. Please write me and give me state of my account. What do you hear about Met.? I thought when I bought this stock it would go very much higher than it is, but I am commencing to feel like letting it go, to take it on again at lower figures. There are no war clouds at present, and the action of the Spanish Government and the President's Message will be quieting and pacific. Yours,
" QUAY."

The next letter was dated December 7, 1897, and reads as follows:

"Dear John—As to the Met. scrip, the reason for its cheapness is that it bears no interest until next October, and that the company has the option to pay in cash or stock. The option is with the company, not with the holder of the stock. Should it go to the bad it will be continued. If the stock goes above par, and remains so, the company will pay the money. Mr. Huhn tells me, and it seems to me that, under the circumstances, 92 or 93 is a very poor price for it.

"Yours truly,

" M. S. QUAY.

"To John Hopkins, People's Bank, Philadelphia, Pa."

The next letter was dated December 10, 1897, and is as follows:

"Dear John—I have 1000 shares of Sugar that Huhn bought at .142, which I wish you to pay for and take over to the People's. I have bought it for keep, but don't wish the stock to be placed in my name just yet, as I will sell if I find I can get it any lower. Get rid of the Met. scrip and Consolidated Jersey stock as rapidly as you can at the figures fixed.

"Yours truly, " M. S. QUAY."

The next paper offered in evidence was a receipt, dated December 14, 1897, as follows:

"Received by the People's Bank, $129,651.65 for a thousand shares of Sugar Trust Certificate Company, to be transferred to the name of John S. Hopkins, Esq.
(Signed) "GEORGE A. HUHN & SONS"

Mr. Shapley—That signature is not identified. I have no doubt about it—in fact, I know it is genuine.

The next letter offered in evidence is dated December 10, 1897, and reads as follows:

"Dear Hopkins—I forgot to say that the cost of the stock at Huhn's will be about $130,000, and he has about eleven or twelve thousand of my money there, and you will have $115,000, proceeds of Consolidated Jersey securities, and the profits on the Met. will about square my account when the Sugar is paid for. I want to take $50,000 of Dick's bonds. See you about it. There are 300 more shares of Consolidated Jersey lying with Montgomery, which you will sell in addition to your present holding. I see the bonds have advanced two or three dollars, and the stock ought to go up.

"Yours truly,

" M. S. QUAY.

"John S. Hopkins, People's Bank, Philadelphia, Pa."

The next letter offered in evidence was dated December 17, 1897, and reads as follows:

"Dear John—The understanding is that Monte shall sell 1666 Consolidated Traction of Pittsburg at 42¼ against that $647,000 loan, and if sold at this price there is a margin of $423,000. This will be sent to you. With the proceeds of the 300 shares, will leave a credit to me on your books of about $10,000.

" M. S. QUAY.

"John S. Hopkins, People's Bank, Philadelphia, Pa."

The next paper offered in evidence was a letter dated Saturday, the 18th, and reads as follows:

"I go to Florida to-morrow, to be absent two or three weeks. My post-office address will be San Luce, my telegraph Fort Peirce. I wrote you last night, but without my spectacles I could not read the letter, and it may be you could not. I have 1666 shares of Beaver Consolidated preferred by Montgomery. Out of the proceeds will pay a note of $47,000. The balance will come to you, and with the proceeds of the 300 Jersey stock you will have $10,000 to my credit. I look for lower prices, and on any decided break I want you to take in again a thousand Met. and a thousand Sugar. I hear McManes has met with an accident, and hope he is getting along all right. Remember me kindly to him.

"Yours truly,
"M. S. QUAY."
"John S. Hopkins, People's Bank, Philadelphia, Pa."

Two or three other letters in reference to Mr. Quay's stock dealings followed, including one in which he said:

"According to my account I ought to have about $35,000 to my credit. I am buying 100 Mergenthaler at about 143, and will check on you for amount when purchase completed, say $14,500. Also, I wish you to buy and carry for me on margin about 1000 shares U. G. I. I want this for a spurt, say two weeks.

"Yours,
"QUAY."

Also this one:

"Dear John—Your letter was received, and I enclose check for $15,000 margin for U. G. I. I expect to get out about par. I hope to remit the Mergenthaler check out of it.

"Yours truly,
"M. S. QUAY."

The next letter was dated February 18, 1898, and reads as follows:

"Dear John—I mailed check for $4100, balance of loss on Met., at your request. Close my account, and send statement and cancelled checks, with cashier's check for balance. I feared I had bitten into my $45,000. I never tried to do a generous thing that I didn't get into trouble.

"Yours truly,
"M. S. QUAY."

This letter was addressed to John S. Hopkins, Cashier of People's Bank, Philadelphia, Pa.

This telegram followed the letter of the 13th of January, 1897. It is dated at Washington, D. C., and reads as follows:

"John S. Hopkins, People's Bank—If possible, make the note thirty-five and buy me 1000 Met.

"M. S. QUAY."

The next was without date and reads as follows:

"I mailed you the U. G. I. check this morning, and am afraid I omitted to change it from the Briggs National to People's. If so, change it yourself to the People's Bank, and charge it up.

"Yours,
"QUAY."

The next paper was a telegram dated February 11, 1898. It was read by the District Attorney, as follows:

"San Lucie, Fla.—John S. Hopkins—If you buy and carry a thousand Met. for me I will shake the plum tree.

"M. S. QUAY."

The next paper was a telegram from Washington, and was read by the District Attorney, as follows:

"John S. Hopkins, Cashier People's Bank—I hope you will discount Senator Brown's note for $3000.

"M. S. QUAY."

The next paper was a telegram, dated February 9, 1898, from San Lucie, addressed to John S. Hopkins, People's Bank, which was read by the District Attorney, as follows:

"Get out at a profit. I check on you for seven thousand.

THE RETURN OF GIDEON W. MARSH.

On November 3 Gideon W. Marsh, former President of the Keystone National Bank, surrendered to United States District Attorney Beck. He was accompanied by his counsel, E. Cooper Shapley, and by William H. Wanamaker, his bondsman.

Marsh, who was under indictment for making false entries in the books of the Keystone National Bank and for wilfully misapplying its funds, disappeared May 15, 1891. His bail of $20,000 was forfeited, and Mr. William H. Wanamaker, his bondsman, spent nearly as much more in his efforts to re-arrest the fugitive. Mr. Marsh returned voluntarily, and when asked what induced him to return replied:

"Mr. Wanamaker's speech at the Academy of Music."

The speech to which Mr. Marsh had reference was delivered in the Academy of Music on October 14, and was read by him in the place in the State of Washington where he was working. As a result of the appeal therein made Mr. Marsh started for the East, met Mr. William H. Wanamaker by appointment at midnight November 2, in New York, and returned to Philadelphia the next morning.

Mr. John Wanamaker's appeal that brought Mr. Marsh home was as follows:

"There is nothing that will please me so much as Mr. Marsh's return, and I welcome the opening again of every book and paper of the bank to public gaze, even as I did years ago. If my foes will bring this man—doubtless more sinned against than sinning—into court, and he will tell the truth and take his punishment instead of the pardon bribe he may have been offered in reward, as the Reading Post Office was offered last Tuesday evening by the Senator; if he will return and tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, I will use my utmost endeavor in securing all the leniency possible in his sentence, and after he has finished it I will aid him in re-establishing himself and his family in life.

"I would like to say to him, and would like this audience to endorse me in saying, if they can, that this is the new chance of his life, while there are so many thousands in this city and State who like fair play, and will be friendly to him if he returns to do his duty.

"Mr. Gideon W. Marsh—if the newspapers print this address and you read it—I appeal to you as one man to another, who must be met and faced in the day of final reckoning, to return immediately to Philadelphia. Even though the books and papers of the bank are conclusive enough in themselves as to the falsity of the accusation, it will be some satisfaction to me to have you open your lips upon all the facts to those who probably would not believe the truth, even though one arise from the dead."

Mr. Marsh was sent to jail to await trial.

THE AMERICAN-SPANISH WAR.

Just after the Spanish Cortes, in February, 1895, adopted a scheme of autonomy for Cuba, prepared by Senor Abarzuza, a rebellion was started in the province of Santiago. The Spaniards allege that filibusters seized the opportunity to profit by the sufferings of the people caused by the competition of German sugar with the Cuban product and to prevent the introduction of reforms that would have pacified the island. They also allege that the rebellion was not general, but was made to appear so by the operations of numerous small bands of marauders. General Weyler adopted extraordinary measures to suppress the rebels, forcing the people into the cities that they might be kept under the surveillance of his soldiers. Much misery resulted both from this measure and from the operations of rebel bands in destroying plantations. For two years the contest was waged with little result, for the rebels would not fight in the open, and the Spanish army at one time numbering 200,000 was decimated by disease. In the meantime there was continual agitation in the United States in favor of recognition of Cuban independence. President Cleveland, however, resisted the pressure for recognition, and was diligent in checking attempts to fit out filibustering expeditions. He assured Spain that the United States would not interfere until Spain's scheme of reform had been given a fair trial. President McKinley's administration started out to compose the matter. Recognition was staved off. Meanwhile Spain was asked to make various concessions, as respects the removal of Weyler, the reconcentrados, and an armistice, etc. All were granted. The hope was entertained that with Blanco favoring conciliation, the reconcentrados provided for, and peace offered the rebels, a way would be found for giving Cuba a government as free as that of Canada. The retention of a nominal sovereignty was now at length all that Spain asked.

Hostilities were precipitated by the sinking of the battleship Maine in the harbor of Havana in February. The vessel sank after an explosion, the cause of which has not been ascertained. It is not known whether it was the work of a Spanish fanatic, animated by blind hatred of the United States, or of a Cuban patriot anxious to embroil Spain and Cuba. Our commission of naval officers after patient inquiry reported that it could not trace the cause of the explosion, but thought it was from without the ship. Admiral Colomb, of the British navy, reviewing the facts elicited by the inquiry, thinks the explosion was from within, and parallels the incident with the like mysterious explosion of the British warship Daphne, which he investigated. The Daphne was exploded from within, but the cause could never be ascertained.

The explosion of the Maine, whatever the cause, fired popular resentment against Spain and strengthened the jingo party in Congress till it became irresistible. There was a loud demand for revenge and "Remember the Maine!" became a popular cry.

On April 11, 1898, President McKinley asked Congress to authorize him to intervene in Cuba with force. Congress assented on the 19th, and an ultimatum was sent to Spain demanding the evacuation of Cuba. In the declaration of war it was affirmed that the war should be in the interest of humanity and not for the acquisition of territory.

Months before the declaration of war our warships were assembled in large numbers at Key West, near Havana, and on April 22, the day after war began, Admiral Sampson began the blockade of Cuban ports. The Buena Ventura was the first prize, taken by the Nashville on the 22d, and many other Spanish merchantmen were captured within the next few weeks. In anticipation of hostilities Congress had voted $50,000,000 to be spent at the President's discretion. A large army was authorized, and 125,000 volunteers were called out. Later 75,000 more were called out. What with the regulars and other troops authorized, an army of over a quarter of a million was finally provided for. Patriotism and popular enthusiasm caused many of the militia regiments maintained for local purposes in the various States to volunteer en masse for service in the Federal army. In the South much gratification was felt at the appointment of ex-Confederates to important commands.

The first naval action of importance was the attack, made May 1, by Commodore Dewey on the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Manila, in the Philippines. The fleet was utterly destroyed. Many Spanish vessels were captured by the blockading fleet in Cuban waters, but the Spaniards did not capture a single American vessel nor win a victory of any kind. While preparations were being made to attack Havana, Cervera's Spanish fleet crossed the Atlantic, and no military operations could be undertaken until it was located and rendered harmless. The fleet was finally blockaded in the harbor of Santiago, and troops under General Shafter were sent there to aid in its destruction. Here naval Constructor Hobson distinguished himself by sinking the Merrimac at the entrance of the harbor in order to bottle up Cervera's fleet. The army moving upon Santiago fought the battles of San Juan and El Caney, and the Spaniards having been defeated and being threatened with assault in Santiago itself, Admiral Cervera attempted to escape with his fleet, every vessel of which was sunk. Ten days afterwards Santiago was surrendered with 24,000 troops.

An episode of the war was Admiral Camara's voyage to the Red Sea in June—as if on his way to the Philippines—and his return after it was announced from Washington that Commodore Watson would be sent with a fleet to harry the coast of Spain in his absence. On the way to Manila our ships from San Francisco seized the Ladrões and other Spanish islands in the Pacific.

After the surrender of Santiago an expedition under General Miles was sent to take San Juan, Porto Rico. A landing was effected July 26 at Guanica, on the southern coast, and soon after Ponce, a town of some size, fifteen miles distant, was occupied. The advance towards San Juan was slow and definite results were not reached.

Operations were checked to some extent by the prospect of peace. On the 26th of July, through M. Cambon, the French Ambassador, Spain asked what terms of peace were demanded by the United States. After some deliberation President McKinley replied, demanding the evacuation of Cuba and the cession of Porto Rico and one of the Ladrones, to the United States, with certain concessions in the Philippines to be settled by a joint commission.

Spain accepted the terms proposed, the protocol being as follows:

1. That Spain will relinquish all claim of sovereignty over and title to Cuba.

2. That Porto Rico and other Spanish islands in the West Indies, and an island in the Ladrones, to be selected by the United States, shall be ceded to the latter.

3. That the United States will occupy and hold the city, bay, and harbor of Manila pending the conclusion of a treaty of peace which shall determine the control, disposition and government of the Philippines.

4. That Cuba, Porto Rico and other Spanish islands in the West Indies shall be immediately evacuated, and that commissioners, to be appointed within ten days, shall, within thirty days from the signing of the protocol, meet at Havana and San Juan, respectively, to arrange and execute the details of the evacuation.

5. That the United States and Spain will each appoint not more than five commissioners to negotiate and conclude a treaty of peace. The commissioners are to meet at Paris not later than October 1.

6. On the signing of the protocol hostilities will be suspended, and notice to that effect will be given as soon as possible by each government to the commanders of its military and naval forces.

On October 1 the American and Spanish Peace Commissioners held their first joint meeting in Paris. The American Commissioners are William R. Day of Ohio, Senators Cushman K. Davis of Minnesota, William P. Fry of Maine, George Gray of Delaware, and Whitelaw Reid of New York.

The Spanish Commissioners are Senor Montero Rios, Senor Villarrutia, Senor Abarzuza, General Cerero and Senor Garnica.

WAR CHRONOLOGY.

February 8. The publication of a letter written by Senor Dupuy de Lome, Spanish Minister to the United States, speaking disparagingly of President McKinley, leads to the Minister's resignation of his post.

February 14. Senor Luis Polo y Bernabe is appointed Spanish Minister to the United States to succeed Dupuy de Lome.

February 15. Destruction of the U. S. Battleship Maine in Havana harbor.

February 19. The request of Spanish officials in Havana for a joint investigation of the wreck of the Maine is declined by the United States.

March 12. Senor Polo y Bernabe, the new Spanish Minister to the United States, presents his credentials to President McKinley.

March 16. Spain remonstrates against the presence of the United States fleet at Key West, and against other measures of defense taken by this Government.

March 21. Secretary Long names the two Brazilian cruisers recently purchased the New Orleans and the Albany.

March 23. The monitors Terror and Puritan are ordered to join the fleet at Key West.

March 24. The dispatch boat Dolphin and the yacht Mayflower are placed in commission at the New York navy yard. Restrictions regarding enlistments in the navy are removed. Admiral Sicard is relieved from command of the fleet at Key West on account of ill health, and Captain Sampson is ordered to succeed him.

March 25. The Spanish report of the cause of the Maine disaster is received at Madrid. The United States purchases a first-class torpedo boat built in Germany. Commodore Schley is ordered to command the flying squadron at Hampton Roads. Three large steam yachts and a tug are added to the auxiliary fleet for service as dispatch and patrol boats.

March 26. The verdict of the Maine Court of Inquiry is communicated to the Spanish Government. The New York national guard and naval reserves are ordered to hold themselves in readiness for action.

March 27. The United States cruisers San Francisco and New Orleans sail from England for this country.

March 28. The testimony taken by the Maine Court of Inquiry is made public. The Spanish Government announces that it will make no objection to the sending of relief to the Cuban reconcentrados. Commodore Schley takes command of the flying squadron.

March 29. United States Minister Woodford holds a conference at Madrid with Premier Sagasta.

March 30. The United States buys the steam yacht Aegusa in Sicily for $300,000.

March 31. Captain-General Blanco issues a decree abrogating the reconcentration edict of General Weyler in the western provinces of Cuba. Captain Sigsbee makes a statement regarding the Maine disaster to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. New York Legislature votes $1,000,000 as an emergency war fund.

April 1. The Spanish cruisers Vizcaya and Oquendo sail from Havana. The Iowa Legislature appropriates $500,000 for a war fund.

April 2. It is announced that the Spanish torpedo-boat flotilla has reached the Cape Verde Islands. An 1800-ton cruiser is purchased in England for the United States. It is ordered that salvage operations on the wreck of the Maine in Havana harbor be discontinued. Secretary Gage and Chairman Dingley, of the House Ways and Means Committee, hold a council with President McKinley on war-revenue measures.

April 4. Pope Leo XIII. offers to mediate between Spain and Cuban insurgents, and urges Spain to suspend hostilities. Steamers are sent from Key West to Havana to bring home Americans. The flag is removed from the wreck of the Maine. Many Spaniards enlist in the volunteers at Havana. The Navy Department orders the immediate purchase of ten auxiliary cruisers.

April 5. Consul-General Lee is ordered to return from Havana.

April 7. In reply to a joint note from the European powers in the interest of peace, Senor Gullon, the Spanish Foreign Minister, states as the opinion of the Cabinet that Spain has reached the "limit of international policy in the direction of conceding the demands and allowing the pretensions of the United States." The diplomatic representatives in Washington of the six great European powers present a joint note to President McKinley expressing the hope that peace with Spain may be preserved; the President, in reply, declares that the war in Cuba must cease.

April 8. The ram Katahdin joins the flying squadron in Hampton Roads.

April 9. The Spanish Cabinet decides to suspend hostilities in Cuba. The Spanish armored cruisers Cristobal Colon and Infanta Maria Teresa sail from Cadiz to join the torpedo flotilla at Cape Verde Islands. The United States cruiser Topeka and the United States torpedo-boat Somers sail from England for the United States. The Massachusetts joins the flying squadron. Consul-General Lee and the other American consuls in Cuba sail for the United States.

April 12. Consul-General Lee declares before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations that Spanish officials in Havana knew of a plot to blow up the Maine.

April 13. The Spanish Cabinet votes an extraordinary war credit. The Navy Department at Washington orders the lease of the American line steamers St. Paul and St. Louis. The flying squadron sails from Hampton Roads on a practice cruise. The Michigan Legislature appropriates $500,000 for emergency military purposes.

April 14. A council of the Spanish Cabinet decides to convoke the Cortes on April 20, five days earlier than the date set for its assembly. Negotiations for the sale of the cruiser Garibaldi by Italy to Spain are suspended. The cruiser New Orleans, lately purchased from the Brazilian Government, arrives at New York with the cruiser San Francisco.

April 15. The British Government instructs the Jamaica authorities that coal will be contraband of war. Orders are issued to concentrate nearly all of the regular army of the United States at the Gulf ports of New Orleans, Mobile and Tampa, and at Chickamauga Park. The Government charters the steamships St. Louis, St. Paul, Paris and New York, of the American line. The Twenty-fifth Infantry, U. S. A., goes into camp at Chickamauga Park. The Massachusetts Legislature appropriates $500,000 to increase the efficiency of the national guard.

April 16. The Navy Department orders the purchase of the steamships Yorktown and Juniata. The army officials call for bids for the transportation of troops to Southern points.

April 18. Commodore Howell is placed in command of the North Atlantic patrol fleet, consisting of the Yosemite, the Prairie, the Yankee and the Dixie.

April 19. United States troops from many garrisons move to the points of mobilization on the Gulf and at Chickamauga Park.

April 20. President McKinley signs the resolutions of Congress and sends an ultimatum to Spain demanding that her land and naval forces withdraw from Cuba, and requiring an answer before noon of April 23. The Spanish Minister at Washington requests and receives his passports. The Spanish Cortes meets in Madrid; the Queen Regent reads a warlike speech from the throne.

April 21. Before Minister Woodford can deliver the ultimatum of the United States to Spain he is notified by the Spanish Government that diplomatic relations with the United States are at an end; he then leaves Madrid for Paris, under guard, after intrusting legation affairs to the British embassy. After notifying representatives of foreign powers of its intention to blockade Havana, the Government at Washington orders the fleet at Key West under Commodore Sampson to sail. A blockade of the Philippine Islands by the Asiatic squadron under Commodore Dewey is decided on at Washington. The Navy Department buys the Brazilian warship Nictheroy and the yachts Corsair and Penelope. Rhode Island appropriates $150,000 to equip militia. Enlistments of volunteers are reported throughout the Union. The Spanish Government orders out 80,000 reserves. Great Britain notifies Spain that coal will be considered contraband of war. Spain lands 5000 troops on the Canary Islands. Commodore Sampson is raised to the rank of Rear Admiral.

THE PEACE JUBILEE.

After the signing of the Peace Protocol, and the return of some of the troops engaged in the operations against Santiago and in Porto Rico, an attempt was made to organize a parade of the soldiers in New York, where there had been already held a review of the navy. But the project failed and no military review was held. In the meantime a movement had been inaugurated for a Peace Jubilee in Philadelphia. A committee of citizens was appointed with W. W. Foulkrod as chairman of the Executive Committee to arrange for what was at first intended to be a local celebration. In a short time, however, the affair assumed national proportions. General Miles accepted appointment as Chief Marshal, Secretary Long cordially co-operated with the committee by ordering many war vessels to the port, and President McKinley and his Cabinet accepted invitations to be present.

It was finally determined to make the Peace Jubilee in Philadelphia the national review of the army and navy. The expenses were considerable, for the local committee was obliged to provide for the entertainment of guests, and these included an army corps. Subscriptions amounting to about $58,000 were made to a fund to pay expenses, and Councils appropriated $50,000 to the same purpose. The demonstration exceeded all expectations. Nearly all the heroes of the war, except Admirals Dewey, Schley and Sampson, who were beyond the reach of the committee, were present, and there was an exceptionally fine display on Civic Day. The original arrangement provided for a three days' celebration. October 25 was to be Naval Day; October 26 there was to be a civic parade, and on October 27 the President was to hold a military and naval review.

On Naval Day the weather was favorable, and a grand pageant was presented on the Delaware River. Anchored in the stream were the Columbia, Mayflower, New Orleans, Texas, Marblehead, Dolphin, Topeka, Gloucester and Winslow, and about these vessels a procession of all the steamboats and tugs of the city passed, while the wharves of Philadelphia and Camden were crowded with spectators. The next day, October 26, the weather was so stormy that the civic display was postponed. Fine weather succeeded and the military parade took place October 27. General Miles was in command. The procession included all of the Pennsylvania regiments, except the 10th, which was in Manila, and battalions from all the regiments in General Graham's corps stationed at Camp Meade, Middletown, Pennsylvania. Besides these, there was the 21st U. S. Infantry and band, which won fame at El Caney; the 10th U. S. Cavalry (colored), which distinguished itself at San Juan, a detachment of Roosevelt's Rough Riders, and such distinguished officers as Generals Summer, Graham, Young, Gobin, Ames, Davis and Colonel Hulings.

In the naval contingent marched the marine corps under Lieutenant-Colonel Huntington, which made the first landing in Cuba, at Guantanamo; Lieutenant Hobson and the volunteers who sunk the Merrimac, and sailors from the war ships in the harbor. Among the officers were Commodore Philip, Captain Evans, Captain Jewell, Commander Meade and Lieutenant-Commander Wainright. Altogether there were 25,000 men in line. All were reviewed by President McKinley, his Cabinet and General Shafter, General Miles commanding the column and reviewing it at the end of the route.

The Civic Day parade which closed the Jubilee was no less successful, its most notable feature being the exhibition of the art schools of the city. Scores of floats were in line, and about 25,000 men in the marching column. One of the features of the Jubilee was the Court of Honor on Broad street, between Walnut and Chestnut, which, with its illuminated arch, remained an attraction for some days after the Jubilee. Nearly five miles of stands were erected for spectators, and the route of the parade, which was over six miles long, was crowded during both days. In the evenings receptions were held in honor of the distinguished guests. The subscriptions to the Jubilee fund together with the city's appropriation were sufficient to meet all the general expenses.

LOCAL CHRONOLOGY.

[From December 1, 1897, to December 1, 1898.]

1897.—December 1. The jury in the case of William Rooney, charged with the killing of Alphonso Pickard on August 23, returned a verdict of guilty of murder of the second degree, and Judge Brégy sentenced Rooney to twenty years' imprisonment.

December 2. The Attorney-General granted the petition of the Municipal League for a writ of quo warranto to test the title of Henry Clay to a seat in Select Council, on account, it is alleged, of his connection with an electric light company which has a contract with the city.

— John Niggel discovered his wife and two young children lying in a bathtub at their home. All were unconscious from the effects of illuminating gas. The children died while being taken to a hospital.

December 3. George E. Haas, aged 35 years, assistant superintendent of S. S. White's dental manufactory, Frankford, while on his way home to dinner was shot twice in the back and mortally wounded by Alexis Churkoff, aged 36 years, a former employe. Churkoff was convicted of the murder, but committed suicide in jail on June 22.

December 5. Frederick Fritz, Jr., aged 24 years, who was shot on November 9 by Charles Gilbarth, who afterward committed suicide, died in the Episcopal Hospital.

— The Orphans' Court decided against the legality of the direct inheritance tax of May 12, 1897. Judge Ashman dissented.

— A Reading Railroad train bound for Norristown collided with a buggy, in which Jonas Hill, aged 28 years, and John Phillips, 30 years, were riding, at Scott's lane, Falls of Schuylkill. Hill was killed and Phillips badly injured.

December 6. Mrs. Samuel Sparhawk subdued a thief, who had broken into her house and attacked her husband, by striking the intruder on the head with a flat-iron. He was arrested, and gave his name as James Gallagher.

— The Board of Judges filled vacancies in the Board of Education caused by the resignation of Avery D. Harrington, Second Section, and the death of A. M. Spangler, Fourteenth Section. George M. Lowrey, Secretary of the Second Sectional Board, was elected to succeed Mr. Harrington and Joel Cook to succeed Mr. Spangler.

December 9. Common Council, by a vote of 58 to 51, defeated a resolution approving "of the sentiment expressed at the recent election that the city shall maintain and exercise full control of the water supply."

— In a tenement at 702 Christian street, Antonio Tucci, aged 27 years, shot Genovaria Tompone three times in the back and once in the left leg. Then Tucci, after setting fire to the house, entered his room and kept at bay for some time a number of policemen, one of whom he shot in the right arm, but was finally taken into custody. Tucci was convicted on March 5 of murder in the first degree, and died in prison on July 24.

December 10. The Park Commissioners transferred to Colonel Joseph M. Bennett several properties, receiving in return the tract of ground comprising 23,902 acres, valued by appraisers at $5000 an acre, which was known as the Gentlemen's Driving Park.

— Inspector-General Edward Morrell, of the National Guard, presented to the Third Regiment the Morrell Trophy Cup, which the regiment's team won at the rifle match in October.

— The Patriotic Sons of America celebrated its golden jubilee in the Academy of Music. Addresses were made by State President A. J. Colburn, Jr., and Congressman Marriott Brosius.

— Andrew Devlin, 38 years old, a dealer in oil, shot his wife, with whom he had not lived for several months, in the left cheek, but not mortally, at Ninth and Dauphin streets, and then shot himself in the head, inflicting a wound which caused his death in a few hours. Devlin was intoxicated.

December 11. Fire of unknown origin destroyed the building of John & James Dobson, carpet manufacturers and retailers, on Chestnut street, above Eighth. Falling walls and water damaged the building and stock of Sharpless Brothers, adjoining on the east, and the building of the Commonwealth Title and Trust Company and the establishment of William H. Hoskins on the west. The total loss was estimated at $750,000, fully covered by insurance.

December 13. The Union League at its annual meeting re-elected C. Stuart Patterson president. A by-law proposing that the League shall take part in national, State and local politics was defeated.

December 15. The building at 1025 Market street, owned by ex-Judge Hare, and occupied by Conway Bros., dealers in novelties, china and glassware; Gately & Fitzgerald, dealers in installment goods; Henry J. Bartle, manufacturer of blank books, and F. W. Klinger, manufacturer of leather goods, was badly damaged by fire, the total loss being about $75,000. A fireman came in contact with an electric-light wire and was hurled to the pavement from the fifth floor, sustaining dangerous injuries. Three other firemen were severely injured, and one was overcome by smoke.

November 30. Marshal Blanco left Havana for Spain.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS—SECOND SESSION.

The Fifty-fifth Congress was distinguished by its hearty support of the Administration in its war measures, without regard to politics. Besides providing the means for prosecuting the war with Spain, it sustained the national credit and passed some important measures of general legislation. Early in the session a resolution, offered by Senator Teller, declaring that government bonds may be paid in silver, was passed by the Senate by a vote of 47 to 32; but the House rejected it, the vote being yeas, 132; nays, 182. On February 7 Senator Morgan introduced a bill for the annexation of Hawaii, which was finally passed by both houses and signed by the President. The treaty of annexation could not have been passed by the necessary two-thirds vote of the Senate, but there was a majority in favor of it, and the war with Spain, by developing the idea of territorial expansion, promoted the passage of the resolution.

Both houses passed a bill prohibiting pelagic sealing, which was signed by the President December 29. They also passed a National Bankruptcy bill, signed July 7, which had been pending for many years. The Loud Postal bill was rejected.

Congress responded patriotically to the appeals of the President in dealing with the Cuban question. Although there was a majority in favor of recognition of Cuban independence, it abstained from committing the Government; it postponed action on the Maine disaster until public feeling had been calmed, and did not declare war until invited to do so by the President. Liberal supplies were promptly voted, the War Revenue bill was passed without factional disputes, and in all respects the Fifty-fifth Congress exhibited such patriotism and wisdom as to deserve a degree of commendation not often accorded to legislators at Washington. Congress adjourned on July 8.

MR. CHARLES MARSILLON has given, in La Nature, an interesting account of the phosphorescence of plants, first observed by Linnæus, from which it appears that many plants and fungi give out as much light as glowworms and fireflies.

DIVERS at Lake Huron have succeeded in recovering from a depth of one hundred and sixty feet six hundred tons of copper which had been wrecked and on the bottom for thirty-two years.

In some of the States Bryan and Watson received many votes. They have been added to the vote for Bryan and Sewall in the above table, so that the vote for Bryan represents the combined vote of Democrats and Middle-of-the Road Populists. In Texas the Bryan and Sewall vote was 288,323; the Bryan and Watson, 79,966; total, 368,289; and the vote for McKinley, 162,506. In the Populist States of Colorado, Utah and Wyoming women voted, almost if not quite doubling the majority for Bryan in those States. The total Prohibition vote is estimated to have been between 80,000 and 100,000, being highest in Pennsylvania. The Socialist vote was insignificant—being smaller than in 1892. Bryan gained 16 per cent. on Cleveland's vote in 1892; but McKinley gained 36 per cent. on the vote for Harrison in the same year. The vote was even more decisive than may appear on casual inspection. If every close State had gone for Bryan, McKinley would have been elected with four electoral votes to spare.

ELECTIONS IN 1899.

In 1899 general elections will be held in Philadelphia as follows:

For city and ward officers on Tuesday, February 21st. To be chosen: Mayor and City Solicitor, Magistrates, members of Select and Common Councils, School Directors and Constables.

Last day for payment of taxes, January 21st.

Last day for naturalization, January 21st.

For State and county officers on Tuesday, November 7th. To be chosen: State Treasurer, Judge of the Supreme Court, Judges of Common Pleas Court Nos. 2 and 3, County Commissioners and Sheriff.

Last day for payment of taxes, October 7th.

Last day for naturalization, October 7th.

QUALIFICATIONS OF ELECTORS.

Residence.—A voter must have resided in the State one year, and in the election district or division for at least two months, before the election. Where a citizen previously a resident has removed and returned, he must have resided in the State six months before the election.

Taxes.—No citizen can vote who is over twenty-two years old without having previously paid a State and county tax within two years, assessed at least two months before the election, and paid, at the latest, one month before the election.

Age.—Every male citizen between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age, having the proper qualifications of residence, native birth, or claiming the naturalization of his father during his minority, may vote without being assessed.

Naturalized citizens may vote if they have the qualifications of residence in the State and district and payment of taxes, and have been naturalized one month before the election.

Proof of Right to Vote.—If the name is not on the registry of voters, the person claiming must make affidavit of his claims, and prove his right by at least one qualified voter of the district or division. Proof of payment of taxes is made by producing the tax-receipt or by affidavit that it has been lost, destroyed or never received. A naturalized citizen must produce his naturalization papers, unless he has been for five consecutive years a voter in the district.

POLAR EXPEDITIONS OF THE YEAR.

Several expeditions are in the Polar regions this year, and nearly all of them are of particular interest to Americans because of the fact that, with two exceptions only, our countrymen are represented on them. The most important from this standpoint is the one under command of America's most noted explorer, Lieutenant Robert E. Peary, which is supposed to be now somewhere in the neighborhood of Sherrerd-Osborn Fjord, North Greenland. This expedition, which left New York last summer, has for its object the discovery of the North Pole by the Greenland route. The plan is that of its commander, and is unique in some respects. The maximum period of its absence from civilization is set at five years, and the chief reliance on success, beyond the personal energy of Lieutenant Peary, is the Eskimos. A novel feature in their use is the employment of entire families of men, women and children, instead of men only, as has been the custom formerly with explorers. In taking this course, Lieutenant Peary was actuated by the knowledge of the deep family affection which exists among the Eskimos and the strong feeling of homesickness which impairs the usefulness of the men when separated for any long period from their wives and children. Lieutenant Peary's idea is to travel by easy stages with his Eskimo assistants to the northernmost limit of land nearest the North Pole, and then make a sudden dash thither at the first favorable opportunity. Supplies are to be taken him annually by ships. Two vessels, one of which is the Windward, presented by Mr. Alfred Harnesworth, were taken by Lieutenant Peary, but neither returned, according to programme. It is supposed they were caught in the ice by an early winter and will be compelled to remain until next summer. This will render necessary probably the sending of another ship in 1899.

Next in interest to the Peary expedition is that of Captain Adrien Gerloche, who sailed more than a year ago for the South Polar regions under the auspices of the Belgian Government and by the aid of private subscriptions. Fears have been expressed for the safety of this expedition, because of its failure to put in at an Australian port, according to an arrangement before sailing. The chief interest in this expedition among the people of this country arises from the fact that Dr. F. A. Cook, a resident of Brooklyn and a well-known Arctic explorer, is one of its members. The objects of the Gerloche expedition are Graham's Land and Victoria Land.

Interest in the South Polar regions has been strongly aroused among geographers during the last few years, and, besides Gerloche's, there is still another expedition in that almost unknown section of the world, namely, that under command of Mr. Borchgrevink. His vessel, the Southern Cross, sailed last August with a large party of over thirty, and the object is to get as near the South Pole as possible.

Nothing has been heard of Andree, who, with one companion, sailed away in a balloon from Dane's Island in July, 1897, in the hope of passing over the North Pole. A number of searching expeditions have been sent out, but no traces of the two men have been found. There is little, if any, hope that either is alive. Many reports have been received and published to the effect that Andree or traces of him have been discovered, but these all proved to be devoid of truth. Among those who have made fruitless search for the daring aeronaut are Evelyn Baldwin, an American, who spent more than a year with Lieutenant Peary in North Greenland, and who was to have taken the journey with Andree had anything happened to prevent his assistant from going; Walter Wellman, a Washington newspaper correspondent, who once made an effort to reach the North Pole by way of Spitzbergen, and Theodore Lerner, a German, who made the search in the steam yacht Heligoland, and reached 81 degrees north latitude.

In addition to Lieutenant Peary's there is yet another party making explorations in the Arctic regions by way of the Greenland route. This is the one under Sverdrup, formerly captain of the Fram, when Dr. Nansen made his mighty and almost successful journey to the North Pole. Sverdrup, it is said, has taken almost the identical route planned by Lieutenant Peary, namely, by way of Smith's Straits.

OUR NEW DEPENDENCIES.

By the annexation of Hawaii, the United States acquired several islands, with an area of 6640 square miles and a population of 50,000, of whom 25 per cent. are white.

By the treaty of Paris, not ratified at the date of this publication, the United States takes temporary control of Cuba, with an area of 45,000 square miles and a population of 1,500,000, of whom 65 per cent. are white.

It also acquires Porto Rico, with an area of 3550 square miles and a population of 1,000,000, of whom 60 per cent. are white; the Philippines, including the Sulus, an area of 115,000 square miles, population 8,000,000, mostly Orientals and savages; and Guam in the Ladroneas, an area of 500 square miles, and population small and barbarous.

Cuba is about the size of Pennsylvania; Porto Rico is smaller than Connecticut; the Hawaiian islands are as big as New Jersey. Guam is about four times as big as Philadelphia, and the Philippines are as big as the New England States and New York.

SALTS of cinnamic acid have been used as a remedy for tuberculosis on four hundred patients by Professor Lauderer, of Stuttgart. From his experience he hopes he has found a lasting cure for the disease.

THE UNITED STATES NAVY.

Since the outbreak of the war with Spain the United States navy has been greatly augmented by the purchase of auxiliary boats and by capture from the enemy. Many of the vessels purchased it is expected will not be retained long after the signing of peace, but as some will be permanent additions to the navy, they are given in the list which follows. Besides those in commission there are 8 first-class battleships, 4 double-turret monitors, 16 torpedo-boat destroyers, 20 torpedo boats, 1 gunboat and 2 tugs building or about to be built. In addition, the Navy Department will ask Congress at its session in December for 3 first-class battleships, 3 armored cruisers, 6 protected cruisers and 6 cruisers of other types. If this programme is carried out, the United States will rank second among the naval powers in effective fighting ships; with ships of all classes, fourth. In the United States navy, ships are rated according to tonnage: 1st rate, 5000 tons and over; 2d rate, 3000 tons and over; 3d rate, 1000 tons and over; 4th rate, under 1000 tons. In the table below are the following abbreviations: q.-f., quick fire; pr., pounder; m., machine guns; l., light guns; * purchased for auxiliary fleet; † purchased from Brazil; ‡ captured from Spain.

ADDENDA AND CORRECTIONS.

Page 39—December 10. Justices Green and Williams, of the Supreme Court of the State, granted a writ of certiorari in the Quay case, suspending all proceedings until January 7, 1899, when the Supreme Court is to hear argument on a motion to quash the indictments or to remove the trial to another court.

Page 48—On December 10, 1898, the treaty of peace was signed by the American and Spanish Commissioners in Paris. It consists of seventeen articles. Each copy contained the English and Spanish texts in parallel columns. The documents were tied with the Spanish and American colors, and were sealed with the French tri-color, as a compliment to the French hosts of the commissions. The Peace Treaty provides that Cuba is to be relinquished, and that Porto Rico and the Philippines are to be ceded. The Americans are to pay for the repatriation of the Spanish troops from all the colonies. The Spaniards are to return all prisoners held by them. They are to retain possession of all military stores and ammunition of war in the Philippines, and of such ships as have not been captured. The commercial treaties are to be renewed at the convenience of the two nations. The protocol makes nearly six hundred typewritten pages.

Page 39—December 12. Cashier Wm. Steele was found guilty of conspiring to misuse the funds of the Chestnut Street National Bank and of making false reports to the Comptroller.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

The acts of Congress relating to the flag of the United States are very brief. The existing law upon the subject is contained in these two sections:

"The flag of the United States shall be thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white, and the union of the flag shall be thirty-seven stars, white in a blue field.

"On the admission of a new State into the Union one star shall be added to the union of the flag, and such addition shall take effect on the fourth day of July then next succeeding such admission."

It will be observed that there is nothing in the law prescribing the proportions of the flag, and that, although custom has established the use of seven red and six white stripes, a flag made of seven white and six red stripes would answer the requirements of the act.

The first act on the subject, passed June 14, 1777, provided "that the flag of the United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white, in a blue field, representing a new constellation." This flag remained unchanged until 1794, when, on account of the admission of Vermont and Kentucky to the Union, it was resolved that "the flag of the United States be fifteen stripes, alternate red and white, that the union be fifteen stars, white, in a blue field." No alterations were made until 1818, when the act above quoted as the existing law was passed. Captain Samuel C. Reid, distinguished for his defense of the brig General Armstrong against a superior British force in Fayal Roads, in 1814, made the suggestion that the stripes be reduced to the original number (thirteen), and that a star be added for each State admitted to the Union. He proposed that the stars be arranged in the form of one large star, but this suggestion was not accepted. In 1859 Congress passed a vote of thanks to Captain Reid for designing the flag.

The original flag, according to tradition, was made by Betsey Ross to the order of General Washington, she substituting five-pointed stars for the six-pointed stars in the design presented to her.

Although there is no law on the subject other than that quoted, there are orders of the War Department prescribing the sizes and proportions of United States flags used for different purposes, and some of these orders specify that the alternate stripes shall begin with the red.

The description of the garrison flag will serve, with modifications as to size, for some others:

QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE.

To be made of army standard bunting, weighing not less than one and seven-eighths ounces to the linear yard, nineteen inches wide, containing not less than thirty-four threads of warp and thirty-two threads of filling to the square inch, the threads in the warp to be two ply and in the filling one ply, well twisted; both the red and the blue bunting to be dyed in the yarn. The heading to be of eight-ounce army standard duck, three and one-half inches wide when finished, and to be interlined with a stout piece of three-inch jute webbing conforming in quality to that in the standard sample.

To have a galvanized iron staple and ring at each end of the flag heading fastened with five copper rivets.

To have thirty-six feet fly clear from the heading, and twenty feet hoist, a slight variation in either of these measurements being allowed for the elastic nature of the material of which the flags are made.

Thirteen horizontal stripes of equal breadth, alternately red and white, beginning with the red at the upper side. In the upper quarter next to the heading shall be placed a field of blue bunting twelve feet in length from the heading, extending down to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top, with stars, one for each State, arranged horizontally in six rows, the first, third and fifth rows of eight stars each, and the second, fourth and sixth rows of seven stars each, all resting on two points. The stars to be neatly sewed to the union on both sides, to be about ten inches from point to point, set in the field equidistant as in the standard sample; to be made of good quality of bleached muslin counting not less than seventy threads to the inch of warp and sixty threads to the inch of filling. The first row of stars to be placed about nine and one-half inches from the upper edge of the field to the center of the stars, and the lower row of stars to be placed about ten inches from the lower edge of the field to the center of the stars, the remaining rows of stars to be placed equidistant.

All seams to be not less than one-quarter inch wide, the end of the flag to be turned in one inch in two thicknesses and stitched with three rows of stitching. At the upper and lower corners next to the heading shall be placed a triangular stay piece of bunting, the horizontal side of which shall be about twelve inches in length, and the vertical side about ten inches in length. All seams to be neatly and strongly sewed and the workmanship in general to be equal to the standard sample.

C. G. SAWTELLE,

According to this description the field of blue is one-third the length of the flag. It is not quite square, being approximately eleven by twelve feet.

THE POST FLAG.

The post flag is exactly like the garrison flag, except that it is twenty feet long and ten feet wide, the field being six feet eight inches long from the heading. The proportions are not quite the same. The post flag is two feet longer in proportion to its width than it would be if made in exact proportion; but the width, as in the garrison flag, is economically adapted to the width of the bunting from which it is made. The field, however, remains one-third the length of the flag.

THE STORM AND RECRUITING FLAGS.

The material of the storm and recruiting flags and the specifications for making are exactly the same as for the post and garrison flags, except that three copper rivets are required for the staple and ring at each end of the flag heading of the smaller flags instead of five, as for the larger flags. The storm and recruiting flags are eight feet long and four feet two inches wide, a new proportion; but the blue field again remains one-third the length of the flag, being two feet eight inches long, the width being determined by the stripes.

REGIMENTAL FLAGS.

The flags carried by troops are entirely different in their proportions from those intended to fly from poles, and are also of different material. The specifications for national colors, infantry and artillery, are as follows:

Specifications for National Colors, Infantry and Artillery.

WAR DEPARTMENT, QUARTERMASTER-GENERAL'S OFFICE.

Five feet six inches fly; four feet four inches on the pike.

Thirteen horizontal stripes of equal breadth, alternately red and white, beginning with the red; in the upper quarter next to the pike a blue field of seamless banner silk, thirty inches long from the pike casing, and extending down to the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top, with stars, one for each State, arranged horizontally in six rows, the first, third and fifth rows, beginning at top of union, of eight stars each, and the second, fourth and sixth rows of seven stars each, all resting on two points; stars to be embroidered (needlework) in white silk on both sides, and to be about two and five-sixteenths inches from point to point, set in the field about one and one-eighth inches from each other between the extreme points. The distance from the upper edge of the field to the center of the stars in the top row, and from the lower edge of the field to the center of the stars in the bottom row, to be about two and one-half inches; and the distance between the rows of stars from center to center to be about four and one-half inches.

Colors to be trimmed on three sides with yellow silk knotted fringe, two and one-half inches deep; one silk cord and tassels, to be about eight feet six inches long, to accompany each color; to be of blue and white silk intermixed for infantry, and red and yellow intermixed for artillery; to have two leather straps, each about two and one-half inches long, three-quarters inch wide, fastened at the head and foot of the pike casing for the purpose of holding the colors in position on the pike.

The number and name of regiment (as for example, "First Regiment U. S. Infantry," "Second Regiment U. S. Artillery") to be embroidered in silk (needlework) on the center stripe, in letters and figures two and one-half inches high, white for infantry and yellow for artillery.

Pike to be of best quality of ash, straight grained, free from knots and well polished; to have a nickel-plated spearhead, and at the foot a nickel-plated ferrule to fit easily into the socket of the color sling; total length, including spearhead and ferrule, nine feet; to be one and one-half inches in diameter at a point thirty-six inches from the upper edge of the ferrule, tapering both ways, so as to be one and one-sixteenth inches in diameter at the points next to the fer-rule and spearhead; screw heads to be carefully countersunk flush with the metal and smoothly finished.

To have an oilcloth cover to fit easily over the color when rolled on the pike.

Adopted July 8, 1896, in lieu of specifications of November 15, 1895 (No. 372), which are hereby canceled.

GEO. H. WEEKS,

*Asst. Quartermaster-General, U. S. A.,
Acting Quartermaster-General.*

It will be seen that this flag, instead of being nearly twice as long as wide, is only about in the proportion of five to four. The blue field, moreover, instead of being one-third the length of the flag, is nearly one-half.

CAVALRY FLAG.

The cavalry flag is almost precisely like that for infantry and artillery except that it is smaller in every way. It is four feet fly instead of five feet six inches, and three feet "on the lance" instead of four feet four inches "on the pike." The lance, however, for the smaller flag is six inches longer than the pike for the larger flag, though smaller in diameter. In the order for artillery flags no mention is made of silk cord and tassel, as for infantry and artillery, but the illustrations issued by the War Department show the cord and tassels on the cavalry flag.

The purpose of this examination of the regulations of the War Department has been to ascertain if possible the proportion of the standard American flag, so that civilians, instead of exhibiting all kinds of American flags, may get from dealers those that conform with the regulations.

It will be seen that there is no absolute guide in the matter. For flags that are to fly from vertical poles the proportions of the garrison flag, thirty-six by twenty, with the field one-third the length, or that of the post flag, twenty by ten, with the field one-third the length, should be followed.

For flags to fly from horizontal poles, as from windows, the storm or recruiting flag should be used as a model, viz., eight feet by four feet two inches, with the field one-third the length. The flags generally sold for this purpose are eight by five feet, and are too wide in proportion to their length.

For parades and decorative use the infantry colors may properly be used, five feet six inches by four feet four inches, the field being thirty inches long, or nearly one-half the total length.

The cavalry flag is adapted to use on a lance carried by a horseman, and is not to be taken as a model for other purposes.

THE RUSSIAN Government has decided to introduce the metric system of weights and measures throughout the empire, and thinks of giving up the Russian calendar and adopting that used in the rest of the civilized world.

A COMMITTEE of the Paris Academy of Science states that in electric conductors passing near powder magazines a distance of ten yards is required for safety if underground, and a distance of double that if overhead.

FOOT-BALL.

While there is no real champion in college foot-ball, because the title is not being annually competed for in open competition, Harvard will be recognized as the best team of the year. Princeton managed to escape without a defeat, but marred her otherwise clean record by playing a tie game with West Point. Pennsylvania suffered a defeat, administered by Harvard, while Yale was beaten by both Harvard and Princeton. The scores of the leading teams made in 1898 are appended:

The result of the 1898 inter-academic foot-ball season was just as unsatisfactory as that of the year before, for although there was no division of first-place honors—Germantown Academy having won a clear title to the place—three teams, Penn Charter, DeLancy and Haverford, were tied for second place, each having won and lost two games. Cheltenham finished in last place, having lost all four games. Episcopal Academy, the sixth member of the inter-academic association, believing her eleven too light to cope with the other teams, withdrew previous to the opening of the season. The following are the scores of the games in the order played:

INTERNATIONAL MATCHES.

The results of the two international matches played at Philadelphia between the All-Philadelphia Eleven and Pelham F. Warner's second aggregation of English amateurs follow :

At Wissahickon Heights, September 16-17—Philadelphia, 94 and 59; Warner's team, 84 and 70 (2 wickets). English team won by 8 wickets.
 At Manheim, September 30, October 1-3—Philadelphia, 143 and 147; Warner's team, 133 and 161 (6 wickets). English team won by 4 wickets.

LOCAL TROPHIES.

In the race for the best batting and bowling averages in the local championship games several of the Germantown players headed the batting list, while Belmont men maintained their supremacy with the ball, and as a consequence the George W. Childs trophies will remain in possession of the same clubs, though the individual winners are not the same as in 1897. The Batting Cup goes to Reynolds D. Brown, of Germantown, who obtained a batting average of 53.66, as a result of eleven innings, while J. B. King, of the Belmont Club, wins the Bowling Cup, with a record of 31 wickets for 313 runs, or an average of 10.09 runs per wicket.

GAME AND FISH LAWS.

Synopsis of the Open Seasons and Chief Regulations in Four States.

PENNSYLVANIA.

According to the game laws in Pennsylvania, enacted June 4, 1897, it is unlawful—

To shoot or hunt on Sunday. Penalty, $25.

To shoot insectivorous and song birds. Penalty, $25.

To destroy eggs or nests of any species of birds. Penalty, $50. (Persons of fifteen years and upward may obtain a certificate granting the right to shoot birds and collect eggs for scientific purposes by making proper application to the Game Commission and paying the fees provided by law.)

To catch or kill any Mongolian or Chinese pheasant until 1902. Penalty, $25.

To sell game shot in the State: Penalty, deer, $100; birds, $25.

For any person or railroad company to carry any game killed in this State beyond the limits thereof. Penalty, $100.

With respect to fishing in Pennsylvania, it is unlawful—

To fish on Sunday. Penalty, $25.

To fish with any device except rod, hook and line. Penalty, $100. This does not apply to gill and seine net fishing for shad, herring and sturgeon in season; provided the nets for shad have meshes not less than four inches in width, or two inches from knot to knot, and the meshes of nets for herring be not less than two and one-fourth inches in width, or one and one-eighth inches from knot to knot, and the meshes of nets for sturgeon be not less than ten inches wide; nor does this forbid the use of eel pots.

NOTE.—In all cases where a person refuses to pay a fine imposed for violations of the fish laws, said person shall be confined in the county jail one day for each dollar of fine unpaid.

ALMANAC COOK BOOK.

SOUPS.

MULLIGATAWNY SOUP, No. 1.—One ounce of dripping, two turnips, two onions, two apples, one tablespoonful of curry powder, one pound of fresh mutton, three quarts of water or stock, two ounces of flour. Melt the dripping in a saucepan. Wash, peel and slice the turnips, onions and apples; fry them all for a few minutes in the dripping; next add the curry powder, and stir all well together over the fire; then add three quarts of water and the meat. Mix in a bowl the flour and enough cold water to make it a smooth batter; when the water, etc., boils, pour it in and keep stirring for a few minutes to prevent it getting lumpy; then draw it to one side and allow it to simmer gently for two hours. Next pass it all through a sieve; if you have not one, mash the vegetables as small as possible, then pour it back into the saucepan; boil up again, and season to taste with salt. This soup should be served with nicely-boiled rice, handed around separately.

MULLIGATAWNY SOUP, No. 2.—Cut up an onion and then chop it fine, chop two heads of garlic, and fry these in three ounces of ghee or butter, with twenty-four cloves, twenty-four peppercorns, two bay leaves, a delicate brown, then add one tablespoonful of the very best curry powder; fry a minute; now add one-half pint of the best tomato catsup and six or eight tablespoonfuls of good beef extract; add to this three pints of water, let it simmer gently for about two hours, pass it through a wire sieve, add salt to taste and the strained juice of half a lemon; serve with a separate dish of plain-boiled rice, handed around.

PEA SOUP.—One quart green peas, one quart water, one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter salt-spoon pepper, one teaspoon sugar, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon flour; put the peas into one pint of boiling water and cook until soft; mash them in the water in which they were boiled; rub through a strainer, gradually adding a pint of hot water, which will help to separate the pulp from the skins; put on to boil again; cook the butter and flour in a small saucepan; stir it into the boiling soup and add the salt, sugar and pepper and the milk, which should be hot. If the soup seems too thick add more milk. Peas that are too hard to serve as a vegetable may be used in this way.

HOLLANDAISE SOUP—Ingredients: One quart of white stock, two ounces of butter, one ounce of flour, three yolks of eggs, one gill of cream, one gill of milk, half a gill of cooked carrots, half a gill of cooked turnips, half a gill of cooked cucumber, half a gill of cooked peas, one bay leaf, one teaspoonful of chopped tarragon and parsley, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of sugar, pepper. Wash the vegetables, cut them into small round balls about the size of a large pea (you need a round vegetable cutter for this), then cook them all separately in boiling salted water till tender, but not broken. Lay them all in a little hot stock till wanted. Put the stock and bay leaf on to boil, skim it well, and add the salt and sugar. Melt the butter in another pan, stir the flour into it smoothly, add the stock, and stir till it boils. Next beat up the yolks of the eggs, and mix them with the cream and milk, which should be scalded. Having let the soup cool a little, strain in the "liaison" of eggs, etc. Reheat the soup to cook the eggs, but on no account let it boil, or it curdles and is spoilt. Strain into a hot tureen, add the vegetables and tarragon, season carefully, and serve.

FISH.

DEVILED CRAB—ENGLISH FASHION.—Remove all the flesh from the body and claws of a good-sized crab. Put half a pint of thick white sauce in a saucepan, then add to it one teaspoonful each of chilli vinegar, made mustard, anchovy essence, a little salt and a dust of cayenne. Chop and add three teaspoonfuls of parsley, one large red chilli and one shallot. Mix and make very hot, then add all the flesh of the crab and reheat thoroughly. Wash the crab's shell and rub it over with a little butter. Chip off the under portion of the shell, leaving a neat edge. Make the shell hot, then fill it with the mixture. Sprinkle browned crumbs over the top, and cook in a hot oven fifteen minutes. Then decorate the top very quickly with chopped parsley and lobster coral, if possible, or pieces of red chilli. Serve very hot, on a fancy paper.

CANAPEES A LA PROVENCALE.—Spread some croutons with maitre d'hotel butter; arrange some fillets of anchovy on the top to form a lattice work, and place a small caper between each of the divisions. For the maitre d'hotel butter, work up an ounce of butter with a dessertspoonful of very finely-chopped parsley, half a teaspoonful of lemon juice and a dust of cayenne.

MEATS.

HOT POT, No. 1.—Half a pound of steak, or three-quarters of a pound of neck chops, two large onions, one and a half pounds of potatoes, seasoning, a little flour. If possible have a large earthenware jar with a lid. Cut up the meat into neat pieces, and dip them in the flour; peel the onions and potatoes. Cut the onions in thin rings; cut half the potatoes in thick slices and the rest in halves or quarters. Put a layer of the meat at the bottom, then a layer of onion, next a layer of sliced potato, then pepper and salt, then meat, then onion, and so on till the dish is full, and, lastly, the halved potatoes; pour half a pint of cold water or stock into the dish, and sprinkle a little flour over the top potatoes. Put on the lid and place it in the oven for two and a half or three hours. When nearly done, remove the lid and allow the potatoes to brown. If you are in a hurry it is best to parboil—that is, to half cook the potatoes and onions before putting them with the meat.

HOT POT, No. 2.—Take three pounds of the best end of the neck of mutton and cut this into cutlets, neatly trimming them; slice down four mutton kidneys, four onions and three pounds of raw potatoes; put a layer of the cutlets at the bottom of the pan, then a layer of the sliced kidneys, onion and potato, with three or four bearded oysters; season this all with a saltspoonful each of salt and pepper; then repeat these two layers until the dish is full, covering the top with whole or halved potatoes. Pour over it all the oyster liquor and half a pint of water in which you have previously boiled down the beards of the oysters. Bake in a moderate oven till the potatoes on top are thoroughly cooked and are crisp and brown; when about to serve add to it half a pint of good boiling gravy. The oven must be a moderate one or the hot pot will be dried up; so watch it, and if necessary add a little more liquid. It will take about three and a half hours to cook this.

KIDNEY OMELET.—One sheep's kidney, one and a half ounces of butter, pepper and salt, quarter of a teaspoonful of parsley, quarter of a teaspoonful of onion, two eggs. Break the eggs carefully, putting the yolks into one bowl and the whites into another. Work the yolks with a wooden spoon till frothy. Skin and core the kidney, and cut it up into small pieces. Melt half an ounce of butter in a small pan, and cook the kidney in it; then add the salt and pepper, parsley and onion to the yolks, and mix well. Put one ounce of butter in your omelet-pan (or a small frying pan), let it get very hot, then brush it all over the pan. Now whisk the whites to a very stiff froth; add them to the other ingredients and mix very lightly. Pour the mixture into your pan; place it over a quick fire for three minutes; then put it into a moderate oven to set and slightly brown. Slip it out on to a very hot dish. Fold one-half over the other like an envelope, and serve at once.

CHICKEN PIE.—Cut up two medium-sized raw fowls into neat, small joints, and take out the bones. Skin one pound of raw sausages. Put the bones, necks and gizzards into a pan, with enough cold water to cover them, a small piece of onion, a bunch of savory herbs, and salt and pepper. Let all simmer gently for about one and a half hours. Put a layer of chicken in a pie dish, then some slices of cold ham and hard-boiled egg. Sprinkle over salt and pepper and a little chopped parsley. Repeat this until your dish is full. Then pour in three-quarters of a pint of cold water. Put on a lid of good rough puff pastry, or, if liked, short crust. Brush it over with a beaten egg, and bake for two hours in a quick oven at first, then move to a cooler part. When done, carefully lift out the entire ornament, and pour in the stock made from the chicken bones. The stock should first have been strained, and then had half an ounce of gelatine melted into it.

ROLLED BACON.—Prepare as for fried bacon, and then roll up each slice. Take a clean skewer and push each roll on to it, pressing them slightly together to prevent them unrolling. Place the skewer on a tin in the oven and bake until a nice brown. These neat, crisp little rolls look very appetizing, and are especially nice for placing around fowls or veal.

BEEF SCRAPPLE.—Three pounds of brisket, have bones cracked; boil all together in plenty of water until bones are ready to pick out; mince the meat and fat fine, put back in the same water, season highly with salt, pepper, herbs, and thicken with corn meal, sprinkled in while it boils. After boiling thoroughly put in a pan to cool. Cut in slices and fry, without adding any fat, a crisp brown.

VEGETABLES.

TOMATOES STUFFED WITH MUSHROOMS.—Take six large tomatoes and cut out a piece about an inch and a half in diameter at one end of each. Remove part of the pulp and fill with the following mixture: One tablespoonful of finely-chopped onion (fried in butter), three tablespoonfuls chopped mushrooms, one teaspoonful chopped parsley, half a saltspoonful salt, a little pepper, and one teacupful bread crumbs. Moisten with a little good gravy. Fill the tomatoes, bake in a moderate oven twenty minutes or half an hour, and serve in the same dish, garnished with parsley.

STEWED LETTUCE.—Wash four large or six small lettuce heads, remove the outside leaves, and put them into a saucepan containing cold salted water, to which a small piece of soda has been added; let it boil up, and remove the pan from the fire; drain the lettuce thoroughly, chop very fine, and put into a stewpan containing a pint of broth; let simmer until quite tender and the broth is all absorbed; then add an ounce (or more, if possible) of butter, season with salt, pepper and nutmeg, and serve very hot.

TOMATOES AU GRATIN.—Split the tomatoes in two, cutting them straight down the center; squeeze these halves gently in the hand, to express as much of the juice as possible, without, however, breaking the skin; put them into shape again, and arrange them in a buttered gratin dish, opening upwards. Meantime prepare any kind of stuffing; for instance, toss in a little butter, over the fire, some chopped shallots and onions; add to these some chopped mushrooms and tiny dice of bacon; season with salt, pepper and cayenne; stir all this over the fire; when the moisture is reduced sprinkle in some finely-chopped herbs, a little stock, or a quarter of a teaspoonful of extract of beef; thicken with the yolks of one or two eggs, according to the amount required; fill the tomatoes with this; put a tiny piece of butter over the top of each, and brown in the oven without hurrying.

TOMATO PIE.—Take three-quarters of a pound of rough puff pastry. Rub a pie-dish over inside with a little butter. Break a quarter of a pound of macaroni into pieces an inch long. Throw these into boiling salted water, and boil until soft, about three-quarters of an hour. Then drain off the water. Chop fine one tablespoonful of parsley and two teaspoonfuls of onion. Put a layer of raw sliced tomatoes into the dish, then a layer of cooked macaroni. Next a good sprinkling of the parsley, onion, salt and pepper. Then another layer of tomatoes, and so on until the dish is full. Cut up in slices three hard-boiled eggs and lay them on the top. Melt one ounce of butter in a pan; stir smoothly into it three-quarters of an ounce of flour. Put back the pan on the fire and fry the flour in the butter until a pale brown. Then add half a pint of water and stir until it boils. Flavor this sauce with pepper, salt and a tablespoonful of Worcester sauce. Pour into the pie-dish. Cover over the dish with the pastry, as for an ordinary meat pie. Decorate the top prettily with leaves, etc., and brush over with beaten egg. Bake in a quick oven about three-quarters of an hour, or until the pastry is crisp and a good brown. This may be served hot or cold.

TOMATO AND APPLE SALAD.—Take four large tomatoes, dip in boiling water and remove the skins. Slice about quarter of an inch thick, and then cut into dice. Chop fine a teaspoonful of Spanish onion or a couple of chives, and mix them with one large peeled, cored and chopped apple. Pour over a salad dressing—either mayonnaise, which is almost too rich—or, by choice, a French dressing, using lemon juice instead of vinegar.

DESSERTS.

RUSK PUDDING.—Five eggs, one pint of milk, three ounces of sugar, a wineglassful of Marsala, half a teaspoonful of powdered cinnamon, glacé cherries, one ounce of pistachio nuts, twelve rusks, apricot jam. Butter a plain mould. Beat up the eggs and add them to the milk, then add the sugar, wine and cinnamon. Arrange a ring of cherries around the mould about midway up. Put another small ring around the center of the bottom of the mould, and fill the space between the rings with chopped pistachio nuts. Dip the rusks into the custard, and place them in the mould, breaking them if need be. Between each layer of rusks put a little apricot jam; finish off with a layer of rusks. Pour over the custards. If it will not go in at first pour a little on, and allow that to soak in, and then keep on adding more. Cover with a greased paper. Steam gently for one and a half hours. Turn out carefully. Serve with a sweet sauce poured around.

TOMATO MARMALADE.—Stalk and wipe four pounds of sound, ripe tomatoes. Put them into boiling water for a minute or so, then peel them and slice thickly. Take all the skin and pith off three lemons. Slice these thin and remove all pips. Put one gill of water into a preserving pan, and four pounds of sugar. Stir carefully until the sugar is dissolved. Remove scum as it arises, and boil for five minutes. Now put in the lemon and tomatoes. Boil quickly, skim, and stir it carefully. When it is so thick that it hangs thickly on the spoon, pour it into clean, dry jars, and cover.

PRUNE PUDDING.—Six ounces of suet, six ounces of bread crumbs, half a pound of prunes, two ounces of sugar, three eggs, quarter of a pint of milk. Chop the suet fine, mixing with it the bread crumbs. Stone and chop the prunes, and add them and the sugar to the suet, etc. Well beat the eggs, and add the milk to them. Stir these two to the dry ingredients, and let the mixture stand for one hour. Grease a mould; pour in the mixture. Twist a piece of greased paper over the top, stand the mould in a saucepan with boiling water, to come half way up to it, and steam for three hours. Turn out and serve with sweet sauce.

SWISS ROLL No. 1.—Break two eggs into a bowl containing two ounces of sifted sugar, and beat altogether for eight or ten minutes; then stir in by degrees two ounces of flour, which has been dried and passed through a sieve and mixed with a small teaspoonful of baking powder. Pour the mixture evenly onto a tin, covered with thickly-greased paper, and bake for about five minutes in a quick oven. When ready, turn the sponge cake on to a clean cloth or large sheet of paper which has been strewn with coarsely-pounded sugar, take off the paper on which it was baked (which will adhere) as expeditiously as possible, spread with warm jam, and roll up at once.

SWISS ROLL No. 2.—Beat the yolks of three eggs with a teacupful of pulverized sugar for ten minutes; when they are well mixed, sift in by degrees a teacupful of flour; when this has been well worked in with the other ingredients, add half a teaspoonful of baking powder, and, lastly, stir in very lightly the whites of the eggs, whisked to a stiff froth, and bake at once in a shallow tin, which has been buttered and lined with buttered paper. The sponge-cake mixture must be carefully watched, as it will burn very easily, and directly after it is done it should be turned from the paper on to a clean cloth (spread on a pastry board) which has been sprinkled with coarsely-crushed sugar; then spread as quickly as possible with warm jam, and roll up while it is still hot.

STUFFED APPLES.—Large, sharp baking apples, one dried fig to each apple, custard, a few dried cherries. Carefully remove the cores from the apples, peel them, examine the figs, roll them as small as possible, and stuff one in each apple. Bake the apples very slowly till soft, but not broken, place in a glass dish, and pour over them a thick boiled custard. On the top of each apple place a dried cherry. Hand with this sweet wafers.

FRUIT DESSERT.—The very daintiest and most fitting dessert that can be served is a fruit salad. Have peaches and bananas and slice them when they are to be eaten, pouring over them this dressing, which should be prepared beforehand: Four tablespoonfuls of sugar, half a pint of sherry, a gill of champagne and a tablespoonful of maraschino.

APRICOT EGGS.—These are perhaps old-fashioned, but you will always find them appreciated by both old and young. Get a fairly stale sponge cake—a round one is best. Cut it into slices about half an inch thick with a round cutter. They should be about the circumference of the top of a tumbler. Spread each with a little apricot jam, and cover them with a good coating of flavored whipped cream. In the center place half an apricot—a canned one of some good brand is best. Dust with sugar, and serve on a fancy paper. This is a capital sweet to make when one is wanted quickly, it takes so little preparation. The closer the resemblance is to a poached egg, the better.

DEVONSHIRE WHITEPOT.—Put a teacupful of good raisins in some boiling water to soak, leave them in until well filled out. Take four eggs, and beat them until frothy with four small tablespoonfuls of sugar. With these eggs, stir in one pint of cream. Add a pinch of salt and a good dust of nutmeg. Get a penny roll, cut it into thin slices, and put them in a buttered pie dish; pour in the egg mixture, and shake over the whole raisins. Put two or three tiny bits of butter on the top. Bake in a moderate oven until set and a delicate brown. This is delicious, hot or cold.

CODDLED APPLES.—One quart of water, three cups of A coffee sugar. Place on the fire and make a syrup. Pare and halve Spitzenberg or other tart apples; put in the syrup and cook until clear, turning carefully with a large spoon. When cooked clear, remove apples carefully, and, if syrup is not heavy enough, cook down. A stick of cinnamon adds a spicy flavor. If cooked too fast, add a little water to the syrup.

COLCHESTER PUDDING.—Take a glass dish, put into it a thick layer of jam, or in summer, stewed fruit of any kind. Put one pint of milk in a clean pan on the fire. Shred into it the rind of one lemon, paring it very fine. Bring the milk slowly to the boil. Then strain out the rind and sprinkle in two ounces of large tapioca. Simmer this very slowly in the milk until it is soft, thick and creamy. Keep the lid on it, but stir often. Then sweeten with about two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Pour it on the fruit or jam—it should be just thick enough to flow over it smoothly. If it is too thick, mix in a little more milk. Let this get cold. Pour over a good boiled custard. Lastly, beat the whites of two eggs to a stiff froth. Sweeten with two tablespoonfuls of sugar and add a little vanilla. Color the froth a pale pink, with a drop or two of cochineal. Heap it all over the top of the custard and serve immediately.

LEMON MINCE PIE.—Two cups of sugar, two cups of molasses, two cups of boiled cornstarch (after it is boiled), four lemons (juice of all and rind of two), one pound of raisins, quarter-pound of chopped citron.

ALMOND ICE CREAM.—Blanch one pint of almonds by dropping the shelled kernels in boiling water for a minute, which will make the skins slip off easily. Then put in a frying pan and stir over a hot fire until they are a rich brown. Remove from the fire and pound to a paste in a mortar. Put one pint of milk in a double boiler and stir in the pounded almonds. Cook for twenty minutes. Beat the yolks of five eggs and stir into a syrup made by boiling together one and a half cupfuls of sugar with a pint of water for twenty-five minutes. Beat the mixed eggs and syrup for four minutes after removing from the fire, and standing the pan in boiling water. Now gradually beat into it the almonds and milk. Strain the mixture through a sieve, rubbing through as much of the solid part as possible. When cold stir in one quart of cream and half a teaspoonful of extract of almond. Freeze and pack closely with a large spoon; set away in a cold place until needed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

LUNCH BUNS.—Rub and sift together one pound of flour, half teaspoonful of tartaric acid and half teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda; then work into this two ounces of butter, adding two ounces of sugar and four ounces well washed and dried currants or sultanas, as you please; when all these are well mixed together, make a hole in the center and pour into this half a pint cold new milk, previously mixed with a whole well-beaten egg; mix it all quickly together, then set the dough in small pieces on a baking pan and bake twenty minutes, or bake all together in a buttered cake pan for one and a half hours.

NEW YEAR CAKES.—Half a pound of sugar, half a pound of butter, one and a half pounds of flour, two eggs, one ounce of caraway seeds, half a grated nutmeg, one and a half gills of milk, a few drops of almond essence. Cream the butter and sugar. Beat and add the eggs. Add half the flour and all the caraway seeds and nutmeg. Mix well and add the milk and almond essence. Work in the rest of the flour. Knead it into a smooth dough. If too dry, add more milk or egg. If too wet, add more flour. Roll it out half an inch thick. Cut it into rounds the size of the top of a teacup and bake in a moderate oven. When cold, decorate the tops with the date of the year in pink and white icing.

WALNUT CAKES.—Cream one-quarter of a pound of butter with one-half a pound of powdered sugar; add the whites of six eggs unbeaten, one at a time; one-quarter of a cupful of milk and one and three-quarter cupfuls of flour. Beat until the batter is smooth, add one cupful of English walnuts, chopped fine, and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix well, turn into a greased tin and bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Ice with fruit icing.

HAZEL NUT CAKE.—Take nine ounces of flour, four ounces of butter, four ounces of sugar, four ounces of finely-chopped hazel nuts, four eggs, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one teaspoonful of baking powder; cream the butter, add the sugar and cream again; add the beaten eggs and the flour alternately, then the flavoring, chopped nuts and baking powder; beat well, pour into a shallow cake tin, lined with buttered paper; bake forty-five minutes in moderate oven; turn out on a board when cold; take one-half pound of powdered sugar, add nearly two tablespoonfuls of hot water (enough to make a thick icing), add a few drops of vanilla, and ice the cake; when quite cold cut into cubes.

SALAD DRESSING.—If corked tightly this dressing will last for some time. Mix together smoothly four tablespoonfuls of cream and one teaspoonful of mustard; then add one teaspoonful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of salt. Next finely chop up, or, better still, rub through a sieve, the hard-boiled yolk of an egg, and add it to the mustard, etc. Add gradually three tablespoonfuls of salad oil, and lastly add very gradually four tablespoonfuls of vinegar. You must keep stirring it well all the time you are adding the vinegar or the milk will curdle. Put into a bottle and shake it well. It is then ready for use. If preferred the oil may be omitted.

MIXED SWEET PICKLES.—Boil together for fifteen minutes one pint of cider vinegar and two and three-quarter pounds of sugar for each six pounds of fruit. Tie in a piece of cheese cloth one dozen whole allspice, one teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, one tablespoonful of ground mace, and a small piece of ginger root; add to vinegar and boil. Have ready a pound of pared and stemmed pears, a pound of peaches, a pound of grapes stemmed (and stoned if desired), a pound of cantaloupe (not too ripe), a pound of pared apples, a pound of plums. Boil each fruit gently in the smallest amount of water possible until it looks clear; then turn into the vinegar and boil for ten minutes. Put into jars; boil the vinegar up again and pour over the fruit. Seal the jars.

CELERY ROLLS.—Six small rolls, half a pint of chopped celery, quarter of a pint of mayonnaise sauce. Allow one roll for each person. Cut from the top a neat round, about the size of a fifty-cent piece. Carefully scoop out all the soft crumb. Select good, crisp, white celery. See it is not stringy. Chop it very finely and mix it with the mayonnaise sauce. Season it well. Fill the rolls with this mixture, allowing it to show in a little heap above the opening. Serve on a lace paper, garnished with parsley.

THE EPHEMERIS.

THE Ephemeris for the present year gives the day of the year, the day of the month, and day of the week in civil time, according to which the day begins at midnight. Next are given the time of sunrise, the time at which the sun's center souths, and the time of sunset.

(Washington ave.). Lastly is given a collection of interesting astronomical phenomena for the year. The local and standard times of Philadelphia are practically the same in all cases except in the column of sun "souths."

APRIL.

MERCURY (♁) and MARS (♂) close together on April 3.
 MERCURY (♁) farthest west on April 21.
 Conjunction of VENUS (♀) and NEPTUNE (♆) on April 30.

THE PLANETS IN 1900.

MERCURY (♁) will rise before the sun, being Morning Star until January 15. After February 20 it will set after the sun, being farthest east on March 8, and will be visible till March 19. It will again be Morning Star from April 1 till May 20, from August 11 to August 30, and from November 25 to December 27. It will also be Evening Star from June 11 to July 22 and from October 11 to November 12.
 VENUS (♀) will be Evening Star from January 1 to June 30, and Morning Star from July 16 to end of year. It will attain its greatest brilliancy on the following dates: May 31, August 14.
 MARS (♂) will rise before the sun throughout the year, rising about an hour before the sun in February, and every day about a minute earlier, until in December it rises about 11 P.M., having then its greatest brilliancy. It is easily distinguished by its red light.

 JUPITER (♃) will be Morning Star until the middle of May. It will be in opposition with the sun, and be on the meridian at midnight on May 27. After this date it will become Evening Star. On October 19 it will pass within twenty-five minutes of the planet Uranus.
 SATURN (♄) will be Morning Star until April 26, and Evening Star from September 1 to December 10. It will be brightest about June 23, when it is on the meridian at midnight.

IN the canary-breeding establishments of Germany only the male birds are valued, for the females never sing. The method of training the birds to sing is to put them in a room where there is an automatic whistle, which they all strive to imitate. The breeder listens to the efforts of the birds, and picks out the most apt pupils, which are then placed in another room for further instruction. These are the best singers, and ultimately fetch high prices. The less gifted birds are sorted into second and third quality and are sold, while those which show no vocal powers are destroyed.

ECLIPSES IN 1900.

In the year 1900 there will be three Eclipses—two of the Sun and one of the Moon.

First: A Total Eclipse of the Sun, May 28, visible in Philadelphia as a partial eclipse. It will be visible as a total eclipse on a line passing through New Orleans, La., Raleigh, N. C., and Norfolk, Va., and as a partial eclipse throughout North America and Europe. The eclipse begins at Philadelphia at 7.50 A.M., and ends at 10.22 A.M. Middle of eclipse, which is almost total, at 9.06 A.M.

Second: A Partial Eclipse of the Moon, June 12, visible at Philadelphia. This visibility is of small duration, the moon being barely touched by the earth's shadow. Eclipse begins at Philadelphia at 10.24 P.M. and lasts seven minutes.

Third: An Annular Eclipse of the Sun, November 22, not visible in the United States, but visible in Southern Africa, on the Indian Ocean and in Australia.

A YEAR AGO Cornell University secured 30,000 acres of woodland in the Adirondack Mountains for the exclusive use of her Forestry Department. The land has been divided into a number of sections, and several seed beds have been laid out in which there have been planted over a million small trees of different varieties. The students of forestry will study the theory of the subject from October to April, and from then until commencement they will study the practical side of forestry. Cornell University is the only college in the United States which has a forestry department. Professor John Gifford was recently elected to the Chair of Forestry in the University.

A NEW WAY of blasting rock is to place a cartridge of water into a shot hole and convert it into steam instantly by electricity. This method is especially applicable in coal mines.

SATURN (♄) in opposition with SUN (☉) on June 23.

DR. SVEN HEDIN has departed on a new expedition to Central Asia, and expects to be absent about two years and a half, chiefly in eastern Turkestan and northern Thibet. The Russian Government will give his expedition free passage over the lines of railways, and will provide him an escort of Cossacks whenever he may require them.

THE French surgeon, Dr. Doyen, has exhibited to numerous doctors and students at the Kiel University cinematograph pictures showing various surgical operations. The Doctor advocates the use of such pictures for the education of students, saying they are more effective than the most elaborately-written descriptions.

THREE may keep a secret if two of them are dead.—Ben Franklin.

QUAY AND THE LEGISLATURE.

A determined fight was made in the Pennsylvania Legislature against the return of Matthew Stanley Quay to the United States Senate. The Republican party was divided into two factions, Quay and anti-Quay, the latter being called "insurgents," and the Democrats held the balance of power. For three months the balloting continued with no result, the Democrats supporting their candidate, Mr. Jenks, with 85 votes, Mr. Quay having in the neighborhood of 100, and the insurgents, voting for various candidates, between 50 and 69. Attempts were made to bribe legislators; but these were exposed, and several arrests followed. The anti-Quay Republicans proved invulnerable; but several Democrats entered into negotiations, and but for the fear of public opinion might have been tempted to abandon their party's candidate. A coalition between the anti-Quay Republicans and Democrats was rendered impossible—for if the Democrats had been allowed to break away at all, some of them would have gone to Quay. The final ineffectual ballot was taken on April 19th, and resulted: Quay, 93; Jenks, 85; B. F. Jones, 69. Immediately after the adjournment of the Legislature Governor Stone appointed Mr. Quay to be United States Senator. Under previous rulings of the Senate he could not be admitted, but strenuous efforts have been made to establish a new rule in his interest, which, if it should be successful, would admit appointed Senators from Delaware, Utah and California, as well as Pennsylvania.

THE IRON MINE at Bell Island, Newfoundland, is said to be one of the most unique in the world. It is an open deposit of ore, three hundred feet wide and three miles long, and all the labor required is to blast it with dynamite and shovel it into the cars.

JEFFERSONIAN DINNERS.

Among the amusing episodes of the year 1899 was the series of Jeffersonian dinners in New York. All factions of the Democratic party claim Thomas Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence, as their patron saint.

Bryan the principal figure, and a second $1 dinner was therefore given, under the chairmanship of John Brisben Walker, editor of the Cosmopolitan Magazine. The particular fad of this dinner party was municipal control of public service, and Mayor Jones, of Toledo, was the principal speaker.

LAST YEAR 5,200,000 pounds of aluminum, valued at $1,716,000, were produced in the United States. The value per pound was, therefore, 33 cents. In 1888 19,000 pounds of that metal were produced, valued at nearly $3.33 per pound.

SPEAKER REED.

Hon. Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, who had for many years been the leading Republican in Congress and Speaker of the House whenever in recent years the Republicans have been in control, announced in April that he would not again be a candidate for Speaker, but would retire from Congress. The reason assigned was that he found it necessary to attend to his private business, and that he intended to become a member of a law firm in New York. As Mr. Reed had not been in harmony with the Administration in its expansion policy, rumor alleged that it was on this account he had decided to retire for a time from public life. An active canvass was begun at once for the Speakership, and Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, soon developed such strength that he was accepted as the Republican candidate for Speaker. Mr. Reed entered Congress in 1877, and served continuously until his voluntary retirement. His service as Speaker was exceptionally brilliant, and he became known as the Czar by reason of his firmness. His probity is unquestioned, and because of it he has been obliged to abandon politics and return to a business in which his talents will earn for him a large income.

OFFICIAL FIGURES, showing the receipts of gold at the Seattle Assay Office for fourteen months, bring the total, September 5, 1899, to $12,058,308. The assay mint was opened for business July 15, 1898, and up to the 1st of January following—five and one-half months—the gold receipts were $5,669,157.92. From January 1 to September 5 the gold received amounted to $6,389,150.08—$5,500,000 of this latter amount having been received during July and August. The number of deposits received this year is 2367, the average value being $2327. In fifty-five days the Assay Office has made 5750 assays and 2522 separate smelts. The Government report is made only for the fiscal year—July 1 to June 30—and these figures, up to date, are from the local assayer.

THE PEOPLE of ancient Tyre were such experts in dyeing that Tyrian purple remains unexcelled to this day.

CUBA AND PORTO RICO.

The military government of Cuba and Porto Rico has been beneficial in every respect, and aroused less friction than might reasonably have been expected. There was no revolt of any importance, and no friction of consequence, except that arising from the attempt to pay bounties to the soldiers of the Cuban army. The Government of the United States set aside $3,000,000 for this purpose, but the Cuban officers declared this to be an inadequate amount, and sought to induce the soldiers to refuse to accept it. In this they were not successful, the soldiers being glad to take any gratuity. Great difficulty was experienced, however, in making the distribution. The rolls originally furnished were fraudulent, and many of the soldiers were without arms or sought to conceal them. By firm administration, however, the difficulty was overcome, and the Cuban army was both disbanded and disarmed at relatively small expense. Extraordinary sanitary improvements were effected, especially in Havana and Santiago, so that yellow fever was almost completely stamped out. Schools were opened in Cuba and Porto Rico, and business restored, to the great benefit of both islands. A tornado which swept over Porto Rico impeded the efforts to promote the material welfare of the people; but this in itself gave the American people an opportunity to show their good will, and generous gifts of provisions and clothing to the afflicted people, especially by Philadelphia, helped to prove our good intentions. The general result of American rule has been beneficial in every way. Porto Rico has been entirely quiescent. In Cuba there has been some agitation in favor of home rule, but it has provoked no opposition, and has therefore failed to gain headway. For the present, and until Congress shall act in the matter, the government will be strictly military, by a force that is insignificant, compared with the army Spain was obliged to maintain in order to preserve a semblance of peace.

HAWAII.

Scarcely anything has been heard of Hawaii since its annexation to the United States. Our government has been received as a matter of course, and no political troubles have arisen. A plan of territorial government for Hawaii was reported to the Fifty-fifth Congress, but no action was taken upon it. The temporary government proved to be sufficient for the present, and no indication of dissatisfaction therewith has been exhibited. The government of Hawaii will be one of the important questions to be considered by the Fifty-sixth Congress, but there is little doubt that the islands will be made a territory of the United States and be governed by territorial laws. Such an arrangement will put an end to the tariff on commerce with the United States, and that is the main purpose of the annexationists. One of the chief problems arising from our new possessions is what to do with the Chinese, who must be excluded under the laws passed for the benefit of the Pacific slope.

A LIFE-SAVING device which was tested on Lake Michigan is a gasoline-engine-propelled life-boat. The self-righting properties of the boat were not affected by the addition of the engine, which is placed in the after air-tight compartment. The engine is geared to twin screws, so that either screw may be started, stopped, or reversed independent of the other, and it is possible to turn the boat in a very small space. Seventy-five gallons of gasoline, sufficient for a run of 280 miles, at the maximum speed of seven and one-half miles per hour, can be carried in a reservoir located in a forward compartment.

THE LONDON papers estimate that the cost of the siege of "Fort Chabrol," in Paris, where Guerin defied the efforts of the French Government to arrest him for several weeks, was about $80,000. This includes the item of the pay of the 600 men who were constantly on duty—150 municipal guardsmen, 150 troops of the line, four firemen and the remainder policemen and detectives.

OUR IMPORT trade is nearly one-half that of Great Britain and her colonies.

TRIAL OF M. S. QUAY.

The trial of M. S. Quay, United States Senator from Pennsylvania, on charges of conspiracy with the late John S. Hopkins, Cashier of the People's Bank, to misuse State moneys on deposit in that institution, was begun on April 10. The defense fought strenuously against the admission of certain letters and entries in bank books, some of which appear in the Ledger Almanac for 1899; but the Court admitted them, as well as the famous "Red book," containing Cashier Hopkins' memoranda of divisions made of profits. Clay Kemble testified that Hopkins "was the whole bank." An expert testified that the "Red book" was one of the books of the bank. An expert made calculations showing how interest on State deposits in the People's Bank was divided between the alleged conspirators. He was cross-examined in an endeavor to show that his testimony was unreliable, and that within the statutory period of two years Mr. Quay was a creditor instead of a debtor of the bank.

Counsel for Quay asked that the case be withdrawn from the jury; but this being denied, the case was closed without the taking of any testimony for the defense. After speeches by counsel, Judge Biddle briefly charged the jury, which retired at 3 o'clock on April 20, and the next morning brought in a verdict of not guilty.

THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL of the city of Paris has voted to give annually six prizes to the architects and constructors of the six handsomest buildings erected during the year.

JAPANESE NEWSPAPERS are published in Brooklyn, San Francisco and Honolulu, and Japanese magazines at Los Angeles and Sacramento. They are either lithographed or produced by some manifold process.

Explanations to Tide Tables.

To find the times of high or low water for any place given in the table above, apply the correction opposite the place to the times of high or low water for Philadelphia given on each calendar page of this Almanac. Add the correction when it is plus, and subtract it when it is minus.

EXAMPLE—At what time in the morning will it be low water in New Castle, Del., on April 15, 1900?

Time of low water at Philadelphia, April 15, A.M. . . . . 8h. 41m. A.M.
 Correction for New Castle (see table above) . . . . . -2 9

Time of low water at New Castle on April 15, 1900 . . . . . 6h. 32m. A.M.

The places, instead of being arranged alphabetically, are put as nearly as may be in their geographical order, beginning on the northern New Jersey coast, and following the coast to the Delaware, and thence up that river and the Schuylkill.

CHURCHES AND RELIGIOUS SERVICES IN PHILADELPHIA.

[Corrected to November 8, 1899.]

When not otherwise stated, the hours of service are—10½ morning and 7½ evening.

The Public Ledger, on Saturday of each week, contains a summary of the Religious News of the week, embracing important facts relating to all denominations, Selections of Religious Thought and a department devoted to Sunday-school Lessons.

On Saturdays the Ledger contains advertisements of the Religious Services of the principal churches.

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S HOME-COMING

Admiral Dewey returned to the United States from Manila on board the Olympia in leisurely fashion, and had completely recovered his health before his arrival. He was in receipt of many attentions at the few places of importance where his vessel stopped. He arrived in New York harbor on September 26, a day before his scheduled time, but the Olympia remained at anchor off Staten Island until September 29, when a great naval parade was held in honor of the Admiral. The North Atlantic Squadron, under command of Admiral Sampson, led the procession of war ships, which included the Chicago, Admiral Howison, which had just arrived. There was an immense turnout of steamboats, tugs and private yachts. On September 30 a great land parade was held, and a loving cup was presented to the Admiral by the city. He was welcomed to Washington on October 2, reviewing a civic parade, and on the following day the sword voted to him by Congress was presented to him by President McKinley at the Capitol. On October 4 Admiral Dewey was detached from the Olympia at his own request. He accepted a house in Washington, purchased by the contributions of 50,000 of his fellow-citizens, and had scarcely been installed before he announced his engagement to Mrs. Mildred Hazen, widow of the late General Hazen. In the meantime he had attended receptions in Montpelier and Boston, and declined many other invitations. The wedding of Admiral Dewey and Mrs. Hazen took place on November 9, the wedding couple going to New York to spend their honeymoon. Admiral Dewey was repeatedly importuned to become a candidate for President, but firmly rejected all such suggestions, and generally conducted himself with much modesty and consideration for his junior officers and men, never failing to give them full credit for their share in his famous victory at Manila.

THE PREVAILING USE of electricity has brought about a large increase in fires, owing to crossed wires. Ten years ago there were only sixty-five such fires, and last year there were nine hundred and fifty-eight.

THE TREATY WITH SPAIN.

Provisions of the Agreement Ratified by the Senate.

On August 12, 1898, the protocol was signed by Secretary Day for the United States and M. Cambon for Spain. Immediately thereafter the President proclaimed an armistice and hostilities ceased. According to the terms of the protocol, the Governments of the United States and of Spain each appointed five Commissioners to meet at Paris and negotiate a final treaty of peace. The diplomatic contest was ended by the signing of the treaty by the Commissioners of both Powers on December 10, 1898.

On January 4, 1899, the treaty was transmitted to the Senate by the President. It was read in executive session and at once referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. The Committee reported the treaty favorably on January 11, and the treaty was ratified February 6, 1899.

Text of the Treaty.

The United States of America and Her Majesty the Queen Regent of Spain, in the name of her august son, Don Alfonso XIII, desiring to end the state of war now existing between the two countries, have for that purpose appointed as Plenipotentiaries: the President of the United States: William R. Day, Cushman K. Davis, William P. Frye, George Gray and Whitelaw Reid, citizens of the United States; and Her Majesty the Queen Regent of Spain: Don Eugenio Montero Rios, President of the Senate; Don Buenaventura de Abarzuza, Senator of the kingdom and ex-Minister of the Crown; Don Jose de Garnica, Deputy to the Cortes and Associate Justice of the Supreme Court; Don Wenceslao Ramirez de Villa Urtutia, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Brussels; and Don Rafael Cerero, General of Division—who, having assembled in Paris and having exchanged their full powers, which were found to be in due and proper form, have, after discussion of the matters before them, agreed upon the following articles:

ARTICLE I.

Spain relinquishes all claim of sovereignty over and title to Cuba. And as the island is, upon its evacuation by Spain, to be occupied by the United States, the United States will, so long as such occupation shall last, assume and discharge the obligations that may under international law result from the fact of its occupation for the protection of life and property.

ARTICLE II.

Spain cedes to the United States the island of Porto Rico and other islands now under Spanish sovereignty in the West Indies, and the island of Guam, in the Marianas or Ladrones.

ARTICLE III.

Spain cedes to the United States the archipelago known as the Philippine Islands, and comprehending the islands lying within the following lines: A line running from west to east along or near the twentieth parallel of north latitude, and through the middle of the navigable channel of Bachtu, from the one hundred and eighteenth (118th) to the one hundred and twenty-seventh (127th) degree meridian of longitude east of Greenwich, thence along the one hundred and twenty-seventh (127th) degree meridian of longitude east of Greenwich to the parallel of four degrees and forty-five minutes (4° 45') north latitude, thence along the parallel of four degrees and forty-five minutes (4° 45') north latitude to its intersection with the meridian of longitude one hundred and nineteen degrees and thirty-five minutes (119° 35') east of Greenwich, thence along the meridian of longitude one hundred and nineteen degrees and thirty-five minutes (119° 35') east of Greenwich to the parallel of latitude seven degrees and forty minutes (7° 40') north, thence along the parallel of latitude seven degrees and forty minutes (7° 40') north to its intersection with the one hundred and sixteenth (116th) degree meridian of longitude east of Greenwich, thence by a direct line to the intersection of the tenth (10th) degree parallel of north latitude with the one hundred and eighteenth (118th) degree meridian of longitude east of Greenwich, and thence along the one hundred and eighteenth (118th) degree meridian of longitude east of Greenwich to the point of beginning.

The United States will pay to Spain the sum of twenty million dollars ($20,000,000) within three months after the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty.

ARTICLE IV.

The United States will, for ten years from the date of exchange of ratifications of the present treaty, admit Spanish ships and merchandise to the ports of the Philippine Islands on the same terms as ships and merchandise of the United States.

ARTICLE V.

The United States will, upon the signature of the present treaty, send back to Spain, at its own cost, the Spanish soldiers taken as prisoners of war on the capture of Manila by the American forces. The arms of the soldiers in question shall be restored to them.

Spain will, upon the exchange of the ratifications of the present treaty, proceed to evacuate the Philippines, as well as the island of Guam, on terms similar to those agreed upon by the Commissioners appointed to arrange for the evacuation of Porto Rico and other islands in the West Indies under the protocol of August 12, 1898, which is to continue in force till its provisions are completely executed.

The time within which the evacuation of the Philippine Islands and Guam shall be completed shall be fixed by the two Governments. Stands of colors, uncaptured war vessels, small arms, guns of all calibres, with their carriages and accessories, powder, ammunition, live stock and materials, and supplies of all kinds belonging to the land and naval forces of Spain in the Philippines and Guam, remain the property of Spain. Pieces of heavy ordnance, exclusive of field artillery, in the fortifications and coast defences shall remain in their emplacements for the term of six months, to be reckoned from the exchange of ratifications of the treaty; and the United States may in the meantime purchase such material from Spain, if a satisfactory agreement between the two Governments on the subject shall be reached.

ARTICLE VI.

Spain will, upon the signature of the present treaty, release all prisoners of war and all persons detained or imprisoned for political offences in connection with the insurrections in Cuba and the Philippines and the war with the United States.

Reciprocally, the United States will release all persons made prisoners of war by the American forces, and will undertake to obtain the release of all Spanish prisoners in the hands of the insurgents in Cuba and the Philippines.

The Government of the United States will at its own cost return to Spain, and the Government of Spain will at its own cost return to the United States, Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, according to the situation of their respective homes, prisoners released or caused to be released by them, respectively, under this article.

ARTICLE VII.

The United States and Spain mutually relinquish all claims for indemnity, national and individual, of every kind, of either Government, or of its citizens or subjects, against the other Government, which may have arisen since the beginning of the late insurrection in Cuba and prior to the exchange of ratifications of the present treaty, including all claims for indemnity for the cost of the war. The United States will adjudicate and settle the claims of its citizens against Spain relinquished in this article.

ARTICLE VIII.

In conformity with the provisions of Articles I, II and III of this treaty, Spain relinquishes in Cuba and cedes in Porto Rico and other islands in the West Indies, in the island of Guam, and in the Philippine archipelago all the buildings, wharves, barracks, forts, structures, public highways and other immovable property which in conformity with law belong to the public domain, and as such belong to the Crown of Spain.

And it is hereby declared that the relinquishment or cession, as the case may be, to which the preceding paragraph refers, cannot in any respect impair the property or rights which by law belong to the peaceful possession of property of all kinds of provinces, municipalities, public or private establishments, ecclesiastical or civic bodies, or any other associations having legal capacity to acquire and possess property in the aforesaid territories renounced or ceded, or of private individuals, of whatsoever nationality such individuals may be.

The aforesaid relinquishment or cession, as the case may be, includes all documents exclusively referring to the sovereignty relinquished or ceded that may exist in the archives of the Peninsula. Where any document in such archives only in part relates to said sovereignty, a copy of such part will be furnished whenever it shall be requested. Like rules shall be reciprocally observed in favor of Spain in respect of documents in the archives of the islands above referred to.

In the aforesaid relinquishment or cession, as the case may be, are also included such rights as the Crown of Spain and its authorities possess in respect of the official archives and records, executive as well as judicial, in the islands above referred to, which relate to said islands or the rights and property of their inhabitants. Such archives and records shall be carefully preserved, and private persons shall, without distinction, have the right to require, in accordance with the law, authenticated copies of the contracts, wills and other instruments forming part of notarial protocols or files, or which may be contained in the executive or judicial archives, be the latter in Spain or in the islands aforesaid.

ARTICLE IX.

Spanish subjects, natives of the Peninsula, residing in the territory over which Spain by the present treaty relinquishes or cedes her sovereignty, may remain in such territory or may remove therefrom, retaining in either event all their rights of property, including the right to sell or dispose of such property or of its proceeds; and they shall also have the right to carry on their industry, commerce and professions, being subject in respect thereof to such laws as are applicable to other foreigners. In case they remain in the territory they may preserve their allegiance to the Crown of Spain by making, before a court of record, within a year from the date of the exchange of ratifications of this treaty, a declaration of their decision to preserve such allegiance; in default of which declaration they shall be held to have renounced it and to have adopted the nationality of the territory in which they may reside.

The civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants of the territories hereby ceded to the United States shall be determined by the Congress.

ARTICLE X.

The inhabitants of the territories over which Spain relinquishes or cedes her sovereignty shall be secured in the free exercise of their religion.

ARTICLE XI.

The Spaniards residing in the territories over which Spain by this treaty cedes or relinquishes her sovereignty shall be subject in matters civil as well as criminal to the jurisdiction of the courts of the country wherein they reside, pursuant to the ordinary laws governing the same; and they shall have the right to appear before such courts and to pursue the same course as citizens of the country to which the courts belong.

ARTICLE XII.

Judicial proceedings pending at the time of the exchange of ratifications of this treaty in the territories over which Spain relinquishes or cedes her sovereignty shall be determined according to the following rules:

First—Judgments rendered either in civil suits between private individuals or in criminal matters, before the date mentioned, and with respect to which there is no recourse or right of review under the Spanish law, shall be deemed to be final, and shall be executed in due form by competent authority in the territory within which such judgments should be carried out.

Second—Civil suits between private individuals which may on the date mentioned be undetermined shall be prosecuted to judgment before the court in which they may then be pending, or in the court that may be substituted therefor.

Third—Criminal actions pending on the date mentioned before the Supreme Court of Spain against citizens of the territory which by this treaty ceases to be Spanish shall continue under its jurisdiction until final judgment; but, such judgment having been rendered, the execution thereof shall be committed to the competent authority of the place in which the case arose.

ARTICLE XIII.

The rights of property secured by copyrights and patents acquired by Spaniards in the Island of Cuba, and in Porto Rico, the Philippines and other ceded territories, at the time of the exchange of the ratification of this treaty, shall continue to be respected. Spanish scientific, literary and artistic works not subversive of public order in the territories in question shall continue to be admitted free of duty into such territories for the period of ten years, to be reckoned from the date of the exchange of the ratifications of this treaty.

ARTICLE XIV.

Spain shall have the power to establish consular officers in the ports and places of the territories the sovereignty over which has either been relinquished or ceded by the present treaty.

ARTICLE XV.

The Government of each country will, for the term of ten years, accord to the merchant vessels of the other country the same treatment in respect to all port charges, including entrance and clearance dues, light dues and tonnage duties, as it accords to its own merchant vessels not engaged in the coastwise trade.

This article may at any time be terminated on six months' notice given by either Government to the other.

ARTICLE XVI.

It is understood that any obligations assumed in this treaty by the United States with respect to Cuba are limited to the time of its occupancy thereof; but it will upon the termination of such occupancy advise any Government established in the island to assume the same obligations.

ARTICLE XVII.

The present treaty shall be ratified by the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, and by Her Majesty the Queen Regent of Spain; and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Washington within six months from the date hereof, or earlier if possible.

In faith whereof we, the respective plenipotentiaries, have signed this treaty and have hereunto affixed our seals.

Done in duplicate at Paris, the tenth day of December, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Ninety-eight.

THE PEACE CONFERENCE.

The International Peace Conference assembled at The Hague on May 18, where it was received with every mark of attention by the Government of the Netherlands, and was organized, as by previous understanding, with M. de Staal, the Russian Ambassador to England, as President. The nations represented were the six great European Powers, some eight smaller European States, four Asiatic Governments, and the United States. The European States apart from the six great Powers were Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Sweden and Norway, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal, Servia, Roumania and Turkey. The four Asiatic were China, Japan, Persia and Siam. The Vatican urgently sought an invitation to the Conference, but Italy's objection prevailed. Bulgaria desired an invitation, but Turkey's nominal suzerainty stood in the way. Montenegro was represented by Russia.

On July 29 the Conference was brought to a close. The convention on arbitration was signed at once by sixteen Powers, and the acte finale by all of the twenty-six States represented. The conventions recommended were as follows:

"Convention for the specific settlement of international disputes.

"Convention concerning the laws and customs of war on land.

"Convention for the adoption of laws against the use of asphyxiating or deleterious gases from balloon projectiles, and for the prohibition of the use of bullets that easily expand in the human body."

The final act contains five expressions of opinion, as follows:

"The Conference considers that limitations of the military charges which at present oppress the world are greatly to be desired for the increase of the material and moral welfare of mankind.

"The Conference expresses the opinion that the question of rights and duties of neutrals should be inscribed on the programme of a conference to be held at an early date.

"The Conference expresses the opinion that questions relative to the type and calibre of rifles and naval artillery, as examined by it, should be the subject of study by the different Governments, with a view of arriving at a uniform solution by a future conference.

"The Conference expresses the wish that an early convention be called to revise the Geneva Convention.

"The Conference has resolved that questions relating to the inviolability of private property in war on land and the bombardment of towns or villages in naval war be reserved for future conferences."

THE impression prevails that the sword that President McK'nley presented to Admiral Dewey as the gift of the nation cost $10,000. The fact is it cost only $3 00. Congress appropriated $10,000 to provide a sword for Dewey and medals for the men who participated in the victory in Manila Bay. The expense of the medals for the men was $7000. The total number struck, on which the Secretary of the Navy has received returns from the Bureau of Navigation, which had the matter in charge, was 1823. The cost of the medals was about $3.75 each.

LOCAL CHRONOLOGY.

[From December 1, 1898 to December 1, 1899.]

— The Franklin Institute's rearranged library and reading room was opened with a reception.

December 3. Mary E. Zeiner was acquitted of the charge of murder of the first degree in causing the death of her husband, Reuben Zeiner, by administering poison. Judge Wiltbank instructed the jury to find a verdict of not guilty.

December 4. The wind reached a maximum of 42 miles between 7 and 8 o'clock in the evening. The damage done by the storm in and near the city was slight, but considerable difficulty was experienced in getting telegraphic communication with other places.

December 5. Peter F. Deane, aged 55 years, a rag-picker, was fatally shocked by the current from a piece of telephone wire which had fallen to the ground over a trolley wire.

December 6. In the United States District Court the secretary and steward of the Alexis Club were convicted of engaging in the business of retail liquor dealers without having paid the Government special tax.

December 7. In the United States District Court Gideon W. Marsh, former President of the Keystone National Bank, pleaded guilty to thirty-seven counts of indictment charging him with misapplying and misappropriating the funds or assets of the bank. The remaining twenty-nine counts were nolle prossed. Judge Butler deferred sentence.

— William F. Powell was acquitted of a charge of conspiring with John A. Merrick and others to utter fraudulent naturalization papers.

December 8. William Steele was placed on trial before Judge Butler, in the United States District Court, on the charge of having, as cashier of the Chestnut Street National Bank, made false entries in reports sent to the Comptroller of the Currency as to the condition of the institution.

— Argument was begun before Judges Pennyacker and Sulzberger in the equity proceeding to have the proposed municipal loan of $11,200,000 declared illegal.

December 9. Harmonie Hall, Eleventh and Brandywine streets, owned by the Harmonie Singing Society, was damaged by fire to the extent of $40,000. The barking of a dog, kept on the premises, alarmed the janitor, his wife, two sons and two daughters, and three other persons, all of whom escaped unharmed from the burning building.

December 10. Supreme Court Justices Green and Williams made an order allowing a rule to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not be granted to bring into the highest court the proceedings under the indictments against Senator Quay, R. R. Quay and B. J. Haywood from the Quarter Sessions. The case was made returnable on January 7, all proceedings to stay meanwhile.

December 11. A protest was adopted by the United Labor League against territorial expansion by the United States where the free consent of the peoples to be annexed has not been obtained.

December 12. William Steele was found guilty of the charges of conspiracy to misuse the funds of the Chestnut Street National Bank, of which he was Cashier, and of sending false statements as to the condition of the institution to the Comptroller of the Currency. Sentence was deferred.

— Joseph G. Darlington was unanimously elected President of the Union League.

— Dr. J. Gurney Williams, senior resident surgeon of the Episcopal Hospital, was burned by X-rays while locating a bullet in the leg of a soldier patient.

December 13. Gideon W. Marsh was sentenced by Judge Butler to imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of twelve years and three months, and to pay a fine of $500 and the costs of prosecution. The prisoner dictated a statement, in which he said that none of the deficit of $1,000,000, which existed when he became President of the Keystone Bank, was caused by Mr. Lucas' speculations in Reading Railway stock, but in Keystone Bank stock. The shares of stock that were transferred to John Wanamaker were to secure a loan for Mr. Lucas at the Girard Trust Company. The loan was subsequently paid. He was quite certain that until the eve of the bank's failure Mr. Wanamaker, who had never been either a director or stockholder of the institution, was ignorant of the fraudulent character of the stock certificates. So far as he was aware, the prisoner said, Mr. Wanamaker knew nothing of the City Treasurer's relations with the bank, nor was he the person alluded to as having made an overdraft of a quarter of a million dollars.

December 14. William Mullen and William H. Harris were convicted of attempting to vote illegally in the Twelfth Ward at the recent election, and George Green, colored, was found guilty of a like offence in the Third Ward. Judge Bregy sentenced each to one year's imprisonment.

— While preparing breakfast on an oil stove, Martha Kauffman, aged 27 years, started a fire in her home, in Perry's court, near Twelfth and South streets, and she and her two daughters, aged 2 and 4 years, perished in the flames. An infant was carried from the burning house by a young man, who was severely burned in the effort.

— William Croak, aged 23 years, was burned to death by a fire started by a lighted cigarette, which he dropped upon a lounge before he fell asleep. Nine other persons, including a paralytic, were helped to escape from the burning house by firemen.

December 16. The Grand Jury ignored the bills of indictment charging Nelson G. Green and Councilmen J. Emory Byram and Charles Seger with bribery and attempted bribery in connection with the Schuylkill Valley Water Company's bill. Select Councilman Bringhurst, who appeared before the Grand Jury, stated afterwards that he was not interrogated as to his testimony at the preliminary hearing before Judges Gordon and Bregy, but only as to his having introduced the Water bill in Select Council.

December 17. John McFadden, aged 19 years, died of a gunshot wound inflicted, it was alleged, by Charles McAllister, a special policeman employed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. McAllister was taken into custody.

December 19. District Attorney Graham filed the answer of the Commonwealth to the rule granted by the Supreme Court in the case of United States Senator Quay, Richard R. Quay and former State Treasurer Haywood. The answer, which specifically denied all the allegations advanced by the accused, averred that the "evidence adduced at the hearing before the Magistrate, standing without explanation, clearly established the guilt of the defendants." The plea that they could not obtain a fair trial in this county was characterized as "scandalous and untruthful," and a gross imputation upon the twelve Judges of the Philadelphia Courts. The prosecution, it was asserted, was not inspired by Judge Gordon, acting in concert with other persons, nor was it instigated to serve a political purpose.

— At its annual dinner the Pennsylvania Society Sons of the Revolution had as its guest of honor Major General Nelson A. Miles, who responded to the toast "The Army."

— James A. Grogan was held in $2500 bail by United States Commissioner Craig to answer the charge of making false entries on the payrolls of the League Island Navy Yard, where he was chief clerk of the Department of Construction.

December 20. In the United States District Court a motion for a new trial was granted in the test case of the secretary and steward of the Alexis Club, against whom, by agreement of counsel, a verdict of guilty had been taken, on the charge of selling liquor without having paid the Government special tax. Judge Butler decided that clubs are not criminally liable for the payment of this tax.

— James M. Rhodes, of Ardmore, was elected President of the Horticultural Society of Pennsylvania at its annual meeting.

— The American Catholic Historical Society elected Walter George Smith President.

— Imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for six years and six months, and the payment of a fine of $300 and the costs of prosecution, was the sentence imposed by Judge Butler upon William Steele, Cashier of the Chestnut Street National Bank.

— William Hinchcliffe was found guilty of murder of the first degree in causing the death of his wife, by shooting, on August 26. Sentence was deferred.

December 21. Giuseppe Spaloni pleaded guilty to the charge of murder of the second degree in causing the death, by stabbing, of Harry O'Donnell, aged 17 years, on October 21. Judge Bregy sentenced Spaloni to twelve years' imprisonment.

December 22. In a convention to revise the party rules the Ryan Democrats adopted the report of a committee abolishing division representation, and substituting therefor the election of delegates from Ward Conventions, on the basis of one delegate for every two hundred votes in each ward for the Democratic candidate at the preceding Presidential election.

— A sword was presented to Rear Admiral Schley at the Baptist Temple. Addresses were delivered by Governor Hastings, Mayor Warwick, Miss Rena MacNeil, a school girl; the Rear Admiral and Governor-elect Stone.

December 23. A nolle prosequi was entered, with the approval of Judge Bregy, in the case of Dr. William B. Wertz, who, in 1893, was convicted of the charge of manslaughter in causing the death, by stabbing, of Thomas P. Gallagher, and sentenced to six years' imprisonment, which conviction was set aside and a new trial ordered by the Supreme Court.

December 24. Judges Pennypacker and Sulzberger declared valid, in an opinion, the $11,200,000 Loan bill.

— Mrs. Nancy Coyle, aged 65 years; Mrs. Kate McNichol, 42 years; and Mrs. Mary Ford, colored, were burned to death by the upsetting and explosion of coal-oil lamps.

December 25. Alice White and Mary Johnson, colored women, and Charles H. Moore, 34 years old, were shot and severely wounded during a fight in Ballinger's court. George St. Clair, colored, and another colored man, unknown to the police, who were accused of the shooting, escaped.

December 27. Dr. Samuel G. Dixon was re-elected President of the Academy of Natural Sciences.

December 28. Republican Conventions nominated Samuel H. Ashbridge for Mayor, John L. Kinsey for City Solicitor, and C. Harry Fletcher and John B. Lukens for Magistrates.

December 29. Councils passed the last of the appropriations to the various city departments for the year 1899, making a total of $19,046,802.21.

— The Secretary of the Navy disapproved of the sentence of Assistant Naval Constructor Hanscom—six months' suspension on waiting orders. He restored Mr. Hanscom to duty, detached him from League Island, and assigned him to Cramps' shipyard, to supervise the construction of battleships.

— At the commencement of Peirce College addresses were delivered by Justin H. McCarthy, M. P., and Webster Davis, Assistant Secretary of the Interior. The graduating class had 179 members.

— The City Treasurer received from the State Treasurer $300,000 on account of the school fund. There is yet due the city $550,000.

1899.—January 2. Governor Hastings appointed Dimmer Beeber, of Philadelphia, a Judge of the Superior Court, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Reeder. Judge Beeber took the oath of office before the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

— The Board of Education reorganized and re-elected Samuel B. Huey, President; Henry R. Edmunds, Vice President; and Andrew F. Hammond, Secretary.

— Argument was heard by the Supreme Court upon the appeal of James A. Clemmer, under sentence of death for the murder of Mrs. Emma P. Kaiser, near Norristown, in October, 1896. Clemmer's counsel contended that Charles O. Kaiser, the principal witness against Clemmer, was "civilly dead" at that time, being under sentence of death himself.

January 3. Robert J. Barr and Howard R. Yocum appealed to the Supreme Court from the decision of Common Pleas Court No 2 upholding the legality of the proposed municipal loan of $11,200,000.

January 5. Alice White, colored, died from the effects of a pistol-shot wound in the neck, inflicted, it was alleged, by George Sinclair, who was taken into custody.

January 6. The Directors of the Philadelphia Exposition Company re-elected P. A. B. Widener President, Dr. W. P. Wilson was chosen as Director General of the Exposition, which it was decided to open on or about the 15th of September, and close on or about November 10.

— The American Philosophical Society re-elected Frederick Fraley President.

January 8. The United Labor League re-elected George Chance President.

January 9. The Clearing House Association re-elected James V. Watson President.

— Robert Brown, colored, who was charged with stabbing his wife to death on December 31, was arrested in Chester by the Chief of Police of that borough. Philadelphia detectives had been unable to locate him.

— An illicit whisky still, between fifty and sixty gallons of whisky, and fourteen barrels of mash, were seized in an establishment on Germantown avenue, below Venango street. Four alleged proprietors were arrested and held in bail for a hearing.

January 10. The Supreme Court discharged the rule granted by Justices Green and Williams on the petition of United States Senator Quay, R. R. Quay and former State Treasurer Haywood, asking that the criminal proceedings against them in the Quarter Sessions of this county be removed to the higher tribunal. The opinion, which was delivered by Justice Sterrett, expresses the belief that the defendants will have a fair and impartial trial in this county, "before a fair and unprejudiced Judge and a fair and impartial jury."

January 11. An address by ex-President Edwin H. Magill, of Swarthmore College, before the Young Friends' Association, was believed to throw light upon the Administration's policy of dealing with the Philippines. The paper was read, amended slightly and approved by President McKinley before it was delivered by Mr. Magill. The policy outlined contemplates a protectorate for the Philippines, and the same treatment for the Filipinos as for the Cubans, in accordance with the Government's profession at the opening of the war.

January 12. The Pennsylvania Commandery of the Military Order of Foreign Wars of the United States voted to present to Rear Admiral Dewey the gold insignia of the Order.

January 13. The Executive Committee of the Citizens' Peace Jubilee Committee received and approved a final report from its Auditing Committee, showing that the total expenditures for the celebration in October were $126,057.24, leaving a balance of $2637.40, to be used in publishing a memorial of the event.

— Franklin G. Palmer, a Germantown real estate dealer and builder, was run over and killed on the Reading Railway at Tioga street.

January 14. At the annual meeting of the Art Club, Daniel Baugh was re-elected President.

— Mrs. Cornelius Stevenson was elected President of the Civic Club at its annual meeting.

— Common Pleas Court No. 2 issued a peremptory mandamus directing Magistrate Wil-here to take cognizance of the case of William McMurray, charged by Edward Meakim with knowingly renting a house on Filbert street, above Seventeenth, to Agnes King, to be used for immoral purposes. The Magistrate had declined to issue a warrant for the arrest of McMurray, on the ground that to do so would be a reflection upon the judgment of a brother Magistrate, who had dismissed the case against the defendant.

— The examiners appointed in the matter of the contested election of Robert Porter, Republican candidate for School Director at the election held in February, 1898, in the Thirty-second Ward, made a final report, stating that Porter received a total of 2952 votes, and William P. Simmington, the Prohibition-Citizens'-Municipal League candidate, 3016 votes.

January 17. At its annual meeting, the Board of Managers of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals elected officers, with M. Richards Mucklé as President.

— At a meeting of citizens in opposition to the subjugation of the Filipinos by the United States, Dr. S. Solis Cohen presided, and addresses were made by George Gluyas Mercer, Henry Bullock, Frank Stevens, Charles Richardson, Alfred H. Love and John S. Crosby, of New York.

January 18. John Birkinbine was re-elected President of the Franklin Institute.

January 19. At the annual election of the Trades League William W. Foulkrod was again chosen President.

— Common Councilman Manuel J. Hanna, of the Twenty-eighth Ward, was indicted by the Grand Jury upon the charge of attempting to bribe Common Councilman Leo S. Meyer, of the same ward, by offering him $100 to vote for the Lehigh Avenue School Lot ordinance.

January 22. While Charles Rublinger, 11 years old, was shooting at a mark on a lot near Germantown avenue and the Pennsylvania Railroad, with a Winchester rifle, he accidentally shot and killed Edgar L. Winpenny, 14 years old.

January 23. George W. Ayers shot and killed his wife, shot and dangerously wounded John J. Wilson, who boarded with her, and then ended his own life with a bullet.

— The Board of Trade re-elected Frederick Fraley President.

January 24. The Right Honorable Lord Herschell, President of the International Joint High Commission, now in session in Washington, was given a reception by the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

January 25. Hon. William Butler, Judge of the United States Circuit and District Courts, forwarded his resignation to Washington.

January 26. By a vote of 97 to none Common Council adopted resolutions proclaiming "to our citizens at large that our water works shall not be leased or sold," and instructing the Committee on Water to report back with a negative recommendation the ordinance introduced for the Quaker City Water Company and all other private bills of like import. Adjournment prevented final action on the resolution in Select Council, which defeated, by a vote of 23 to 7, a motion to indefinitely postpone its further consideration.

— Ex-Councilman Wm. McMurray, charged with knowingly leasing a house to Agnes King for immoral purposes, was given a hearing before Magistrate Wilhere and discharged.

January 27. George Woods, colored, assessor of the Second Division, Seventh Ward, charged with making a fraudulent return of the names of voters, failed to appear for a hearing, and his bond of $800, entered by Joseph Malatesta, was declared forfeited.

— William McDonald and William Johnson, both colored convicts, who attempted to kill Keeper Edward P. Laskey, in the new County Prison, were sentenced to seven years' imprisonment each in the Eastern Penitentiary.

January 30. Citizens of the Twenty-sixth and Thirty-sixth Wards presented a handsome gold badge to Foreman John Lewis, of Eugene Company No. 24, for heroism in rescuing two children from a blazing building at Twenty-third and Morris streets.

January 31. Mrs. Mary A. Lawler, 76 years old, who was found dead in a room over her grocery store on Tasker street, below Seventh, was, in the opinion of detectives, strangled by an unknown man, whose motive was robbery.

— Annie Fries was convicted, before Judge McMichael, of keeping a disreputable house on Sanson street, above Thirteenth.

February 1. Judge McMichael sentenced Annie Fries, proprietress of a disreputable house, to one year in prison and to pay a fine of $250.

February 3. A fire which started in the building at the northwest corner of Thirteenth and Hamilton streets, occupied by William S. Cooper, manufacturer of brass goods, destroyed that structure and the Stewart Building, extending from Hamilton street to the Reading Railway crossing on Thirteenth street. This building was occupied by the Stewart Cracker Company, the De Kosenko Manufacturing Company, makers of gas and electric fixtures; P. P. Mast & Co., agricultural implements; B. Hooley & Sons, silk yarn manufacturers, and the Philadelphia Novelty Company, manufacturers of stationers' hardware. Shops of Hoopes & Townsend, machinists, and the lithographers' establishment of Hoover & Co., 450 North Thirteenth street, were also damaged. The total loss was estimated at $465,000. One fireman was slightly injured by a falling wall.

— Judge McCarthy made a decree declaring null and void the election of Robert Porter, Republican, to the office of School Director in the Thirty-second Ward, and giving his seat to William P. Simmington, Prohibition candidate.

— The assignees of the Chestnut Street Trust and Savings Fund filed their first account in Common Pleas Court No. 2. The amount of cash on hand would indicate a first dividend of at least twenty per cent. to depositors.

February 4. The Union League gave a dinner and reception to the Peace Commissioners, all of whom were present except Judge Day.

— T. B. Rice's box factory, near Mifflin street wharf, Delaware river, was damaged by fire to the extent of $75,000.

— Lieutenant Colonel Maurice E. Fagan, 52 years old, committed suicide by shooting.

February 7. Fire damaged Philip Wunderle's candy factory, on Pegg street, to the extent of $50,000.

February 8. The contents of the two upper floors of the five-story brick building at the southeast corner of Bread and New streets, were destroyed by fire, and those of the lower floors were badly damaged by water. The total loss was estimated at $50,000.

February 9. At 9.40 P.M. the Weather Bureau thermometer registered 3° below zero. At midnight Borhek's thermometer marked 3° below zero. In the suburbs the thermometer fell to from 11° to 13° below zero.

— James H. Clements, who shot his two stepsons, while they were defending their mother, was sentenced to four years in the Eastern Penitentiary.

February 10. The Weather Bureau thermometer registered 6 $\frac{3}{10}$ ° below zero at 7.30 A.M. yesterday. At 4 P.M. the thermometer marked 5° above zero. In the suburbs 11° to 14° below zero was reached.

— James Pollock's cloth mill, in Frankford, was damaged by fire to the extent of $40,000, and between seventy and eighty hands were thrown out of employment.

— The Cosmopolitan Line steamer Haxby, bound for Rotterdam, while going down the Delaware river, became unmanageable and crashed into the long pier at the foot of Queen street, damaging it to the extent, it was estimated, of $25,000. The vessel sustained only slight damage.

February 11. About 9 o'clock at night a heavy snowfall began. It continued all night and the next day, and did not cease until late in the afternoon of Monday. On the 11th the thermometer was still below zero, but by Sunday evening it had risen to 10° above in the heart of the city, and to 4° above in the suburbs. On Sunday night, the 12th, a high wind arose, which continued all the next day and until the early hours of the 14th. The velocity of the wind was from 36 to 40 miles an hour, and the snow, in consequence, drifted rapidly. All traffic on the steam railroad and trolley lines was brought to a standstill.

February 12. During the twenty-four hours ending 8 o'clock P.M., February 11, 7.7 inches of snow fell, the total snowfall for the month being 19.5 inches. The lowest temperature recorded was 5° above zero. At 8 o'clock P.M. it had risen to 10°, and at midnight it was 6° above.

February 13. The snow-storm of the last two days was probably the most severe Philadelphia had ever experienced. From 8 o'clock Saturday night until midnight February 12 about twenty inches of snow fell. A gale blew all day on the 12th at a velocity of 36 to 40 miles an hour. The snow drifted rapidly, and railroad and street railway traffic, which was very irregular during the day, was practically suspended at night.

— Benjamin Zibley, aged 70 years, died on the street, it is supposed from the effects of the cold.

— James Hall was frozen to death in a clubhouse on Camac street, below Walnut.

— The First City Troop's drill shed, Twenty-first street, below Market, collapsed under the weight of snow on its roof, causing a loss of $10,000.

February 14. Train service on the Pennsylvania, Reading and Baltimore and Ohio Railroads was partially resumed. Cars were running on nine local trolley lines.

— The leading engine of three which had been sent to clear the snow from the tracks of the Reading Railway was pushed off the rails at the Ridge avenue and Sumac street crossing, Wissahickon, and, crashing into a brick building, was overturned. Thomas Nuttall was killed and four trainmen were badly injured.

— The Dauphin County Court decided that City Treasurer McMichael was entitled to a commission of one per cent. on the collection of personal property tax, which commission for the year 1898 amounted to more than $14,000.

February 15. For the first time since February 4 the thermometer registered above the freezing point. The highest temperature was 38°. Nearly all the railroads were opened for travel, and additional trolley lines resumed operations.

— The keel plate for the new battleship Maine was laid at Cramps' shipyard on the anniversary of the destruction of the Maine in the harbor of Havana.

February 16. Fire destroyed the three buildings, 1224, 1226 and 1228 Market street, and the parochial building of St. John's Roman Catholic Church. The total loss was estimated at $700,000, of which $320,000 is on the drug house of William R. Warner & Co., 1228 Market street, and $245,000 on No. 1226, owned by John Wanamaker, and occupied as a laundry, upholstering establishment, and for the storage of carpets, etc. Fernberger Bros.' liquor store, No. 1230 Market street, was badly damaged, as was the Emerson Shoe Store, No. 1224.

— In a collision between a Pennsylvania Railroad train, carrying snow shovelers, and a shifting engine, at Trenton avenue and Somerset street, William J. Plant, aged 40 years, the conductor, was killed, and five other men were severely injured.

February 17. More than two hours after it was believed that the fire at Thirteenth and Market streets was under control, Hugh Duffy, aged 45 years; William J. Chance, aged 25 years, and George W. ### SOCIAL STATISTICS.

The Government of the United States has published a big atlas giving an immense amount of information respecting the people of the country. Here are some of the facts collected:

Thirteen out of every 10,000 people in the United States are in prison. Seventeen out of every 10,000 are insane, the number being divided almost equally between the sexes. Race seems to have a marked relation to mental disturbances. Nineteen out of every 10,000 whites are crazy, while only 9 out of every 10,000 colored folks are similarly afflicted. Of the native whites, 14 out of every 10,000 are mad, and of the foreign-born, 39 out of every 10,000. This seems to prove that colored folks are much less liable to insanity than whites, and the foreign-born much more so than native Americans.

Seven out of every 10,000 inhabitants of the United States are deaf and dumb. Of these, 55 per cent. are males and 45 per cent. females. The affliction is much less common among colored people than among whites. The Hungarians are the greatest sufferers, 14 out of every 10,000 being deaf mutes. The next in rank are the Russians, while the Italians are but little troubled with this sort of defect. Eight out of every 10,000 persons in this country are blind. Of these, 55 per cent. are males and 45 per cent. females. The affliction is most prevalent among those of Hungarian, Irish and French origin, and least common among those of Scandinavian and Italian stock.

The total wealth of the United States—that is, the value of the property of the people and the Government—was $7,136,000,000 in 1850. Since then it has increased to $65,037,000,000. The wealth per capita was $308 in 1850. It is now $1036—a very decent little sum for every man, woman and child in the country, if it were only allotted equally. New York is the richest State, being worth more than eight and a half billions of dollars. Pennsylvania comes next, with nearly seven billions, and Illinois is third, with over five billions. Ohio has nearly four billions, Massachusetts more than three; and then follow, in order, California, Missouri, Iowa, Texas, Indiana and Michigan. Nearly two-thirds of the total wealth of the country is in real estate and improvements, and about 13 per cent. is in railroads.

New York State owns one-eighth of the entire wealth of the country. Pennsylvania follows with about one-tenth, and Illinois comes next with about a twelfth of the riches of the Union. The richest States in proportion to population, however, are those of the Far West, while the poorest are those of the Far South. In other words, the average citizen of the Far West is best off, while he of the South is more impoverished. In Nevada the average human inhabitant owns $2220 worth of real estate and improvements; in Arizona he possesses $1600 worth; in Montana, Wyoming and Washington he has only a little less. In New York he has nearly $1000 worth, and in Massachusetts he possesses a little over $800 in this shape. In the Gulf States and the Carolinas he comes down to $100 worth or less.

In 1790 the center of population of the United States was a point 23 miles east of Baltimore. In 1820 it was about 16 miles north of Woodstock, Va. In 1840 it had reached a point 16 miles south of Clarksburg, W. Va. In 1860 it was 20 miles south of Chillicothe, Ohio. In 1870 it had reached the neighborhood of Cincinnati, and to-day it is not far from Westport, Ind. The center of area of the United States is in Northern Kansas. Accordingly, the center of population is three-fourths of a degree south and more than 17 degrees east of the center of area.
